Advent of Europeans

1. Portuguese in India

The Portuguese were often referred to as the "first to come, last to go" in India, which highlights their early arrival and long-lasting presence in the subcontinent despite the eventual decline of their colonial power.

Chronology

Period	Events
1494-1600: Entry and Expansion	1494: Treaty of Tordesillas divides New World territories between Spain and Portugal. 1498: Vasco da Gama reaches Calicut, welcomed by the Zamorin. 1500: Cabral sets up a factory at Calicut; treaties with Cochin and Cannanore. 1502: Da Gama's second voyage builds and fortifies posts at Cannanore, Calicut, and Cochin. 1505: Francisco de Almeida becomes the first Viceroy and introduces the Blue Water Policy and the Cartaz system. 1508: Battle of Chaul — Portuguese defeated (Almeida's son killed). 1509: Battle of Diu — Almeida defeats the Egyptian-Gujarat-Calicut fleet. 1510: Albuquerque captures Goa as the Portuguese HQ; bans sati and promotes intermarriage. 1530: Nuno da Cunha shifts the HQ from Cochin to Goa; the Portuguese secure Bassein and Diu from Bahadur Shah of Gujarat.
1600-1700: Decline Begins	1612: Portuguese lose Surat to the English. 1632: Siege of Hooghly by Qasim Khan, Governor of Bengal. 1661: Bombay was transferred to the British as part of Catherine of Braganza's dowry. 1663: The Dutch seize all Portuguese forts on the Malabar Coast.
1700-1800: Further Decline	1739: Marathas capture Salsette and Bassein.
1800-1900: Final Phase	1812: The Portuguese lost Goa to the British during the Napoleonic Wars. (The British only temporarily occupied Goa (c. 1799-1813) to keep it from the French).
20th Century	1961: Operation Vijay leads to Indian annexation of Goa, Daman, and Diu, ending Portuguese rule.

Intentions	Explanation
Economic Gains	The Portuguese aimed to establish direct trade with India to access valuable commodities such as spices, calicoes, silk, and precious stones, bypassing Arab and Ottoman intermediaries. Eg. Vasco da Gama's arrival at Calicut in 1498 was an effort to bypass Arab and Ottoman middlemen.
Control of Trade Routes	They sought to monopolize the lucrative Indian Ocean trade by controlling key maritime routes and ports, thereby securing a dominant position in global commerce.
Spread of Christianity	The Portuguese were motivated by religious zeal to spread Christianity and counter the influence of Islam in the East. Missionary efforts were often integral to their activities in India.
Geopolitical Expansion	The Portuguese aimed to extend their empire by establishing strategic colonies and forts in India to strengthen their global power and influence.
Weaken Islamic Influence	A major goal was to challenge and diminish Muslim control over the eastern Mediterranean and the Indian Ocean trade routes.
Strengthen Portugal's Prestige	Their ventures were also driven by a desire to enhance Portugal's international prestige as a leading maritime and colonial power.

Portuguese Trading Centers

Trading Centre	Details
Kannur (Cannanore)	Vasco da Gama established a factory in 1501. Known for the pepper and spice trade.
Cochin	First Portuguese settlement. Major spice trading hub. Served as the headquarters of Portuguese India until 1530 (later shifted to Goa).
Calicut	Vasco da Gama landed here in 1498. Key port for the spice trade, initially controlled by Arab merchants.
Mangaluru (Mangalore)	Important for spice exports. Contested among European powers.

Military Posts

1. San Thome (Chennai): Key military outpost near Chennai for defense and controlling trade routes.
2. Nagapattinam (Tamil Nadu): A strategic fort on the Coromandel Coast used in naval operations.

Other Facts

1. Captain William Hawkins:
   a. Arrived at Emperor Jahangir's court (1608) with a letter from King James I of England.
   b. Permission granted to establish English trading rights, intensifying competition with the Portuguese.

Causes of the Decline of the Portuguese

Category	Details
Loss of Political Favor	Losing Favor with Mughals: Arrogance, piracy, and dishonest trade practices led to animosity with the Mughals, resulting in loss of privileges. Eg. Capture of Hooghly
Emergence of Strong Neighbors	Powerful Dynasties: The rise of strong dynasties in Egypt, Persia, North India, and the Marathas reduced Portuguese influence. Maratha Threat: The Marathas captured Salsette and Bassein (1739) and invaded Goa (1683).
European Rivalry	Competition from Other Powers: The Dutch captured Malabar (1663); the English captured Surat (1612). The English defeated the Portuguese at the Battle of Swally (1612). Loss of Monopoly: The Dutch and English learned navigation skills, challenging Portuguese dominance.
Economic Decline	Heavy Taxation: Exploitative policies like tobacco duties alienated locals. Dishonest Trade Practices: Dishonesty and piracy in the Bay of Bengal evoked strong reactions from local and European powers. Decline of Goa: Goa lost importance after the fall of Vijayanagara; the spice trade shifted to Dutch control.
Religious Policies	Forced Conversions: Portuguese Inquisition, forced conversions, and the slave trade caused widespread resentment among Hindus and Muslims.
Internal Issues	Administrative Mismanagement: Disputes between viceroys and local governors caused inefficiency. Union with Spain (1580-81): Portugal's union with Spain dragged it into Spain's wars, weakening its trade focus in India.
Shifting Priorities	Discovery of Brazil: Portugal shifted its focus to the West after Brazil was discovered, diverting resources from India. Fierce European Rivalry: The Dutch and English, with greater resources and ambition, outcompeted the Portuguese.

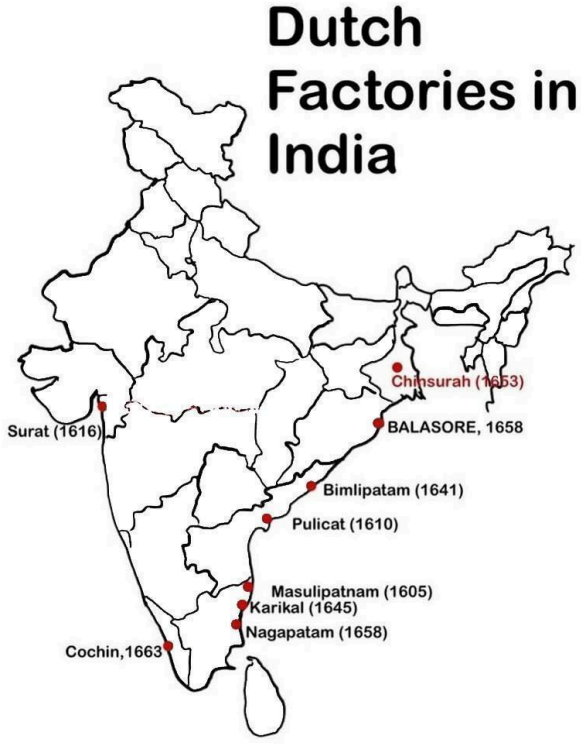

Significance of Portuguese

Aspect	Details
Economic Contributions	Revolutionized trade through maritime exploration. Introduced crops like chillies, potatoes, tomatoes, and tobacco.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Cultural Influence	Language: Introduced Konkani words. Eg. almari (almirah), chabi (chave/key), padre, balti (balde), kamra. Art: Indo-Portuguese silversmith and filigree work. Architecture: Portuguese influence can be seen in the Deccan region of India's ecclesiastical architecture. (Cathedral of Goa) Cuisine: Introduced pork, vinegar, and bread to Goan cuisine.
Religious Influence	Facilitated the spread of Christianity in India.
Military Contributions	Built strong fortifications (Fort Aguada, Fort Kochi). Influenced Maratha and Sikh infantry drills.
Maritime Innovations	Developed castled prow and stern boarding methods. Organized dockyards effectively.
Legal and Administrative Systems	Abolished sati. Introduced structured courts and bureaucratic administration.

2. Dutch in India

Chronology

Year	Event	Details
1602	Establishment of the Dutch East India Company (VOC)	Founded to dominate trade, especially in spices.
1605	First Dutch Factory at Masulipatnam	The Dutch set up their first factory on the Coromandel Coast.
1610	Acquisition of Pulicat	Pulicat became the second major Dutch trading post in India.
1663	Capture of Cochin	The Dutch defeated the Portuguese to strengthen their hold in India.
1667	Anglo-Dutch Agreement	Britain and the Netherlands agree to withdraw from Indonesia and India, respectively.
1741	Battle of Colachel	Dutch forces are defeated by the Travancore Kingdom, marking a major setback.
1759	Battle of Hooghly and Bidara	Dutch naval forces suffer defeats against the British, weakening their position in India.
1795	Loss of Cochin to the British	Marks a significant decline in Dutch influence in India.
1824	Anglo-Dutch Treaty	Formalizes territorial exchanges between Britain and the Netherlands.

Intentions in India

Intentions	Explanations
Commercial Profit	To establish a profitable trade network, focusing on commodities like silk, cotton, indigo, rice, opium, and spices. Especially with the Spice Islands in Indonesia.
Monopoly over Spice Trade	To dominate the spice trade by using India as a base for redistributive trade to the Far East, including the Spice Islands.
Strategic Trading Posts	To establish factories and trading posts in key locations like Masulipatnam, Pulicat, Surat, Chinsurah, and Nagapattinam to facilitate and control trade.
Weaken Rivals	To challenge Portuguese dominance and later compete with the English for control over trade routes and resources.
Redistributive Trade	To use Indian goods like indigo, textiles, saltpetre, and opium to trade in the Far East and secure spices from the Malay Archipelago.
Focus on Trade, Not Empire	Unlike other powers, the Dutch focused on maximizing trade profits rather than establishing territorial control in India.

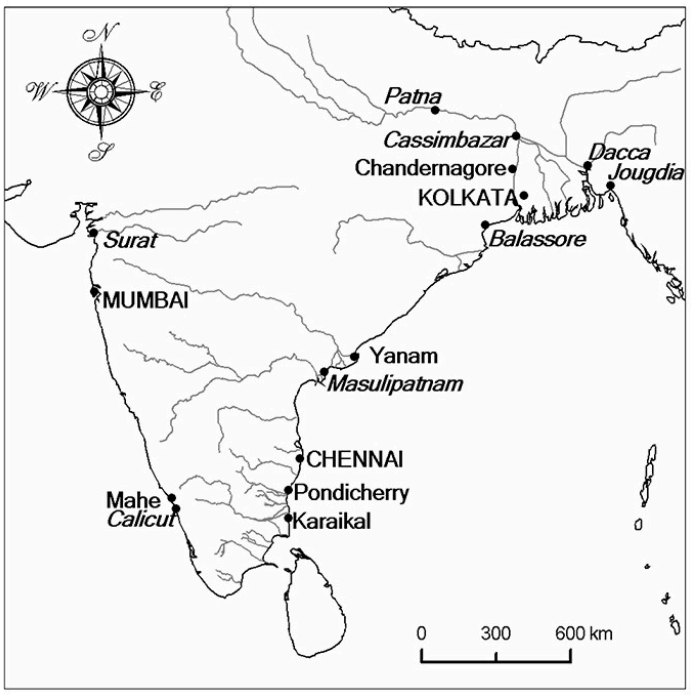

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Most Important Commodities Traded by the Dutch: Silk, Cotton, Indigo, Rice, Opium

Causes of the Decline of the Dutch

Cause	Details
Commercial interest lay in Indonesia	Dutch concerns were mainly trade, not empire-building in India. In any case, their main commercial interest lay in the Spice Islands of Indonesia
Financial Difficulties & Mismanagement	Decline of profitability in the Dutch East India Company (VOC); mismanagement of investments in Indonesia.
Anglo-Dutch War	The Dutch lost the Anglo-Dutch conflict and turned their attention to the Malay Archipelago as a result of the decline in India.
British Naval Superiority in the 18th Century	British naval dominance in the Indian Ocean weakened Dutch power.
Internal Conflicts	Lack of stable administration within Dutch colonies.

3. French in India

Chronology

Year	Event	Details
1664	Founding of the French East	Louis XIV granted a 50-year monopoly to the French East India Company in the Indian and Pacific Oceans.

Year	Event	Details
	India Company (CFIO)
1667	Establishment of Factory at Surat	Francois Caron established the first French factory in Surat.
1674	Founding of Pondicherry	Francois Martin becomes the first governor of Pondicherry.
1746-48	First Carnatic War	It was a continuation of the Austrian War of Succession, an Anglo-French conflict in Europe. It ended with the Treaty of Aix-La-Chapelle (1748).
1749-54	Second Carnatic War	The French and the English utilised regional dynastic conflicts. It severely weakened French influence over the English in South India and caused the French to recall Dupleix as a result.
1754	Treaty of Pondicherry	The Second Carnatic War ended with the signing of the Treaty of Pondicherry(1754).
1756-1763	Third Carnatic War	It started in the background of the European Seven Years' War (1756-1763).
1760	Battle of Wandiwash	English General Eyre Coote completely destroyed the French army led by Arthur de Lally and captured Bussy.
1763	Treaty of Paris	Ends the Seven Years' War; The French were only permitted to use Indian towns for business purposes; fortification of communities was not permitted.
1954	Final Loss of French Territories	Pondicherry, Karaikal, Yanam, Mahe, and Chandernagore were ceded to India.

French Intentions in India

1. Profitable Trade: Focus on trade networks and exploitation of resources, notably through Pondicherry and Chandernagore.
2. Competing with European Powers: Engaged in direct competition with the British, Dutch, and Portuguese for control over Indian trade routes.
3. Political Influence: Formed alliances, such as with Haider Ali and Chanda Sahib, to expand influence in South India.
4. Cultural Exchange & Assimilation: Promoted the spread of Christianity and French culture in their territories.
5. Strategic Military Advantages: Established fortifications in Pondicherry, Mahe, and other key regions for defense.

Carnatic War

Anglo-French Rivalry in India

War	Background	Immediate Cause	Key Battle/Events	Result	Significance
First Carnatic War (1746-1748)	Part of the larger Anglo-French war triggered by the Austrian War of Succession (AWS).	The English Navy under Barnet seized French ships; the French retaliated under Admiral La Bouronnais.	Battle of St. Thome (Madras): Captain Paradise led French forces to defeat Mahfuz Khan.	Treaty of Aix-La Chapelle (1748): Madras was handed over to the British; France regained North American territories.	The war set the stage for further Anglo-French rivalry in India.
Second Carnatic War (1749-1754)	The French supported Muzaffar Jang (Hyderabad) and Chanda Sahib (Carnatic), while the British supported Nasir Jang and Anwar-ud-din.	Nasir Jung was opposed by Muzzaffar Jung; Anwaruddin Nawab was opposed by Chanda Sahib.	Battle of Ambur (1749): French forces led by Dupleix defeated Anwaruddi.	Treaty of Pondicherry (1754): Resulted in a temporary suspension of hostilities between the British and French, with both agreeing not to interfere in the internal affairs of Indian rulers. Dupleix was recalled by France and replaced by Godeheu, who adopted a more diplomatic policy.	French power in South India weakened; British influence increased despite French military successes.
Third Carnatic War (1756-1763)	Part of the global Seven Years' War, involving both European powers.	Continued conflict between Britain and France for supremacy in India.	Battle of Wandiwash (1760): British forces under Eyre Coote defeated the French under Lally.	Treaty of Paris (1763): The French were allowed only commercial rights in India; fortifications were banned.	British dominance in India solidified; French influence was reduced to commercial rights only.

Carnatic War and the Britishers

Reasons for British Success

1. Superior Naval Power: The British navy defeated the French fleet and controlled key sea routes, cutting off French supplies and reinforcements.
2. Better Financial Stability: The British East India Company maintained strong financial resources, supported by trade, unlike the French, whose ambitions stretched their finances.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

3. Effective Leadership: British commanders such as Robert Clive, Stringer Lawrence, and Eyre Coote had superior military leadership compared to the French.
4. Private Enterprise Advantage: The British East India Company operated with more flexibility and less bureaucracy compared to the state-controlled French Company.
5. Military skill and discipline: The British soldiers were disciplined and well-trained. Technological development equipped the military well.

Impact of British Success in the Anglo-Carnatic Wars:

1. End of French Political Power in India: After the British victory at Wandiwash in 1760, the French were reduced to a minor commercial presence in India.
2. Rise of British Supremacy: With the defeat of the French, the English East India Company was left as the dominant European power in India, consolidating British control.
3. Shift in Indian Politics: The British emerged as dominant in southern Indian politics, securing the support of regional rulers such as Muhammad Ali of Carnatic and Salabat Jang of Hyderabad as their allies.
4. Decline of French Power: The defeat of French-supported candidates significantly weakened France's position in India, limiting its influence to a few enclaves like Pondicherry.
5. Precedent for Future Expansion: The success in the Carnatic Wars laid the foundation for British military and administrative expansion across the Indian subcontinent.

Causes of French Decline in India

1. Naval Inferiority: The British navy was significantly stronger, enabling them to disrupt French maritime links during crucial phases of the Carnatic Wars.
2. Company Structure and Efficiency: The English East India Company, as a private enterprise, allowed for swift decisions and fostered initiative. In contrast, the French company was state-controlled and hampered by bureaucratic inefficiency and corruption.
3. Strategic Geographical Control: The British controlled three major centers – Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras – offering them a strategic advantage. The French were largely confined to Pondicherry.
4. Imbalanced Priorities: The French prioritized territorial ambitions over commerce, leading to financial shortages. The English balanced both, ensuring sound finances to fund wars.
5. Leadership Gap: The British benefited from a larger pool of capable leaders, including Robert Clive, Stringer Lawrence, and Eyre Coote. The French, aside from Dupleix, lacked strong military and administrative leaders.
6. Robust Financial Resources: The English maintained financial strength through commercial success, unlike the French, whose finances suffered due to their focus on territorial expansion.
7. Government Mismanagement: The French company, being under direct government control, was riddled with internal corruption and inefficiencies, which hindered effective functioning.
8. Poor Administrative Stability: The French administration, especially under Dupleix, struggled with instability and mismanagement, affecting long-term strategic planning.

Significance of the French in India

1. Cultural Exchange: Introduced French culture, with lasting influences on architecture, language, and urban planning in areas like Pondicherry.
2. Urban and Infrastructure Development: Built planned settlements, fortifications, and important infrastructure such as schools and public buildings.
3. Educational Contributions: Established institutions like St. Joseph's College and French-run schools in their territories.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

4. Architectural Legacy: Churches and public structures, including the Basilica of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.
5. Legal Systems: French civil law systems, based on the Napoleonic Code, influenced governance in Pondicherry, emphasizing property and individual rights.
6. Cultural Preservation: Promoted Indian arts, music, and dance forms, showing interest in preserving local heritage.

4. The Danes in India:

Chronology

1. 1616: Danish East India Company (DEIC) established.
2. 1620: First Factory set up at Tanjore.
3. 1845: Danish factories were sold to the British government.

Intentions:

1. Focus on Missionary Activities.
2. Aimed to establish a trade presence in the Indian subcontinent.

Causes of the Decline of Danes:

Reason	Explanation
Limited Resources	The Danish East India Company (DEIC) lacked the necessary military and financial strength to compete effectively with other European powers.
Loss of Tranquebar to the British	In 1845, the Danish lost their settlement at Tranquebar to the British.
Deterioration of DEIC	Mismanagement and inefficiency led to the decline of the Danish East India Company.
Lack of Political Support from Denmark	The Danish government did not provide adequate support to maintain its colonial ambitions in India.
Internal Conflicts	Political and administrative issues contributed to the downfall of the Danish presence in India.

THE DECLINE OF THE MUGHAL EMPIRE

The Mughal Empire, which once ruled a vast part of the Indian subcontinent, faced a steady decline starting in the late 17th century. This period was marked by internal weaknesses and external threats, leading to the rise of regional powers and setting the stage for European colonization.

Cause	Explanation
Political	Weak Successors: After Aurangzeb, weak rulers like Bahadur Shah I and Muhammad Shah failed to maintain the empire.
Political	Shifting Allegiance of Zamindars: Regional loyalties grew, with zamindars and nobles carving out independent kingdoms. Eg. Zamindars from Bengal and Rajasthan resisted imperial authority and sought independence.
Political	War of Succession: Absence of a fixed succession law led to internal conflicts, weakening the empire's stability.
Social	Rise of Regional Powers: Regional groups like the Marathas, Sikhs, and Jats challenged Mughal authority.
Social	Religious Discord: Aurangzeb's policies alienated non-Muslims, leading to internal conflict and resistance.
Economic	Economic Mismanagement: Excessive taxation and declining agricultural productivity weakened the economic base. Eg. Zabt system, which placed a substantial burden on the peasantry and various economic sectors.
Economic	Decline in Trade: European traders gaining influence and a stagnating economy hurt the empire's financial standing.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Cause	Explanation
Administrative	Jagirdari Crisis: The divisiveness and rivalry among the nobility, including jagirdars, weakened the central authority.
Administrative	Decline of the Army: The army became less efficient, which contributed to the empire's inability to defend itself.
Administrative	Administrative Inefficiency: Weak rulers led to administrative breakdown, and the empire became too vast to manage.
External	External Invasions: Invasions of the Irani and Durrani kingdoms (Nadir Shah, Ahmad Shah Abdali) gave a death blow.

Key Events

1. Invasions:
   a. Nadir Shah's raid on Delhi in 1739 devastated the Mughal treasury and morale.
   b. Ahmad Shah Abdali repeatedly attacked northern India, including the critical Third Battle of Panipat.
2. Battles:
   a. Battle of Plassey (1757): The British East India Company defeated Nawab Siraj-ud-Daulah, marking the beginning of British dominance in India.
   b. Battle of Buxar (1764): British victory over a coalition of Indian powers (Bengal, Awadh, and the Mughal Emperor) solidified their control in Bengal and neighboring regions.

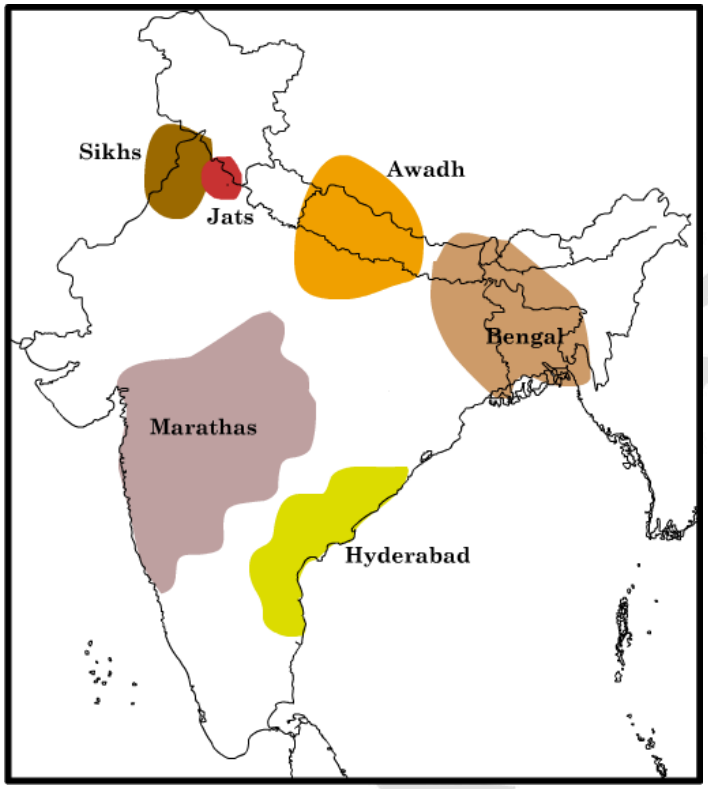

Impact of the Decline

1. Fragmentation of Power: Regional kingdoms like Awadh, Hyderabad, and Bengal emerged.
2. European Encroachment: The weakening of centralized authority allowed the British and other European powers to establish a foothold.
3. End of the Mughal Era: Though titular emperors continued, real power shifted to regional rulers and eventually to the British.

Regional States in 18th-Century India

The decline of the Mughal Empire led to the rise of several regional states and independent kingdoms, each seeking autonomy and power.

Successor and Independent States:

Successor Region	Leader	Significant Event
Awadh (Oudh)	Saadat Khan (Burhan-ul-Mulk)	Established Awadh as a prominent state. Saadat Khan committed suicide when Nadir Shah demanded tribute. He was succeeded by Safdar Jang.
Bengal	Murshid Quli Khan	Established Bengal's independence. His son Shuja-ud-din ruled until 1727. Shuja's son Sarfaraz Khan was killed by Alivardi Khan, who made Bengal independent, paying tribute to the Mughal ruler.
Hyderabad	Kilich Khan (Nizam ul Mulk/Asaf Jah)	Fought Mubariz Khan in 1724 to gain control of the Deccan and established Hyderabad as a separate state.
Independent Region	Founder	Significant Event
Mysore	Haider Ali	Initially ruled by the Wodeyars, Mysore came under Haider Ali's control in the mid-18th century. Haider Ali and Tipu Sultan led wars against the British East India Company.
Rajputs	Various Rajput leaders like Ajit Singh and Jai Singh III	Attempted to re-establish influence in the 18th century but faced Mughal and Maratha intervention. The resistance against Bahadur Shah I was led by Rajput leaders.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Successor Region	Leader	Significant Event
Kerala (Travancore)	Martanda Varma	Established Travancore as a powerful kingdom with its capital at Trivandrum (now Thiruvananthapuram). Modernized the army following a Western model.

New States:

Region	Leader	Details
Marathas	Peshwas	They expanded their influence by uprooting the Mughal presence from Malwa and Gujarat. They clashed with Abdali in the Third Battle of Panipat (1761), which significantly weakened them.
Sikh Empire	Guru Gobind Singh, Banda Bahadur, Ranjit Singh	After suffering under Mughal persecution, the Sikh community became militant. Banda Bahadur led early resistance until he died in 1716. Ranjit Singh captured Lahore in 1799 and Amritsar in 1802, establishing the Sikh Empire in Punjab.
Jats	Gokula, Churaman, Badan Singh, Suraj Mal	The Jats rebelled against Aurangzeb in 1669 under Gokula but were initially unsuccessful. They rose to power in the 18th century, with Suraj Mal expanding their territory to Agra, Mathura, Meerut, and Aligarh. The Jat state declined after his death in 1763.

Other Important Regional States:

Rohilkhand and Farrukhabad:

1. Rohilkhand was established by Ali Muhammad Khan, situated between the Kumaon region and the Ganga.
2. Farrukhabad was founded by Mohammad Khan Bangash, located east of Delhi during the reign of Farrukhsiyar and Muhammad Shah.

Significance of These Regional States:

1. The rise of regional states marked the fragmentation of the Mughal Empire, with local powers asserting their independence and autonomy.
2. These states played a pivotal role in resisting both Mughal authority and later British colonial expansion.
3. The Marathas, Rajputs, and Sikhs were among the most prominent regional forces that contributed to the evolving political landscape of 18th century India.

Reasons for British Success

Reason	Explanation
Weakness of Local Rulers	The Nawabs of Bengal, including Siraj-ud-daula, were politically unstable, dealing with internal opposition and rival factions. This weakened their authority.
Superior Military Strategy	The English, under Robert Clive, used strategic alliances, deception, and better coordination to defeat much larger forces of the Nawab. Eg. Battle of Plassey.
Division and Betrayal	Internal betrayal, especially by figures like Mir Jafar, who defected to the English, played a key role in weakening Siraj-ud-daula's power.
Control over Trade	The English controlled key trade routes and monopolized the trade of Bengal, giving them financial leverage over the region.
Financial and Military Resources	The East India Company had substantial financial resources and a strong military force, allowing them to sustain and expand their operations.
Manipulation of Political Alliances	The English exploited the political rivalries within Bengal's ruling class by forging alliances with Mir Jafar and other discontented figures.

Impact of British Success

Impact	Explanation
Foundation of British Rule in India	The victory at Plassey and subsequent events laid the foundation for the British Empire in India, marking the beginning of British colonial dominance.
Political Control over Bengal	The English gained de facto control over Bengal, establishing a puppet Nawab (Mir Jafar), while the real power lay with the East India Company.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Impact	Explanation
Economic Exploitation	The British gained control over Bengal's vast resources and trade, monopolizing the economy and draining wealth from the region through heavy taxation.
Decline of Bengal's Prosperity	The imposition of British control disrupted the local economy and administration, leading to widespread poverty and a decline in Bengal's industrial output.
Weakening of the Mughal Empire	The defeat of the Mughal Emperor and the Treaty of Allahabad further undermined Mughal authority in India, cementing British influence in the region.
Rise of the Dual Government System	The introduction of the dual government system in 1765 meant that while the Nawab retained nominal authority, real power was in the hands of the East India Company.
Reorganization of Bengal's Administration	The British restructured Bengal's administration, focusing on revenue collection and military control, which led to an inefficient and exploitative governance system.
Impact on Indian Society	The British success led to the decline of traditional Indian industries, social unrest, and exploitation of local populations through policies such as the zamindari system.
Military Supremacy of the British	The Battle of Buxar in 1764 cemented the military dominance of the British in northern India, making them the dominant force in the region.

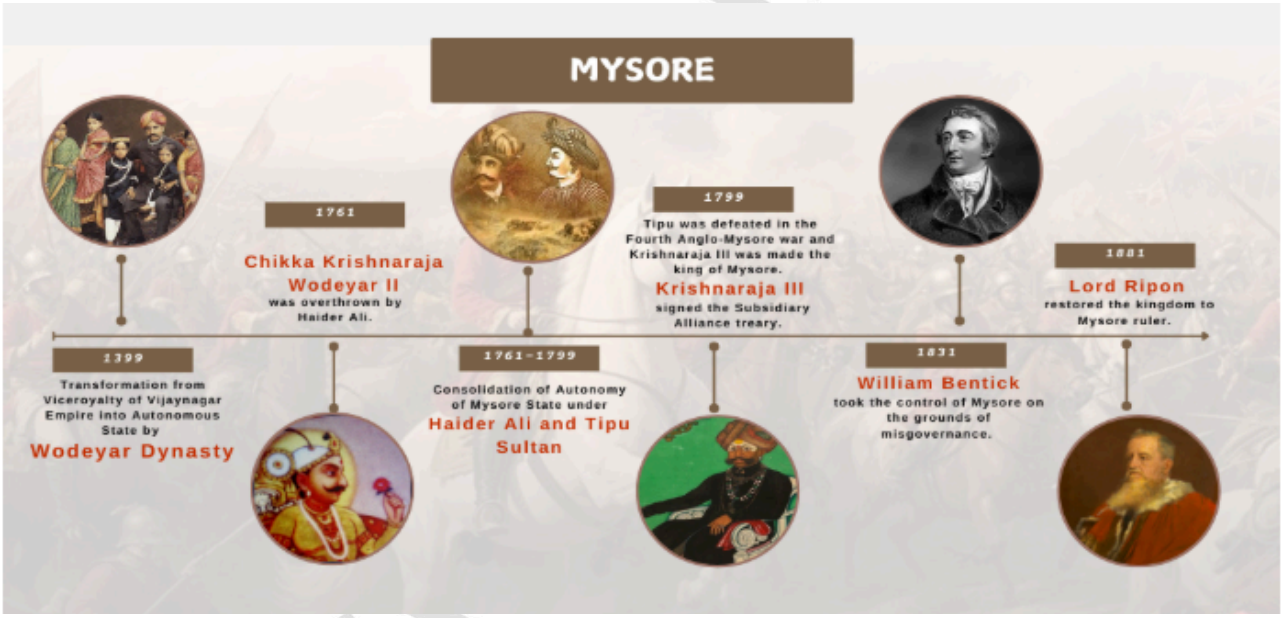

Comparison of Plassey and Buxar

Feature	Battle of Plassey (1757)	Battle of Buxar (1764)
Date	23 June 1757	22 October 1764
Location	Plassey (Palashi), near Murshidabad, Bengal.	Buxar, on the banks of the Ganga River, Bihar.
Opposing Forces	The British East India Company vs Nawab Siraj-ud-Daulah (aided by French support).	The British East India Company vs Combined forces of Mir Qasim (Nawab of Bengal), Shuja-ud-Daula (Nawab of Awadh), and Shah Alam II (Mughal Emperor).
British Leader	Robert Clive	Major Hector Munro
Cause	Misuse of trade privileges by the Company and political tensions with Siraj-ud-Daulah; betrayal and intrigue within the Nawab's court (Mir Jafar's conspiracy).	Mir Qasim's resentment against the Company over trade and revenue disputes; Alliance with Awadh and the Mughal Emperor to oppose British expansion.
Nature of the Battle	Primarily a political betrayal-based skirmish rather than a large-scale war; Nawab's forces were weakened due to internal conspiracy.	A large-scale, decisive military engagement with combined Indian powers against the Company.

War	Causes	War Dynamics	Major Events	Consequences
First Anglo-Mysore War (1767-1769)	British Expansionist Policy: The EIC signed a treaty with the Nizam of Hyderabad (1766), acquiring the Northern Circars in return for protection from Haider Ali. Conflicts with Local Powers: Haider Ali's hostility towards the Nawab of Arcot. Differences with the Marathas. Support of the Nizam to the British.	Nizam + Marathas + British against Haider Ali. Haider Ali used his diplomatic skills to neutralize the Marathas by paying them off. Ally with the Nizam by promising to share conquered territories.	Treaty of Madras (1769): Exchange of prisoners. The British promised to help Haider Ali if attacked by external forces. Haider Ali demonstrated strategic brilliance, even threatening Madras directly.	Treaty of Madras (1769) restored captured territories. Hyder Ali maintained power, strengthening his position. Increased British-Mysore tensions led to future conflicts. The British focused more on securing southern India. Shift in British strategy to counter Mysore's influence.
Second Anglo-Mysore War (1780-1784)	Betrayal by the British: Despite the Treaty of Madras, the British failed to assist Haider Ali during a Maratha invasion in 1771. French Alliance: Haider allied with the French, importing supplies via Mahe. British attempts to capture Mahe provoked Haider.	Haider Ali + Marathas + Nizam against the British.	Major Events: Haider attacked Carnatic, captured Arcot, and defeated Colonel Baillie (1781). The British, under Eyre Coote, defeated Haider at Porto Novo (1781). Haider regrouped and inflicted defeats but died in 1782; his son, Tipu Sultan, continued the war.	Treaty of Mangalore (1784): Territories were restored to their pre-war status. Both sides agreed to release prisoners and end hostilities.

Reasons for the British Success

Reason	Explanation
Military Superiority	The British had advanced weaponry (muskets, cannons) and disciplined troops, outmatching local forces.
Strategic Leadership	Leaders like Cornwallis and Arthur Wellesley used superior strategies, ensuring victories in key battles.
Indian Allies	The British formed alliances with Indian powers like the Marathas and Nizam, gaining support in conflicts.
Financial Resources	Control over Bengal's revenues (Diwani), trade, and subsidiary alliances funded British military campaigns.

Impact of the British Success

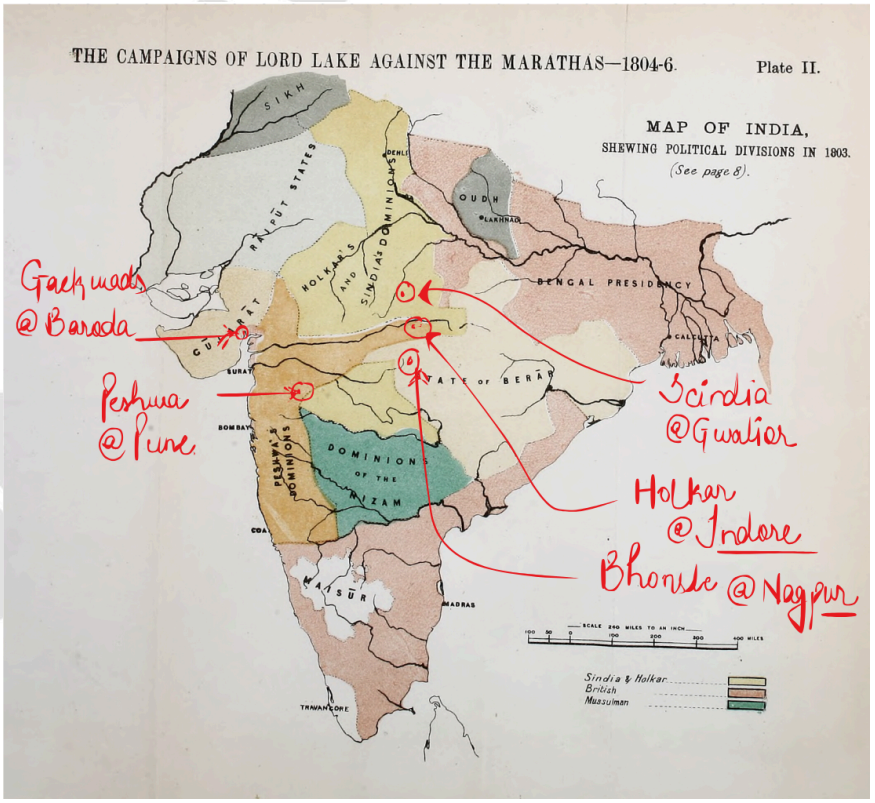

Impact	Explanation
Expansion of Territory	The British dominance expanded in southern India, including key regions like Mysore, strengthening their control.
Elimination of a Major Threat	The death of Tipu Sultan in 1799 removed a significant military and political challenge to British hegemony.
Resource Access	The fertile lands and wealth of Mysore, including its trade routes, boosted British finances and economic power.

Impact	Explanation
Technological Advancements	The British forces captured Mysorean iron rockets, inspiring the development of the Congreve rocket for military use.
Historical Impact	The plunder of Tipu Sultan's treasures and the suppression of resistance movements influenced India's colonial history.
Restoration of the Wodeyars	After Tipu's death, the Wodeyar dynasty was restored under the minor ruler Krishnaraja III, who accepted the subsidiary alliance.
British Territorial Gains	The British took possession of Kanara, Wynad, Coimbatore, Dwaraporam, and Seringapatam.
Maratha & Nizam's Involvement	Wellesley offered Soonda and Harponelly to the Marathas (refused) and gave the Nizam Gooty and Gurramkonda.
Misgovernance & Control	In 1831, William Bentinck took control of Mysore due to misgovernance.

3. Anglo-Marathas (1775 - 1818)

Aftermath of the Third Battle of Panipat: The Marathas faced a devastating defeat in 1761, dashing their ambitions of ruling from Delhi. Following this, the Maratha Empire splintered into smaller states led by regional chiefs like Sindhia, Holkar, Gaikwad, and Bhonsle, weakening their collective power.

Significance of Panipat

Aspect	Details
Significance of the Third Battle of Panipat	• It was fought on January 14, 1761, between the Maratha Empire and Afghan king Ahmad Shah Durrani. • Marked the decline of the Maratha Empire and paved the way for the rise of the British East India Company.
Panipat's Historical Importance	• Site of three major battles: 1526, 1556, and 1761. • Located in present-day Haryana, India.
Reasons for Battles Being Fought at Panipat	Reasons for Battles Being Fought at Panipat
Strategic Location	• Situated on the historic Grand Trunk Road, connecting the Indian subcontinent with Central Asia. • Served as a key route for invasions, migrations, and trade.
Proximity to Delhi	• Approximately 100 kilometers (62 miles) north of Delhi. • Control of Panipat was essential for protecting or dominating Delhi, a major seat of power.
Open Terrain	• Flat and open land ideal for large-scale battles with massive armies, cavalry, and artillery. • Absence of hills or forests allowed effective deployment and maneuvering of troops.
Conclusion	• The combination of strategic location, proximity to Delhi, and favorable battle terrain made Panipat a frequent site for decisive battles. • These battles significantly shaped India's political landscape, determining the rise and fall of empires.

Causes of the Maratha Failure and the British Success

Cause of Maratha Failure	Description
Inept Leadership	The leaders like Bajirao II and Daulatrao Scindia lacked vision and unity to counter the British.

Cause of Maratha Failure	Description
Fragmented Confederacy	The Maratha states operated independently, with leaders pursuing personal ambitions rather than unity.
Inferior Military	The Marathas neglected artillery and used outdated military strategies compared to the British.
Internal Rivalries	Lack of coordination and trust among Maratha chiefs weakened the confederacy.
Economic Weakness	The absence of industrial or trade infrastructure made the Maratha state financially unstable.
Cause of British Success	Description
British Diplomacy and Espionage	The British exploited divisions within the Maratha confederacy and maintained a superior intelligence network.
Superior British Strategy	The British leaders, such as Arthur Wellesley, Elphinstone, and John Malcolm, outmaneuvered Maratha forces through strategic planning.

Impact of Anglo-Maratha Wars and British Success:

Impact of British Success	Description
British Dominance	Secured a continuous stretch of territory from Calcutta to Madras. Gained control over the Carnatic region and key ports, strengthening their dominance in the Indian Ocean.
End of Maratha Sovereignty	The Maratha states were either annexed or reduced to vassals under British control, marking the end of the Maratha power.
Transformation of the Indian Economy	The British policies exploited Indian resources, reorienting the economy to focus on raw material exports for the British industries.
Introduction of British Law and Institutions	The Maratha defeat allowed the British to impose their administrative systems and legal framework across India.
Weakened Resistance	The fall of the Marathas weakened indigenous resistance, paving the way for British rule to spread across India.

4. British Expansion in North-West

Event	Details	Impact
War with Afghanistan (1838-42)	Part of the "Great Game" to counter Russian influence. Tripartite Treaty (1838): Between the British, Shah Shuja, and Sikhs. Shah Shuja was placed on the throne, but rebellion followed. The British restored Dost Mohammed after Afghan resistance.	Highlighted challenges of frontier policies. Marked a British retreat but recognized Afghanistan's independence. Strengthened British influence over frontier regions. Significant British loss of lives and resources (notably the Afghan disaster).
First Anglo-Afghan War (1839-42)	Forward policy by Lord Auckland and tripartite alliance. The British failed to maintain control after imposing Shah Shuja on the throne. Mass rebellion led to the British retreat; Dost Mohammed was reinstated.	Demonstrated the British vulnerability in Afghanistan. Highlighted the risks of frontier wars and overreach. Strengthened Afghan resistance while maintaining the British indirect influence over Afghanistan.
Second Anglo-Afghan War (1878-80)	Sher Ali's refusal to accept the British envoy escalated tensions. Treaty of Gandamak (1879): Yakub Khan accepted the British terms after Sher Ali fled.	Afghanistan's foreign policy was placed under British control. Permanent British resident established in Kabul. The British influence expanded, but the internal autonomy of Afghanistan was recognized. Marked a shift in British frontier policy toward cautious diplomacy under later viceroys.

Cause-Alliances and Consequences

Part	Details
Causes	Growing Russian influence in Persia alarmed the British, who feared Russian expansion into India.
Causes	The British need for a friendly Afghanistan to safeguard the north-west frontier.
Causes	Dost Mohammed of Afghanistan sought British help to regain Peshawar from the Sikhs, but the British rejected his request.
Causes	Dost Mohammed turned to Russia and Persia for support, leading to British intervention.
Alliances	Tripartite Treaty (1838): Agreement between the British, Sikhs, and Shah Shuja of Afghanistan. Shah Shuja would be restored to the throne with British and Sikh support.

Part	Details
Alliances	Shah Shuja was promised military aid from the Sikhs, while the British would stay in the background.
Alliances	Treaty of Gandamak (1879): Signed between the British and Yakub Khan, Shah Shuja's son, after the British invasion.
Consequences (Treaties)	First Anglo-Afghan War (1839-1842): After initial success in Kabul, the British were forced to withdraw, leading to a settlement where they recognized Dost Mohammed as the ruler.
Consequences (Treaties)	Treaty of Gandamak (1879): The Amir had to conduct foreign affairs with British advice, a permanent British resident was stationed in Kabul, and the British promised support against foreign aggression.
Consequences (Treaties)	The British intervention led to the abdication of Yakub Khan and the recapture of Kabul and Kandahar by the British.
Consequences (Treaties)	Post-World War I: Afghanistan gained full independence in foreign affairs in 1919.
Reasons for British Success	The use of military power, such as invading Kabul and establishing control over Afghanistan through treaties and military expeditions.
Reasons for British Success	Effective use of diplomacy and alliances, particularly with the Sikhs and Shah Shuja during the First Anglo-Afghan War.
Reasons for British Success	The British military superiority and strategic control of key regions, such as Kabul, after several military setbacks.
Reasons for British Success	Sher Ali's refusal to align fully with the British pushed them to invade, leading to a successful conquest.
Reasons for British Success	The British ability to manage internal Afghan politics, especially during the Second Anglo-Afghan War, through strategic military actions and treaties.
Impact of British Success	Establishment of British dominance in Afghan foreign affairs, particularly through the Treaty of Gandamak (1879).
Impact of British Success	Afghanistan became a buffer state between the British and Russian empires, preventing confrontation.

Part	Details
Impact of British Success	The British presence in Afghanistan led to the eventual decline of Afghan independence in foreign affairs, though they retained internal sovereignty.
Impact of British Success	Long-term influence over Afghan politics, with British interference in the succession and stability of Afghanistan until its full independence in 1919.
Impact of British Success	The British military actions established the region as part of the broader imperial strategies, influencing later colonial policies.

Sindh

Causes of British Interest in Sindh

Cause	Description
Trade Privileges	The English had trade facilities in Sindh from a Mughal farman of 1630, granting them privileges in the ports of Sindh.
Geopolitical Concerns	Fear of Napoleon's alliance with Tipu Sultan and the potential Russian invasion through Afghanistan.
Strategic Location	Sindh's position as a gateway to Afghanistan and its proximity to British India made it a key region for control.

Alliances and Treaties

Treaty	Date	Description
Treaty of 'Eternal Friendship'	June 1807	Sindh Amirs agreed to exclude the French, exchange agents, and profess eternal friendship with the British.
Treaty of 1832	1832	Allowed free passage for the British traders, confirmed earlier treaties, and resolved some border disputes.
Treaty with Lord Auckland (1838)	1838	Allowed the British troops in Sindh, the Amirs agreed to protect the British interests; Sindh became a British protectorate.
Tripartite Treaty of 1838	June 1838	Ranjit Singh, Amirs, and the British agreed on British mediation and securing the Amirs' financial obligations.

Treaty	Date	Description
Subsidiary Alliance (1839)	February 1839	The British subsidiary forces stationed in Sindh, the Amirs agreed to pay maintenance for British troops.
Annexation of Sindh (1843)	1843	Annexed post-Afghan War to consolidate British power. Sindh's strategic importance lay in controlling the Indus River and securing the north-west frontier. Enhanced British dominance over the Indus region. Strategic consolidation of territories vital for communication and trade. Strengthened British control in northwest India.

Reasons for British Success

Reason	Description
Diplomatic Manipulation	The British used diplomacy to create divisions among local rulers and negotiated favorable treaties. Eg. The Britishers used rivalries between Amirs of Sindh and neighboring powers, securing favorable treaties and weakening local resistance.
Superior Military Power	The British maintained a strong military presence and employed superior tactics, especially during conflicts. Eg. Against Sindh, Sir Charles Napier's forces defeated the Talpur rulers using superior artillery and tactics.
Divide and Rule	The British exploited internal rivalries and manipulated external threats to strengthen their position in Sindh. Eg. Britishers' exploiting internal rivalries among Talpur rulers, preventing a unified opposition to their annexation of Sindh.
Economic Leverage	The British secured economic advantages, including control over trade routes and tariffs, which weakened local rulers. Eg. The British controlled trade routes, particularly along the Indus River.
Deceptive Tactics	The British employed deceit, especially in relation to their role in the Afghan wars, to justify their annexation of Sindh. Eg. the British justified their intervention in Sindh as protection from Afghan threats, particularly after the First Anglo-Afghan War (1839-1842).

Consequences

Consequence	Description
British Protectorate	After 1838, Sindh became a British protectorate, with Amirs under British influence and control.
Annexation of Sindh	In 1843, Sindh was annexed by the British after the revolt of the Amirs, and the region was fully integrated into the British India.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Consequence	Description
Loss of Sovereignty	Amirs were forced to cede territories, cease minting coins, and accept the British control over their foreign relations.
Economic and Military Control	The British gained control over the Indus River, trade routes, and military presence in the region.
Imposition of British Rule	The British established a colonial administration, with Charles Napier appointed as the first governor of Sindh.

Punjab

Event	Details	Impact
First Anglo-Sikh War (1845-46)	Power vacuum after Ranjit Singh's death. Sikh army's crossing of the Sutlej justified British retaliation. Battles: Mudki, Ferozeshah, Aliwal, Sobraon.	Treaty of Lahore (1846): The war indemnity was Rs. 1.5 crore. Unable to pay, the Sikhs ceded the Jalandhar Doab plus the hill country (Kashmir/Hazara), and Kashmir was then sold to Gulab Singh for Rs. 75 lakh (Treaty of Amritsar). Paved the way for British interference in Punjab governance. Dissatisfaction among Sikhs with British policies and the treatment of regent Rani Jindan.
Second Anglo-Sikh War (1848-49)	British interference in Punjab after the Treaty of Bhairowal (1846). Mulraj's rebellion at Multan and widespread Sikh discontent. Major battles: Ramnagar, Chillianwala, Gujrat.	Annexation of Punjab (1849): Punjab was placed under British control. Sikh sovereignty ended. The Board of Administration (Lawrence Brothers) established British governance. The British expanded military and administrative control in northwest India. Sikh loyalty to the British during 1857 and subsequent campaigns.
Annexation of Punjab (1849)	Followed the defeat of Sikh forces in the Second Anglo-Sikh War. Punjab was annexed into the British Empire. Three-member board established to govern Punjab under Lawrence brothers, Henry and John, & Charles Mansel.	End of the last significant independent Indian state. Integration of Punjab into British India. Introduction of Western education, legal systems, railways, and canals. Neighboring and NE State Relations

Event	Causes	Consequences	Significance
Anglo - Nepalese War (1814 - 16)	Gurkha attacks on EIC police stations Nepal's expansionist ambitions clashed with British interests.	Treaty of Sagauli (1816): Nepal ceded Garhwal and Kumaon, and abandoned claims on Terai and Sikkim. Accepted as a British Resident but retained autonomy. Gurkhas began serving in the British Army.	The British Empire expanded to the Himalayas. Improved trade with Central Asia. Secured key hill stations like Shimla, Mussoorie, and Nainital.
First Anglo - Burmese War (1824 - 26)	Burmese expansion towards Bengal. Conflict over Assam, Cachar, and Manipur. Ahom Dynasty ruled Assam but was challenged by Burmese advances.	Treaty of Yandabo (1826): Burma abandoned claims over Assam, Cachar, Jaintia, and Manipur. Purandhar Singh was made king of the Ahom state. Ahom revolt led to the eventual annexation of Assam (1874).	It marked the beginning of British control over Northeast India. Established British dominance in Assam and surrounding territories. Improved trade prospects.
Second Anglo-Burmese War (1852 - 53)	British interest in Upper Burma's timber resources and access to Burmese markets. Lord Dalhousie's imperialist policy.	The British occupied Pegu. Established control over Lower Burma. Set the stage for complete annexation under Dalhousie.	Strengthened the British economic and strategic hold in Burma. Enhanced access to valuable natural resources.
Third Anglo-Burmese War (1885)	King Thibaw fined British timber companies. The French plan to link Mandalay to French territories via railway. Lord Dufferin ordered an invasion.	Annexation of Upper Burma. Burma was fully incorporated into British India as a province.	Completed the British domination over Burma. Secured control over trade routes and strategic regions. Strengthened colonial expansion in Southeast Asia.
Anglo - Tibetan Expedition (1904)	Tibet's refusal to negotiate trade with British India. Concerns over Russian influence in Tibet.	Treaty of Lhasa (1904): The British gained trade privileges and a lease of the Chumbi Valley for 75 years.	Opened trade routes between British India and Tibet. Strengthened the British presence in the Himalayan region. Reduced Russian influence concerns in Tibet.

Civil Uprisings

Civil uprisings in colonial India were predominantly led by deposed rulers, former officials, landlords, poligars, and religious leaders, who were often supported by disenfranchised peasants, unemployed artisans, and disbanded soldiers.

The focus was on local resistance to British authority, as opposed to large-scale military confrontations, with the aim of regaining lost power, preserving local autonomy, and opposing British exploitation.

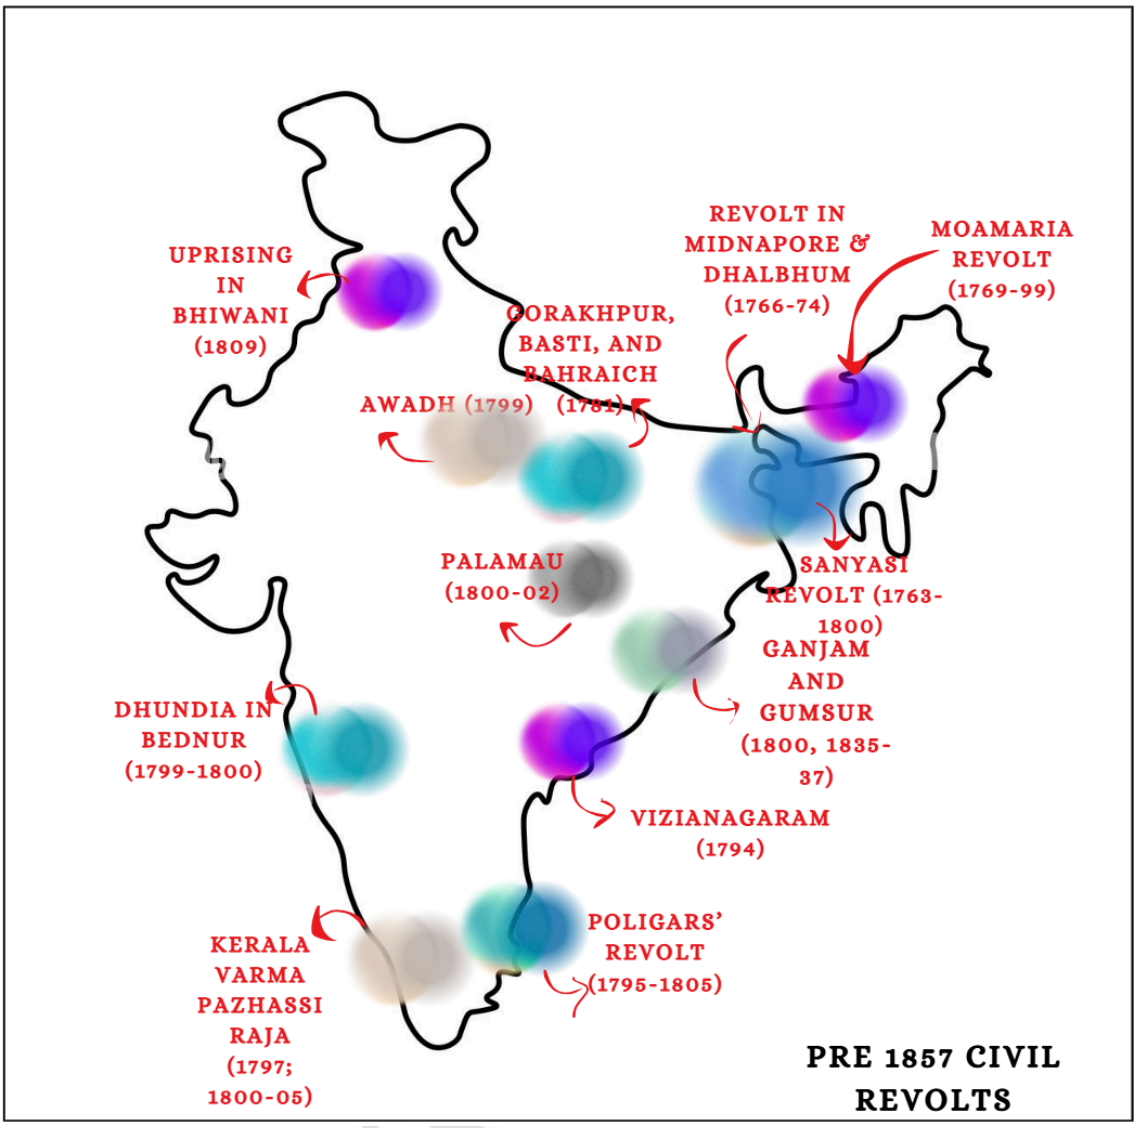

Civil Uprisings
Pre-Colonial Protests	High land revenue demands, corrupt practices, and harsh officials.
Colonial Rule Policies	• Focus on revenue extraction. • No grievance redressal mechanisms. • Colonial laws favored landlords, merchants, and moneylenders.
Tribal Grievances	Encroachment on tribal polity caused violent resistance.
Major Causes of Civil Uprisings	Major Causes of Civil Uprisings
Economic Exploitation and Revenue Settlements	The British policies like Permanent Settlement, Ryotwari, and Mahalwari led to land alienation, high taxation, and loss of traditional land rights. Eg. Santhal Rebellion (1855-56), where Santhals were exploited by moneylenders, traders, and landlords due to revenue settlements.
Interference in Tribal Customs and Religious Beliefs	The British legal and revenue systems disrupted tribal socio-religious life. The spread of Christian missionaries caused resentment. Eg. Khond Uprising (1837-56, Odisha) where Resistance to suppression of human sacrifice and Christian missionary activity.
Displacement of Traditional Elites and Chiefs	The British expansion dethroned local rulers, zamindars, and jagirdars. The tribal leaders and forest chiefs lost status and income.
Loss of Local Leadership	Traditional leaders sought to restore pre-colonial systems of governance and social order.
Exploitation by Moneylenders and Traders	The British policies enabled moneylenders and merchants to exploit peasants and tribals, leading to Indebtedness, usurious interest rates, and dispossession.
Denial of Traditional Rights and Access to Resources	Forest laws and land acquisition policies deprived tribals of forest produce, grazing rights, and shifting cultivation. Eg. Ho and Kol Rebellions protested the loss of forest rights and land to outsiders.

Civil Uprisings
Administrative Corruption and Oppression	The British officials and their Indian agents often indulged in corruption and brutality, worsening local suffering.
Religious and Cultural Insensitivity	The British policies were often perceived as threatening native religious and cultural practices. Eg. Mappila Revolts (1836-1921) had religious undertones due to the perceived threat to Islam.
General Characteristics and Limitations	General characteristics and limitations.
Traditional Leadership	Often led by local chiefs, zamindars, or dispossessed rulers.
Local and Sporadic	Uprisings were localized and focused on specific grievances.
Backward-Looking	Aimed to restore old privileges or resist the British innovations.
Lack of Coordination	No all-India character or unified strategy.
Spontaneous Nature	Mostly reactionary and lacking modern political ideology.

Aspect	Civil Uprisings Before 1857	1857 Revolt (Sepoy Mutiny)
Causes	• Economic exploitation (high taxes, unfair revenue policies). • Loss of political power and prestige (Eg. dethroning of local rulers, annexation of territories). • Cultural and religious grievances (Eg. introduction of foreign practices, religious impositions, disrespect to local customs). • Resistance to the British interference in local governance (Eg. British meddling in princely states).	• Discontent with British military reforms (Eg. greased cartridges and changes to religious practices). • Harsh economic policies leading to widespread poverty. • Disrespect for Indian culture and religion (cattle grease controversy). • Political annexations (Doctrine of Lapse, annexation of Oudh).
Features	• Often limited to a particular region or community (Eg. Paika Rebellion, Bareilly Uprising). • Led by local leaders (Eg. Velu Thampi, Bakshi Jagabandhu, Gopal Singh). • Focus on specific grievances (Eg. salt taxes, zamindari oppression). • Most uprisings were sporadic, lacked central leadership, and often had localized objectives.	• A national-scale uprising, involving soldiers (sepoys) from various regions and communities. • Unifying cause against British control, especially religious and military disrespect. • Strong participation of both military personnel and civilians (peasants, rulers, zamindars). • Initial successes, especially in Delhi and Meerut, but later suppression.
Leadership	• Led by regional chieftains, military leaders, or local intellectuals. • Examples: Diwan Velu Thampi, Gopal Singh, Bakshi Jagabandhu, and Raja of Kutch.	• Led by military leaders like Mangal Pandey, Begum Hazrat Mahal, Rani Lakshmibai, and Nana Saheb, with significant participation of civilians. • A diverse leadership with some prominent royals and soldiers.
Nature of Resistance	• Military or armed resistance in specific regions (fortresses, zamindari rebellions). • Guerrilla tactics, ambushes, and surprise attacks used by local rebels. • Some revolts were based on religious and cultural ideas (Eg. Wahabi movement).	• Full-scale military rebellion, involving major battles, sieges, and warfare. • Rebellion spread across northern and central India, involving both military and civilian uprisings. • Participants included both Hindus and Muslims, united in their opposition to British rule.
Reasons for Failure	• Lack of coordination and central leadership. • Local uprisings were often isolated and lacked widespread popular support. • The British military superiority and strategic advantage (better artillery and resources).	• Lack of unity among rebels (different regions, languages, and social groups). • The British military reinforcements and superior artillery. • Lack of proper strategy and leadership coordination.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Civil Uprisings Before 1857	1857 Revolt (Sepoy Mutiny)
	• Defections of key local leaders (Eg. Maharaja of Travancore).	• Betrayal by some local rulers (Eg. Nizam of Hyderabad).
Impact	• Some uprisings led to temporary victories (Eg. Paika Rebellion, Bareilly), but they were ultimately crushed by the British forces. • Contributed to the growing resentment against British rule but lacked national-scale unity.	• Significant impact on the British policies, leading to major reforms in administration (Eg. dissolution of the East India Company, direct British rule under the Crown). • Marked the beginning of a national resistance against British colonial rule, setting the stage for future independence movements.
Outcome	• Most uprisings were brutally suppressed by the British forces. • Some local leaders were forced into exile or killed. • Some uprisings had limited concessions (Eg. Paika Rebellion saw tax remissions).	• The British re-established control after a prolonged struggle. • The British Crown assumed direct control over India, ending the East India Company's rule. • Despite failure, it sowed the seeds for the Indian freedom struggle.

The Revolt Of 1857

PYQs

[2019] The 1857 Uprising was the culmination of the recurrent big and small local rebel- lions that had occurred in the preceding hundred years of British rule. Elucidate. (10)
[2016] Explain how the Uprising of 1857 constitutes an important watershed in the evolution of British policies towards colonial India. (12.5)

The Revolt of 1857: A Turning Point in Indian History

It began as a spontaneous uprising fueled by widespread grievances against the British East India Company's policies and quickly turned into a large-scale rebellion. The simmering discontent burst in the form of a violent storm in 1857 which shook the British empire in India to its very foundations.

Perspectives on the Revolt

1. Jawaharlal Nehru described the revolt as primarily a feudal uprising, with some elements of nationalism.
2. V.D. Savarkar hailed it as the First War of Independence, emphasizing its importance in India's struggle for freedom.
3. R.C. Majumdar, however, argued that the revolt was neither the first, nor a national movement, nor a true war for independence.

Causes of the Revolt

Cause	Characteristic	Examples
Political	Annexation policies created resentment among Indian rulers.	The right of Succession was denied. Doctrine of Lapse: Satara (1848), Sambalpur (1850), Udaipur (1852), Nagpur (1853), Jhansi (1854). Subsidiary Alliance.
Political	Discontent among sepoys due to discriminatory policies.	General Service Enlistment Act; Greased cartridges for Enfield rifles.
Political	Decline of traditional leadership fueled dissatisfaction.	The Mughal Emperor's diminishing power; Erosion of zamindar influence due to heavy taxes.
Political	Indirectly, British rule led to insecurity among Indian princes.

Cause	Characteristic	Examples
Economic	Harsh taxation and revenue systems burdened peasants and zamindars.	Permanent Settlement and other land revenue policies.
Economic	Decline of indigenous industries led to unemployment.	Free trade policies favored British imports over Indian handicrafts.
Economic	Forced cultivation of cash crops displaced food crops, worsening poverty.	Indigo and opium cultivation caused famines.
Economic	Loss of patronage affected artisans and scholars.
Socio-Religious	The British reforms were seen as interference in Indian traditions.	Abolition of sati; Support to widow marriage; Promotion of Western education.
Socio-Religious	Religious insensitivity led to widespread anger.	Use of cow and pig fat in greased cartridges offended Hindus and Muslims.
Socio-Religious	Tax Mosque and temple lands.	Religious Disabilities Act 1850.
Socio-Religious	Missionary activities caused fear of losing cultural and religious identities.	Spread of Christianity and forced conversions.
Military	Indian soldiers faced racial discrimination and poor treatment.	Low pay, inferior treatment compared to British soldiers.
Military	Religious controversies led to mistrust and outrage.	Introduction of Enfield rifles with greased cartridges.
Administrative	Corruption and inefficiency alienated the Indian population.	Disregard for local customs and administrative corruption.
Administrative	Imposition of British laws disrupted traditional systems.	Dismantling Mughal governance and introduction of foreign legal systems.
Outside Events Influence	This revolt coincided with certain outside events in which the British suffered serious losses.	Crimean Wars (1854-56).

The Revolt of 1857 stands as a monumental event in Indian history. While it failed to achieve its immediate goals, it sowed the seeds of a broader national consciousness and highlighted the deep-seated resentment against British rule.

Outbreak and Early Gains by Rebels

1. Mutiny in Meerut and Capture of Delhi:
   a. The revolt began on May 10, 1857, in Meerut when Indian sepoys refused to use greased cartridges. Their subsequent court-martial and harsh punishments sparked violent resistance.
   b. The mutineers marched to Delhi, killed British officers, and proclaimed Bahadur Shah II as the Emperor of India, a symbolic unifying figure for the rebellion.
2. Spread of the Uprising:
   a. The revolt quickly extended to northern and central India, engulfing key regions like Kanpur, Lucknow, Jhansi, and Gwalior.
   b. Local rulers, discontented sepoys, and peasants joined forces against the British, with prominent leaders such as Rani Lakshmibai, Tantia Tope, and Nana Sahib leading the charge.

March 29, 1857	Mangal Pandey wounds two British officers.
April 8, 1857	Execution of Mangal Pandey.
May 10, 1857	Mutiny and murders at Meerut.
May 11, 1857	Attack on Delhi by mutineers.
May 13, 1857	Bahadur Shah II was declared leader of the rebellion.
June 6, 1857	Siege of Cawnpore begins.
July 31, 1857	Clemency of Lord Canning (policy declared).
December 6, 1857	Tatya Tope defeated at Cawnpore.
March 25, 1858	Battle of Jhansi.
June 17, 1858	Death of Rani Lakshmibai of Jhansi.
November 1, 1858	Transfer of administration from EIC to the British Crown.

1. Siege of Lucknow Residency:
   a. Rebels surrounded the British Residency in Lucknow, leading to a prolonged siege.
   b. British forces, first led by Sir Henry Lawrence and later by Sir Colin Campbell, eventually broke the siege at great human cost.
2. Key Battles:
   a. In Kanpur, Nana Sahib led the rebels in fierce fighting against British forces.
   b. At Gwalior, Rani Lakshmibai displayed extraordinary bravery but ultimately fell in battle, marking a significant setback for the rebellion.

Reasons of Failure

Reason	Explanation
Brutal Suppression by the British	The British used harsh measures to crush the rebellion, deterring future uprisings in the same areas. Eg. Massacre at Kanpur or Siege of Cawnpore.
Indian Rulers Supporting the British	Key Indian rulers, including Scindia of Gwalior, Holkar of Indore, and the Maharaja of Kashmir, supported the British.
Absence of All-India Participation	Large regions, including eastern, southern, and western India, remained unaffected by the revolt.
Non-Participation by All Classes	Economic interests led moneylenders and merchants to support the British; educated Indians favored British modernization.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Reason	Explanation
Weakness of Rebel Leadership	Leaders like Kunwar Singh lacked military expertise and sufficient resources for prolonged resistance.
Lack of International Support	Rebels were isolated and did not receive assistance from foreign nations. Eg. the Mughal Emperor and other rebels reached out to Persians and Afghans, but they declined any support.
Poor Organization	Lack of centralized leadership and coordination among rebels; British had well-trained officers.
Poor Arms and Equipment	Rebels used basic weapons, while the British had advanced arms like the Enfield Rifle and muskets.
No Unified Ideology	The revolt lacked a cohesive ideology and was driven by diverse grievances and goals. Eg. leaders like Begum Hazrat Mahal fought for their personal sovereignty, while others, like Nana Saheb, sought to restore the Maratha Empire.
British Countermeasures and Strategies	Military Response: ○ The British deployed massive reinforcements from Britain and other parts of the empire, leveraging their superior military strength and advanced weaponry. ○ Major battles and punitive expeditions were conducted to systematically crush the resistance. Divide-and-Rule Tactics: ○ To weaken the unity of the rebellion, the British employed a strategy of dividing landholders and peasants. Promises were made to return estates to landholders loyal to the British, while rebels faced dispossession and harsh reprisals. Systematic Suppression: ○ Key rebel strongholds, including Delhi, Kanpur, and Jhansi, were retaken through relentless campaigns. ○ By mid-1858, the British regained control, marking the end of the revolt.

Consequences of the Revolt of 1857

While the rebellion was unsuccessful, its impact resonated far beyond its immediate suppression, shaping the course of colonial governance and Indian nationalism.

Aspect	Impact
End of East India Company Rule	In 1858 the Crown took over (Queen's Proclamation, 1 Nov 1858), but Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India only in 1876 (Royal Titles Act 1876, announced at the Delhi Durbar of 1 January 1877).
Reorganization of the Army	Ratio of British to Indian soldiers increased; Recruitment favored Sikhs and Gurkhas; Bengal reduced enlistment.
Administrative Reforms	Formation of the Indian Civil Service (ICS); Standardized policies across India.

Aspect	Impact
Policy of Divide and Rule	It became a key strategy to ensure prolonged colonial control.
End of the Mughal Empire	Bahadur Shah II exiled to Rangoon, symbolizing the final fall of the Mughal dynasty.
Economic Impact	Heavier taxes and tariffs imposed to recover costs; Disruption of agriculture and urban economies.
Social and Cultural Changes	Increased racial and cultural tensions; Educational reforms aimed to create loyal, Western-educated Indians.
Nationalist Awakening	Demonstrated united resistance and inspired future independence movements.

Aspect of Impact	Details
Change in Political Nature	• Emergence of a "Conservative Brand of Liberalism" (Thomas Metcalf). • End of reformist policies; shift to autocratic governance.
Social Deterioration	• Classes and communities turned against each other. • Rise in racial hatred; English newspapers depicted Indians as "subhuman" and "unworthy of trust." • Justification of oppression through the concept of the "White Man's Burden."
Foundation for the Future	• Sparked the awakening of a consciousness for a united India. • Inspired future leaders and movements for independence.
Impact on British Policies	• Reassessment of colonial policies. • Introduction of the Indian Councils Act, 1861, expanding Indian representation in governance.
Cultural and Religious Awakening	• Revival of national pride and emergence of reform movements. • Eg.: Dayanand Saraswati and the Arya Samaj.
International Attention	• The international press highlighted the oppressive nature of British rule. • Contributed to the rise of anti-imperialist sentiments globally.

The Good Governance Act of 1858

The Government of India Act of 1858, also called the Good Governance Act, was a direct response to the revolt, aimed at addressing administrative shortcomings and consolidating British authority.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Characteristic
Transfer of Power	All powers held by the East India Company were transferred to the British Crown.
Creation of the Secretary of State for India	A cabinet-level position was established to oversee Indian affairs, centralizing authority under the British Parliament.
Abolition of Company Rule	The Court of Directors and Board of Control were abolished.
Introduction of a Uniform Legal System	A legal system based on English law was introduced for uniformity in justice across India.

Different Perspective on 1857 Revolt

Nationalist Perspective	Colonial Perspective
Symbol of Indian Unity: Seen as a symbol of unity among Indians against British rule, transcending regional and cultural differences.	Sepoy Mutiny: Referred to as a mutiny by sepoys rather than a widespread uprising.
Awakening of Nationalism: Key event that awakened nationalist sentiments and desire for independence.	Law and Order Issue: Viewed as a law-and-order problem to maintain British control.
Inspiration for Freedom Fighters: Leaders and participants inspired future freedom struggles in India.	Failure of Indian Leadership: Portrayed Indian leaders as self-serving and divided.
Anti-Imperialist Stand: Highlighted resistance against British imperialism and exploitation.	Necessity of British Rule: Reinforced belief in British rule as a civilizing force.
Struggle for Rights: Seen as a fight for basic rights, dignity, and self-rule denied under colonialism.	Religious Factors: Attributed to religious fanaticism, citing the cartridge controversy.
Catalyst for Freedom Movement: Sparked future movements against British rule, leading to organized independence efforts.	Martial Races Theory: Strengthened the belief in categorizing certain Indian communities as martial or inferior.
Revival of Indian Identity: Re-affirmed Indian identity, culture, and traditions suppressed under British rule.	Divide and Rule Policy: Justified the policy to maintain divisions among communities.
Demand for Social Reform: Raised voices against social evils like caste discrimination and widow remarriage.	Resurrection of British Power: Demonstrated British ability to quell dissent.
Legacy of Resistance: Inspired subsequent independence movements against colonialism.	Reforms and Modernization: Highlighted reforms and modernization as benefits of British rule.

Tribal Movement

The uprisings took place in both the mainland and the north-eastern regions, each with distinct characteristics, but with common threads of resistance against colonial exploitation and cultural alienation.

Characteristics of Tribal Revolts:

1. Tribal Identity: Solidarity was often driven by a strong sense of tribal identity and ethnic ties.
2. Imposition of Laws: The resentment against colonial laws that disrupted traditional socio-economic systems.
3. Alienation: Loss of tribal rights, land alienation, and economic exploitation.
4. Messiah-like Figures: Many uprisings were led by leaders seen as messianic figures, offering hope of liberation.
5. Outdated Arms: Tribal forces often had outdated weapons, making their struggles difficult against the British military power.

Tribal Uprisings during the British Rule:

Difference Between Mainland Movements and North-East Frontier Tribal Movements

Aspect	Mainland Tribal Rebellions	North-East Frontier Tribal Movements
Land Ownership and Settlements	Impacted heavily by British land settlements, disrupting joint ownership and social structures. Eg. Santhal Rebellion (1855-56), Kol Rebellion (1831-32).	Tribals generally retained control over land and forests; Struggles were not land-centric. Eg. Khasi Rebellion (1829-33), Lushai Hills Revolt (1895).
Key Issues	Loss of land due to settled agriculture, influx of non-tribals, and restrictions on shifting cultivation. Eg. Munda Uprising (1899-1900) highlighted loss of land and economic exploitation.	Focused on political autonomy or independence, with less emphasis on land disputes. Eg. Naga Movement (1947 onwards).

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Mainland Tribal Rebellions	North-East Frontier Tribal Movements
Forests and Resources	Forests were reserved by the government, restricting tribals' access to timber, grazing, and forest produce. Eg. Bhil Revolts against forest reservation policies.	Limited interference in forests by the British administration, reducing resource-related grievances.
Cultural Interference	British officials and Christian missionaries condemned and interfered with tribal customs and traditions. Eg. The Ulgulan Movement (Munda Rebellion) resisted such interference.	Efforts of Christian missionaries were significant but faced lesser resistance compared to the mainland. Eg. Naga Christian movements that coexisted with autonomy demands.
Economic Exploitation	Exploited by police, traders, and moneylenders (primarily outsiders), worsening economic conditions. Eg. The Santhal Rebellion was a response to moneylender exploitation.	Economic exploitation by outsiders was less pronounced compared to mainland tribals.
Nationalist Struggle	Some mainland revolts aligned with the broader nationalist struggle against colonial rule. Eg. Tana Bhagat Movement (Oraons, 1914-15) supported Gandhian ideas.	Movements were largely independent of nationalist struggles, focusing on autonomy. Eg. Naga Club petitioning Simon Commission (1929) for self-determination.
Duration and Intensity	Revolts were sporadic but intense, often short-lived. Eg. The Santhal Rebellion was brutally suppressed within a year.	Revolts continued for a longer duration and were more sustained. Eg. Naga insurgency, which persisted post-independence.
Social Movements	Influenced by sanskritization or attempts to emulate higher caste traditions. Eg. Bhagat movements among Oraons and Mundas aimed to adopt caste Hindu practices.	De-sanskritization movements aimed to preserve distinct tribal identities. Eg. Meitei Movement during Church and Maharaja's rule (1891-1941).
Movements	The Santhal Rebellion (1855-56), Munda Uprising (1899-1900), Kol Rebellion (1831-32), Bhil Revolts, Tana Bhagat Movement (1914-15).	Naga Movement for autonomy (1947 onwards), Khasi Rebellion (1829-33), Lushai Hills Revolt (1895), Meitei Movements (1891-1941).

Tribal Revolts

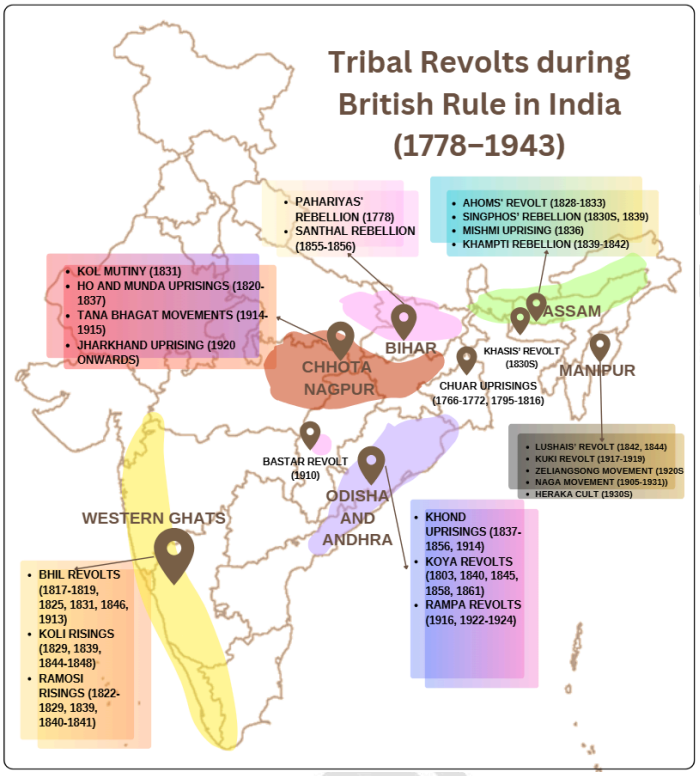

Aspect	Details
Major Causes	Economic Exploitation: Heavy taxes, economic distress. Eg. Bhil Revolts, Chuar Uprisings. Land Alienation: Tribal lands were often transferred to outsiders. Eg. Kol Mutiny, Ho and Munda Uprisings.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
	Cultural Alienation: Suppression of traditional practices like human sacrifice (Eg. Khond Uprisings) and interference in tribal lifestyles. Forest Policies: Government reserved forests, restricting tribals' access to resources and banning shifting cultivation. Indian Forests Act (1878) restricted tribal access to forests and natural resources. Eg. Bhil Revolts- Protested against restricted forest access. Exploitation by Outsiders: Moneylenders, traders and British Officials exploited tribals economically and socially. Eg. Munda Uprising - Protested against Dikus(Outsiders) and moneylenders. Religious Interference: Missionaries undermined tribal beliefs and practices, causing resentment among them. Eg. The Khasi Rebellion resented British interference in religious practices.
Methods Adopted	Armed Resistance: Tribes used outdated arms, guerrilla tactics, and ambushes. Eg. Koya Revolts, Rampa Revolts. Religious Movements: Leaders often adopted spiritual or messianic roles. Eg. Birsa Munda, Jatra Bhagat. Community Mobilization: Tribes unified under common causes, emphasizing solidarity and tribal identity. Eg. Santhal Rebellion, Ahoms' Revolt. Economic Resistance: Refusal to pay taxes, destruction of records. Eg. Tribals during Santhal Rebellion burned revenue Record. Gandhian Methods: Boycott of British goods and administration along with peaceful protests and Satyagraha (Eg. Tana Bhagat movement(1914 - 15) adopted Gandhian Principles of Non-cooperation and peaceful resistance). Legal Representation: Tribes used petitions, appealed to colonial courts, and negotiated with authorities to challenge exploitative policies like land alienation, forest laws. Eg.Tribal leaders protested against the Indian Forest Act of 1878, during the Simon Commission. Migration and Resettlement: Moving away from oppressive areas. Eg. Tibers migrated to avoid exploitation as seen in khond resettlements.
British Policy	Suppression: Use of military force and punitive measures to quell uprisings. Eg. Rampa Revolts, Khasi Revolts. Divide and Rule: Exploiting tribal rivalries to weaken resistance. Eg. Naga and Kuki divisions. Economic Exploitation: Imposition of exploitative taxes, policies, and zamindari systems. Eg. Bastar Revolt.

Tribal Revolts across India

These revolts were not just against British rule but also against the broader socio-economic disruptions caused by colonialism. The resistance was both political and cultural, aimed at preserving the autonomy and identity of tribal communities.

Peasant Movements (1857-1947)

Causes of Impoverishment:

1. Colonial Economic Policies: Exploitative economic strategies by the British.
2. Decline of Handicrafts: Traditional industries suffered due to imported British goods led to overcrowding of land
3. New Land Revenue Systems: The introduction of new taxation methods burdened farmers.
4. Colonial Administrative & Judicial Systems: These systems were designed to serve colonial interests, further oppressing local populations.

Exploitative Practices:

1. High Rents & Illegal Levies: Farmers faced exorbitant rents and unfair taxes.
2. Arbitrary Evictions & Unpaid Labor: Forced labor and arbitrary evictions led to widespread hardship.
3. Impact of Moneylenders: Moneylenders often exploited peasants through usurious lending practices.

Transformation to Tenants:

1. Many farmers became tenant cultivators or landless laborers, reducing their independence.
2. Resistance to exploitation grew as a result of increasing economic hardship.

Peasantry under Colonialism:

Early Peasant Movements
Indigo Revolt (1859-60)	Leaders: Digambar Biswas & Bisnu Biswas Location: Nadia District Causes: • Exploitation by Planters: Forced cultivation of indigo, low wages, and unfair contracts. • Indentured Labor: "Neelkuthi Nama" imposed free labor. • Abuses: Manipulation of scales and use of armed thugs ("lathiyals"). • Peasant Debt: High-interest loans trapped peasants. • Government Neglect: Complaints ignored, corrupt courts. Outcome: Indigo Commission (1860) – The revolt led to an official inquiry, resulting in reforms to the indigo system.
Pabna Agrarian Leagues (1870-1880)	Location: Yusufshahi Pargana, Pabna District, Bengal Causes • Exploitation by Zamindars: High rents, eviction of tenants, and forced expulsions. • Legal Challenges: Costly litigation in courts, delays in resolving disputes. • Seizure of Property: Forced eviction and confiscation of cattle and crops. • Denial of Rights: Prevented tenants from acquiring occupancy rights under Act X of 1859. Movement • Resistance: Led by peasants using legal tactics, including rent strikes and organized resistance through agrarian leagues. • Limited Violence: Primarily peaceful and legal forms of struggle. Outcome • Bengal Tenancy Act (1885): The movement led to legal protection for tenants' rights and reforms in tenancy law.
Deccan Riots (1874)	Location: Deccan Region Causes • Ryotwari System: Heavy taxation burden on peasants. • Exploitation by Moneylenders: Outsider moneylenders (Marwaris & Gujaratis) exploited peasants. • Cotton Price Crash: Decline in cotton prices after the American Civil War (1864). • Increase in Land Revenue: The Government raised land revenue by 50% in 1867. Nature of Movement • Economic Issues: Protest against oppressive taxes and exploitation. • Target: Foreign planters and indigenous zamindars. • Methods: Social boycotts and attacks on moneylenders, with limited violence. • Limited Territorial Reach: The protests were localized, with limited geography. • No Continuity: The movement lacked long-term organization and struggle. • Peasant Awareness: Peasants developed an understanding of their legal rights. Weaknesses • Limited Ideology: No new ideology emerged in the 19th century to challenge colonialism.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Early Peasant Movements
	• Old Societal Outlook: The movement was framed within traditional societal structures, lacking a broader vision. • Easily Pacified: The British were able to suppress the movement by passing laws like the Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act (1879). Outcome • Deccan Agriculturists Relief Act (1879): The Act was passed to alleviate the grievances of the peasants.
Limitations	• Peasants emerged as the main force fighting for their own demands, focusing on economic issues. • The movements were directed against foreign planters, zamindars, and moneylenders. • There was no focus on ending colonialism or the exploitation system itself. • These movements lacked long-term organization or continuity. • Peasants asserted their legal rights, but lacked an understanding of colonialism and did not have a new ideology.
Later Movements	Champaran Movement (1917) Causes • European planters forced peasants to grow indigo on 3/20 of their land. • High rents and illegal dues were demanded from the peasants. • Peasants were forced to sell indigo at prices fixed by the Europeans. Movement • Leaders: Mahatma Gandhi, Rajendra Prasad, Mazhar Ul Haw, Mahadev Desai, Narhari Parekh, and J.B. Kripalani. • Committee: A committee was formed to investigate the situation. • Outcome: Tinkathia system was abolished, and a compromise was reached with the planters, ensuring a 25% return to the peasants. Significance: First Civil Disobedience Movement in India, marking a significant step in the Indian freedom struggle.
Later Movements	Kheda Movement (1918) Causes • Crop failures led to poor harvests, and peasants were unable to pay taxes. • Land was confiscated if taxes were not paid. Movement • Leaders: Mahatma Gandhi, Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, Narhari Parekh, Mohanlal Pandya, Ravi Shankar Vyas. • Sardar Patel organized a tax revolt against the oppressive taxation system. • Social Boycott: Indians who sought to buy confiscated land were ostracized. Outcome • Tax was suspended for a year. • Tax was reduced in the subsequent year, providing relief to the farmers.

Early Peasant Movements
Later Movements	The Kisan Sabha Movement: In the post-1857 period, the Awadh taluqdars reasserted control, exploiting peasants. The First World War worsened conditions. Kisan sabhas were set up in 1918. Notable leaders included Baba Ramchandra, Nehru, and Malaviya.
Later Movements	Eka Movement (1921): Peasants in UP protested against high rents and oppression by thikadars. The movement, initially peaceful, turned violent with clashes against police and landlords before being suppressed.
Later Movements	Mappila Revolt (1921): Mappila tenants in Malabar protested oppression by Hindu landlords. The movement merged with the Khilafat agitation, but communal tensions led to its suppression by December 1921.
Later Movements	Bardoli Satyagraha (1926): Led by Vallabhbhai Patel, peasants resisted a 30% revenue hike. The movement achieved success when an independent tribunal agreed the hike was unjustified.
Later Movements	Kirti Kisan Movement (1928) Leaders: • Sohan Singh Josh: Founder of the Kirti Kisan Sabha. • Bhai Santokh Singh: A Ghadar leader who started the movement, having learned Soviet methods. Ideology: • Leftist, with a focus on the rights of workers and peasants. • Supported by the Ghadar Party and its funding. • Kirti Kisan Sabha aimed for complete independence (resolution passed). Activities: • Publication: Monthly magazine 'Kirti' in Punjabi, promoting the movement. • Sohan Singh Josh was tried in the Meerut Conspiracy Case and later the Sabha was declared unlawful under the Criminal Law Amendment Act, 1908. Resolution: Demanded complete independence for India, with a leftist perspective. All India Kisan Congress/Sabha (1936) Leaders: • President: Swami Sahajanand Saraswati. • General Secretary: N.G. Ranga. • Other Influencers: Indulal Yagnik. Influence: The Kisan Sabha influenced the Indian National Congress (INC) manifesto for the 1937 elections at the Faizpur Congress. Objective: Focused on addressing agrarian issues and promoting the rights of peasants within the broader freedom movement.
Later Movements	Peasant Activity in Provinces (1930s): Peasant movements were influenced by the Great Depression and Civil Disobedience Movement. Various provinces, including Kerala, Andhra, Bihar, and Punjab, witnessed anti-zamindari activity.

Early Peasant Movements
Post-War Phase	Tebhaga Movement (1946): Sharecroppers in Bengal demanded a two-thirds share of the crops (Tebhaga). Despite repression, the movement had significant support from peasants, especially in North Bengal.
Post-War Phase	Telangana Movement (1946-48): A major peasant guerrilla war against feudal exploitation in the Hyderabad state. It led to the abolition of forced labor and land redistribution.
Peasant Movements Assessment	Mobilisation of Masses • Tebhaga Movement: Mobilized sharecroppers and small farmers to demand a reduction in the share of produce claimed by landlords. Agrarian Reforms & Land Redistribution • Pabna Agrarian League: Led to the Bengal Tenancy Act (1885), which protected tenants' rights. • Kisan Sabha Movement: Played a key role in the Awadh Rent Amendment Act, addressing tenant rights and reforms. Socioeconomic Transformation • Bardoli Satyagraha (1928): Not only challenged oppressive revenue policies but also empowered women to actively participate in the resistance, thus transforming gender roles in rural India. Political Awakening • Kheda Satyagraha (1918): Led by Gandhi, it instilled political consciousness among peasants, fostering unity and solidarity against colonial taxation and policies. Contribution to Nonviolent Resistance • Movements like the Eka Movement, Pabna Agrarian League, and Champaran Satyagraha exemplified the power of nonviolent resistance, demonstrating peasants' ability to organize and resist colonial oppression. Legacy & Inspiration • Deccan Riots and Indigo Revolts emphasized the realization of land rights and the demand for social justice, laying the groundwork for later movements and contributing to the broader struggle for Indian independence.

Limitations of Peasant Revolts:

Limitation	Description
Restorative Rebellion	Revolts were aimed at restoring older compromises, often led by disaffected local rulers, such as attempts to restore the Mughal compromise.
Violence and Lawlessness	The violent nature of revolts, including incidences of social banditry, gave the British a pretext to suppress them easily under the guise of lawlessness.
Religious Ideologies	Religion played a key role in defining ideologies, often targeting upper castes or other communities. Eg. Titu Mir's movement in Bengal.
Community-Based Mobilization	Mobilization was largely restricted to community lines, limiting geographical outreach.

Limitation	Description
Focus on Tribal Past	Many revolts, such as the Santhal revolt, strived to protect an imagined golden past and hereditary tribal leadership.
Perception by Nationalists	Nationalists often labeled these movements as apolitical, sidelining the real issues of poor peasantry when integrating them into the freedom struggle.
Lack of Unified Leadership	The absence of centralized leadership led to fragmented and less effective resistance efforts.
Confined to Specific Areas	Revolts were typically localized and lacked nationwide coordination, making them easier to contain.

Contribution of Post-1857 Peasant Revolts in the Indian Freedom Struggle

Category	Key Features
Awakening of National Consciousness	Peasant revolts exposed British exploitation, fostering national awareness and unity. Eg. the Indigo Revolt in 1859-60 in Bengal.
Resistance Against British Policies	Revolts protested exploitative land revenue systems (Zamindari, Ryotwari), high taxes, indebtedness, and unjust agricultural practices. Eg. the Deccan Riots in 1875 in Maharashtra.
Role in the Nationalist Movement	Peasant movements provided grassroots support for the independence struggle, contributing to the anti-colonial movement. Eg. Kisan Sabha Movement in 1920s linked peasants with the Indian National Congress.
Leadership and Mobilization	Leaders like Baba Ramchandra organized peasants, driving protests and strikes for their rights. Eg. Kisan Sabha Movement led by Baba Ramchandra in 1920.
Impact on British Policies	Influenced policy changes like land tenure reforms and debt relief acts. Eg. Bardoli Satyagraha in 1928 in Gujarat, led by Sardar Vallabhbhai Patel, pressured the British government to reduce oppressive taxes and improve farmer conditions.
Cultural and Social Awakening	Revolts nurtured regional pride, preserved cultural identities, and fostered unity across diverse ethnic and linguistic groups. Eg. Mappila Rebellion -1921 in Kerala combined agrarian discontent with religious identity.
Legacy and Historical Significance	Peasant movements set the stage for agrarian reforms post-independence and became iconic symbols of resistance in India's struggle for freedom. Eg. Tebhaga Movement-1946-47 in Bengal demanded fairer crop-sharing, inspiring later land reforms.

Ideological Influences of the Peasant Movements

Ideology	Key Features	Examples
Nationalism	Peasant struggles were integrated into the broader nationalist movement. Peasants participated in movements like Quit India (1942).	Kisan Sabhas, Quit India Movement.
Socialism	Peasants' fight for land redistribution was influenced by socialist ideas advocating economic equality.	Sahajanand Saraswati (Bihar), Land redistribution movements.
Gandhian Principles	Emphasized non-violence and civil disobedience. Gandhi promoted voluntary land reforms through peaceful means.	Vinoba Bhave (Bhoodan Movement).
Marxism	Marxist ideas critiqued capitalist exploitation, influencing armed struggles and uprisings like the Telangana Peasant Armed Struggle.	Telangana Peasant Armed Struggle (Communist-led movements).
Satyagraha	Peasants participated in non-violent protests in line with Gandhi's philosophy of Satyagraha, including movements like the Salt Satyagraha (1930).	Salt Satyagraha, Non-violent peasant protests.
Cultural Nationalism	Revival of indigenous cultural practices, language promotion by peasant leaders.

Legislative Reforms by the British Government in Response to Peasant Movements

Category	Key Features/Influence	Notable Acts/Reports
Land Tenure Reforms	Reforms to address tenant rights, rent control, and improve landholding conditions for peasants.	Bengal Tenancy Act (1885), Madras Estates Land Act (1908).
Debt Relief Measures	Legislation introduced to ease the debt burden on peasants and provide relief in various provinces.	Debt Relief Acts, Limitations Act (1875) in Bombay Presidency.
Commission Reports	Reports that examined the grievances of peasants, agricultural conditions, and recommended policies for rural development.	Royal Commission on Agriculture (1928).

Working Class

Causes of working class movement

Cause	Details
Economic Exploitation	Severe famines (1896-1900) killed 1.25 to10 million people, and colonial policies led to widespread poverty and exploitation of workers.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Cause	Details
Industrial Growth & Urbanization	Growth of industries like textiles and railways concentrated workers in urban areas, fostering collective grievances. Eg. Ahmedabad Textile Strike (1918).
Suppressive Laws	Laws such as IPC 124A criminalized dissent, and the Factories Act failed to address hazardous processes effectively before amendments.
Discrimination by British Employers	The British employers treated Indian workers unfairly, leading to strikes such as the Great Indian Peninsular Railways Strike (1899).
Influence of Leaders & Unions	Leaders like Gandhi supported workers, as in the Ahmedabad Textile Labour Association. AITUC (1920) became a major platform for worker mobilization.
International Influences	Japan's industrial rise and victories inspired confidence among Indian workers. The Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929) brought global attention to their struggles.
Reaction to Moderates	Younger nationalists criticized the Congress moderates' slow approach. Workers aligned with movements like the Non-Cooperation and Civil Disobedience Movements.
Hazardous Working Conditions	Inadequate safety standards in factories led to amendments in the Factories Act (1987), which mandated emergency disaster control and site safety.

Impact of Worker's Movement

Impact	Explanation
Formation of Trade Unions	Worker mobilisation through unions like the All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC), established in 1920, allowed workers to demand rights and better working conditions. Strikes became a regular form of resistance.
Labour Strikes	Strikes disrupted colonial industries and highlighted the workers' grievances. Examples include the Great Bombay Textile Strike of 1928, which was a significant event in workers' movements.
Support for Non-Cooperation & Civil Disobedience	Workers actively participated in the Non-Cooperation Movement and Civil Disobedience Movement during the 1920s, taking part in boycotts, civil marches, and protests.
Formation of Political Parties	Labour movements helped establish political parties that advocated for workers' rights and Indian independence, such as the Communist Party of India (CPI), formed in 1920.
Women's Participation & Empowerment	Sarojini Naidu worked closely with the AITUC, supporting workers' rights and encouraging female participation in political and labour movements.
Factories Act, 1948	Amendments in 1987 empowered states to appoint site appraisal committees for hazardous factory locations, ensured worker and resident safety, and mandated emergency disaster control plans.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Impact	Explanation
Socio-Economic Transformation	Labour movements led to recognition of workers' rights and increased wages. For instance, the Ahmedabad Strike of 1918 resulted in a 27% wage hike for textile workers.
International Recognition	The Indian working class received global attention through events like the Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929), which gained worldwide publicity and further legitimized the workers' struggles.

Militant Nationalism:

Factors	Details
Recognition of True Nature of British Rule	Disillusionment with British rule as demands were ignored. Economic Exploitation: Severe famines (1896-1900) killed 90 lakh people; bubonic plague caused large-scale distress and riots.
Recognition of True Nature of British Rule	Restrictive Laws: - 1892: Indian Councils Act failed to satisfy demands. - 1897: Deportation of Natu Brothers, imprisonment of Tilak on sedition charges. - 1898: IPC 124A amplified with IPC 156A.
Recognition of True Nature of British Rule	Suppressive Acts. - 1904: Official Secrets Act curbed press freedom. - 1904: Indian Universities Act increased government control.
Recognition of True Nature of British Rule	Cultural Stagnation: Suppression of education, especially technical education, and limited social progress.
Growth of Confidence and Self-Respect	Faith in self-effort advocated by Tilak, Aurobindo, and Bipin Chandra Pal. Belief in the sacrifices of the masses as a path to freedom.
Growth of Education	The spread of education increased awareness among the masses. Rise in unemployment and underemployment among educated Indians highlighted poverty under British rule.
International Influences	Japan's industrial progress post-1868 and victory over Russia (1905) inspired Indians. Ethiopian victory over Italy (1896) and British reverses in Boer Wars (1899-1902) shattered myths of European invincibility.
International Influences	Inspiration from nationalist movements in Ireland, Russia, Egypt, Turkey, Persia, and China.
Reaction to Westernisation	Resistance to excessive westernisation perceived as an attempt to erase Indian identity. Intellectuals like Swami Vivekananda, Bankim Chandra Chatterjee, and Dayananda Saraswati emphasized India's rich cultural past.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Factors	Details
Reaction to Westernisation	Swami Dayananda's message: "India for the Indians."
Dissatisfaction with Moderates	Younger Congress members criticized the Moderates' methods of prayer, petition, and protest as "political mendicancy." Lack of significant achievements during the first 15-20 years of Congress.
Reactionary Policies of Curzon	Curzon's seven-year rule (1899-1905) was marked by missions, commissions, and omissions. Refused to recognize India as a nation and insulted Indian nationalists by dismissing their activities as "letting off of gas."
Reactionary Policies of Curzon	Spoke derogatorily of Indian character. Administrative measures revealed the reactionary nature of British rule: - Official Secrets Act - Indian Universities Act - Calcutta Corporation Act
Reactionary Policies of Curzon	Partition of Bengal (1905) cemented the image of British repression, uniting Indians against the government.
Existence of a Militant School of Thought	A new school of nationalist thinkers emerged advocating a militant approach. Key thinkers included: Bengal: Raj Narain Bose, Ashwini Kumar Datta, Aurobindo Ghosh, Bipin Chandra Pal. Maharashtra: Vishnu Shastri Chiplunkar, Bal Gangadhar Tilak.
Existence of a Militant School of Thought	Punjab: Lala Lajpat Rai. Tilak became the most prominent leader of this group.
Tenets of Militant Nationalism	Hatred for foreign rule; No hope from British rule. Goal of Swaraj (self-rule). Advocacy of direct political action.
Tenets of Militant Nationalism	Belief in the capacity of the masses to challenge authority. Personal sacrifices required for true nationalism.
Contribution of Revolutionary Activities	Key Revolutionary Groups: Anushilan Samiti (Bengal): Trained youth for armed struggle and mass movements against British rule. Jugantar (Bengal): Focused on direct action and assassinations of British officials. Abhinav Bharat (Maharashtra): Led by Vinayak Damodar Savarkar, aimed at overthrowing British rule through secret cells. Key Actions and Events:

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Factors	Details
	Khudiram Bose and Prafulla Chaki's Muzaffarpur Attack (1908): Attack on a British judge, resulting in Khudiram Bose's martyrdom. Alipore Bomb Case (1908): Arrest of leaders like Aurobindo Ghosh for plotting against British officials. Political Assassinations: Udham Singh's assassination of Michael O'Dwyer (1940). Secret Societies: Groups like HSRA, led by Bhagat Singh, focused on sabotage and guerrilla warfare. Contribution to Indian Nationalism Self-Confidence and National Pride: Revolutionaries inspired national pride and self-determination. Filling the Political Vacuum: They counterbalanced the moderate Indian National Congress and its more passive approach to British rule. Sacrifice for the Nation: Martyrdom of figures like Bhagat Singh, Rajguru, and Sukhdev galvanized youth to join the freedom movement. Psychological Impact on British Rule: The activities of revolutionaries created widespread fear among British officials, disrupting governance.
British Response	Suppression through laws and enforcement. Criminal Law Amendment Act to counter secret societies. Deportation of leaders: Tilak to Mandalay (1908). Raids, arrests, and trials targeting revolutionaries (Alipore Bomb Case). Introduction of sedition laws to crush dissent.
Emergence of a Trained Leadership	The new leadership channelized the political potential of the masses. Mobilization and release of this energy during the anti-partition movement (Swadeshi agitation). Eg. leaders like Tilak, Aurobindo, and Bipin Chandra Pal energized the masses for self-rule.

The Swadeshi and Boycott Movement:

Aspect	Details
Origin	• Emerged from the anti-partition movement to oppose the British decision to partition Bengal. • Partition of Bengal (1905): Aimed to divide Bengal based on language and religion, creating Hindu and Muslim majority regions.
Official Reasons	• Bengal's population of 78 million was "too large to administer." • Helped in the development of Assam under direct government jurisdiction.
Real Motives	• Weaken Bengal, the center of Indian nationalism. • Divide Bengalis by: (i) Language: Hindus reduced to a minority in Bengal proper. (ii) Religion: Western Bengal (Hindu majority), Eastern Bengal (Muslim majority).

Aspect	Details
Anti-Partition Campaign	• Leaders: Surendranath Banerjea, K.K. Mitra, Prithwishchandra Ray. • Methods: Petitions, public meetings, memoranda, propaganda through newspapers (Eg. Hitabadi, Sanjibani, Bengalee).
Protest Timeline	• July 1905: Government announced partition despite public opposition. • August 7, 1905: Boycott Resolution passed at Calcutta Town Hall. • October 16, 1905: Partition came into effect; marked by mourning, fasting, singing Bande Mataram, and tying rakhis for unity.
Movement Highlights	Spread to other regions: • Poona & Bombay: Tilak. • Punjab: Lala Lajpat Rai, Ajit Singh. • Delhi: Syed Haider Raza. • Madras: Chidambaram Pillai. • Rabindranath Tagore composed Amar Sonar Bangla, symbolizing unity.
Congress's Role	• 1905: Under Gokhale, Congress resolved to: a. Condemn Bengal's partition and Curzon's reactionary policies. b. Support the Swadeshi and anti-partition movement. • 1906 (Calcutta): Swaraj declared as the Congress's goal under Dadabhai Naoroji.
Moderates vs. Extremists	• Moderates: Wanted a peaceful and limited movement (boycott of foreign goods). • Extremists (Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal, Aurobindo Ghosh): Wanted a nationwide political struggle with the goal of swaraj.
Outcome	• The dispute led to a split in Congress at the Surat session (1907). • Moderates and Extremists parted ways, weakening the Swadeshi Movement. Decline in Imports: Significant reduction in foreign imports during 1905-1908. Growth of Extremism: Increased extreme nationalism among youth, leading to violence and a demand for immediate end to British rule. Morley-Minto Reforms (1909): British introduced reforms due to pressure, offering concessions to Indians. Gopal Krishna Gokhale played a key role. Establishment of Swadeshi Institutions: • Bengal National College and national schools/colleges set up. • National Council of Education (1906) formed. • Bengal Institute of Technology for technical education. Growth in Swadeshi Industries: • Establishment of textile mills, soap factories, match factories, tanneries, banks, and insurance companies. • Revival of Indian cottage industries. Boycott of Foreign Goods: Foreign goods like clothing, sugar, and salt were boycotted and burned. Social Boycott: Buyers and sellers of foreign goods were socially boycotted.

Aspect	Details
Reasons for Extremist Leadership	• The Moderate-led movement had failed to yield results. • Divisive tactics of governments in Bengal embittered nationalists. • Government suppressive measures included corporal punishment of students, banning public singing of "Vande Mataram," restricting meetings, and suppressing freedom of the press.
Extremist Programme	• Advocated passive resistance, swadeshi, and boycott (Eg. of schools, colleges, government service, titles). • Goal: Make British administration unworkable and achieve independence through self-sacrifice.
New Forms of Struggle	• Boycott of Foreign Goods: Burning foreign cloth, refusal to use foreign goods in marriages, and other practices. • Public Meetings and Processions: Became key methods of mass mobilisation. • Volunteers/Samitis: Groups like Swadesh Bandhab Samiti (Barisal) and Swadeshi Sangam (Tamil Nadu) mobilised people and provided social services. • Festivals and Melas: Used traditional events (Eg. Ganapati and Shivaji festivals) for swadeshi propaganda.
Self-Reliance	• Promoted Atma Shakti, social reforms, and economic regeneration. • Addressed issues like caste oppression, early marriage, dowry, and alcohol consumption.
Swadeshi Education	• Bengal National College and other schools established to promote education on national lines. • National Council of Education founded in 1906.
Swadeshi Enterprises	• Established swadeshi textile mills, soap factories, banks, and more. • V.O.Chidambaram Pillai launched Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company.
Cultural Impact	• Songs by Rabindranath Tagore, Subramania Bharati, and others inspired people. • Artists like Abanindranath Tagore and Nandalal Bose broke Victorian norms in Indian art. • Scientists like Jagdish Chandra Bose conducted pioneering research.
Mass Participation	• Students: Led picketing and protests but faced repression. Eg. fines, expulsion. • Women: Urban middle-class women joined processions and picketing.
Muslim Involvement	• Some Muslims participated (Eg. Barrister Abdul Rasul, Maulana Azad), but many supported partition due to government influence.
Labour Unrest	• Strikes in jute mills, railways, and foreign-owned industries highlighted economic grievances. • Leaders like Subramania Siva and Ajit Singh supported labour strikes.
All-India Aspect	• Movements in other regions supported Bengal's unity and swadeshi agitation. • Tilak played a key role in expanding the movement beyond Bengal.

Socialism

Key Leaders, Organizations, and Major Demands in the Socialist Movement in India

Leaders	Organizations	Major Demands
Mahatma Gandhi	Indian National Congress	Swaraj (self-rule) through non-violence and self-reliance. Decentralization of political and economic power. Revival of village industries and agriculture.
Subhas Chandra Bose	Indian National Congress	Industrialization under state control to ensure economic freedom. Abolition of landlordism and liquidation of agricultural indebtedness. Comprehensive economic planning.
Jawaharlal Nehru	Indian National Congress	Socialism with the idea of a mixed economy. Economic modernization through industrialization. Emphasis on central planning and public sector control.
Bhagat Singh	Hindustan Socialist Republican Association (HSRA)	Socialism for the working class. Radical change through revolutionary methods. Overthrow of colonial and capitalist systems. Complete economic and social equality.
Jayaprakash Narayan	Socialist Party of India	Socialism based on Gandhian principles without industrialization. Workers' rights and empowerment. Rural economic revival through cooperative systems.
Soviet Union (as an entity)	Communist International	Rapid industrialization and collectivization. State-controlled economy. Abolition of capitalist exploitation.
International Socialist Movements	All India Trade Union Congress (AITUC)	Workers' rights. Social and economic equality. Progressive taxation and public welfare systems. State intervention in the economy for equitable wealth distribution.
Communist Leaders (Karl Marx, Lenin)	Communist Party of India (CPI)	Establishment of a proletarian state. Abolition of private property. Redistribution of land and wealth to achieve economic equality. Centralized economic planning.

Causes of Rise of Socialism

Causes	Details
Influence of Global Socialist Movements	Eg. the Russian Revolution of 1917.

Causes	Details
Address Economic Inequalities	Struggle for political independence seen as inseparable from economic exploitation.
Impact of British Colonial Policies	Social inequality, limited access to education and healthcare, landlessness → demand for transformation.
Influence of Socialist Leaders	Jawaharlal Nehru, Subhas Chandra Bose, and Bhagat Singh inspired socialist thought.
Role of Socialist Organizations	HSRA and CSP within the Indian Congress propagated socialist ideas.
Influence of Labour and Peasant Movements	The AITUC and Tebhaga movement had socialist dimensions.

Impact of Socialism

Impact	Details
Ideological and Intellectual Influence	Promoted economic justice and the welfare of the masses. Eg. Nehru's vision of a mixed economy and Nehru's economic policies in the post-independence period blended socialism with elements of the market economy.
Impact on INC	Forward Bloc by Subhas Chandra Bose within the Congress. Radicalization of Congress was evident during Subhas Chandra Bose's leadership. His differences with Congress leadership led him to form the Forward Bloc in 1939, advocating for more aggressive anti-colonial and socialist policies.
Labour and Worker Mobilization	AITUC (All India Trade Union Congress) organized strikes, agitations, and negotiations with the British government. For example, the Bombay Textile Workers' Strike (1946) was one of the largest strikes organized by AITUC for better working conditions.
Land Reforms and Agrarian Issues	CPI advocated for peasant rights. The Tebhaga movement in Bengal (1946) by AIKS (All India Kisan Sabha) was a major peasant movement demanding a better share of the harvest for sharecroppers.
Integration with Anti-Colonial Struggle	HSRA (Hindustan Socialist Republican Association) merged political independence goals with social transformation. Bhagat Singh's ideology reflected this, where he not only sought freedom but also envisioned a social revolution. His role in the Lahore Conspiracy Case exemplified the socialist outlook combined with anti-colonial resistance.
Education and Cultural Aspects	M.N. Roy emphasized scientific, rational approaches and indigenous cultural expressions. For instance, his ideological commitment to rationalism and scientific socialism influenced the intellectual development of the socialist movement in India.
International Solidarity and Influence	Subhas Chandra Bose sought alliances abroad. During WWII, Bose formed the Indian National Army (INA) with support from Germany and Japan to fight against British colonial rule. His international diplomacy with Axis powers sought to garner global support for India's independence and social transformation.

Post-Independence Policy Formulation	Socialist leaders in the INC emphasized planning and state intervention in the economy. Nehru's focus on a mixed economy laid the foundation for India's post-independence industrial policies and nationalization of key sectors, such as steel and coal.
Participation in International Conferences	Indian socialists participated in global forums advocating for workers' rights and anti-imperialist struggles. For example, Indian representatives at the Labour Conference in 1928 discussed workers' issues and mobilized international support for India's independence.
Socialist Movement Outside Congress	The rise of the Forward Bloc, CPI, and other socialist factions led to the establishment of alternative political movements. Subhas Chandra Bose, after his resignation from the Congress, played a pivotal role in promoting socialist ideology through the Forward Bloc and his international associations.
Radicalization of Congress	Socialist ideas within Congress led to a shift towards more radical positions. Jawaharlal Nehru, influenced by socialist principles, proposed comprehensive economic reforms post-independence, including land reforms and industrialization. His stance became more pronounced after the influence of socialist youth movements within Congress.
Mobilization of Peasants and Workers	AIKS (All India Kisan Sabha) and AITUC mobilized peasants and workers for rights. AITUC's role in organizing the All India Workers' Strike of 1946 brought workers together across sectors to fight for labor rights. Similarly, AIKS's Tebhaga movement in Bengal in 1946 advocated for fair distribution of land among sharecroppers.

Communist

Record of Communist Conspiracies

Conspiracy	Details
Peshawar Conspiracy (between 1922 and 1927)	The early communist movement aimed at spreading socialist ideology in British India.

Gandhian Movements

Movement	Details
Arrival in India (1915)	Background: Gandhi returned from South Africa (1893-1914), where he developed his political philosophy of non-violence and Satyagraha. Returned to India in January 1915.
Arrival in India (1915)	Actions: Traveled across British India for a year to understand the land and its people, following Gopal Krishna Gokhale's advice. Spoke at the Banaras Hindu University (BHU) in February 1916.
Champaran Satyagraha (1917)	Background: Farmers of Champaran (Bihar) were oppressed under the Tinkathia system, which required them to grow indigo on 3/20th of their land. Invited by Rajkumar Shukla to lead the struggle.
Champaran Satyagraha (1917)	Actions: Gandhi mobilized farmers, defied orders to leave the district, and persuaded the government to abolish the system. The settlement resulted in a 25% refund of the money that planters had illegally extracted from the farmers
Champaran Satyagraha (1917)	Outcome: First Civil Disobedience Movement in India; Abolished exploitative practices and empowered peasants.
Champaran Satyagraha (1917)	Participants: Rajendra Prasad, Narhari Parekh, J.B. Kripalani.
Ahmedabad Mill Strike (1918)	Background: Dispute over wages after the end of the plague bonus. Workers demanded a 50% wage hike, while mill owners wanted to discontinue the plague bonus.
Ahmedabad Mill Strike (1918)	Actions: Gandhi intervened and asked workers to demand a 35% wage hike (a middle ground), but the owners were only ready to concede 20%. When negotiations didn't progress, Gandhi undertook a fast unto death, after which the issue was submitted to a tribunal, which granted a 35% wage hike.
Ahmedabad Mill Strike (1918)	Significance: First use of fasting as a political weapon in India; highlighted the issues faced by urban industrial workers.
Ahmedabad Mill Strike (1918)	Participants: Anusuya Sarabhai, textile workers.
Kheda Satyagraha (1918)	Background: Crop failure due to poor monsoon led to famine-like conditions. Despite this, the government insisted on collecting full revenue.
Kheda Satyagraha (1918)	Actions: Gandhi advised peasants to withhold revenue payments. The government relented, taxing only those who could afford it and stopping land confiscations.

Movement	Details
Kheda Satyagraha (1918)	Outcome: First Non-Cooperation Movement; brought partial relief to distressed peasants.
Kheda Satyagraha (1918)	Participants: Vallabhbhai Patel, Narhari Parekh, Indulal Yagnik.
Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919)	Background: The Rowlatt Act (1919) curtailed civil liberties, allowed imprisonment without trial, and suspended the right to habeas corpus. Gandhi called it the "Black Act."
Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919)	Actions: Gandhi organized protests involving fasting, prayers, and civil disobedience. Formed the Satyagraha Sabha to lead the movement. Withdrew the movement after violence erupted in some regions.
Rowlatt Satyagraha (1919)	Significance: Introduced Gandhian methods of non-violence and Satyagraha on a national scale. Demonstrated Gandhi's ability to mobilize the masses.
Non-Cooperation (1920-22)	Cause: Launched in response to the Jallianwala Bagh massacre, the Rowlatt Act, and the Khilafat grievances. Demanded redressal of Punjab and Khilafat issues and self-government.
Non-Cooperation (1920-22)	Methods: Boycott of schools, colleges, courts, government offices, and foreign goods; return of government titles; merging with the Khilafat Movement to unify Hindus and Muslims. Withdrawn after Chauri Chaura.
Non-Cooperation (1920-22)	Outcome: First large-scale mass movement; fostered national unity; Gandhi shifted focus to constructive social reforms after withdrawal.
Non-Cooperation (1920-22)	Participants: Ali Brothers (Khilafat), C.R. Das, Motilal Nehru.
Civil Disobedience (1930-34)	Background: Demand for Purna Swaraj (complete independence) and opposition to oppressive taxes like the salt tax. Declared during the Lahore Congress (1929).
Civil Disobedience (1930-34)	Actions: Gandhi led the Dandi March (1930) to break the salt laws. Defiance spread nationwide; Temporarily halted by the Gandhi-Irwin Pact; Resumed after the failure of the Second Round Table Conference.
Civil Disobedience (1930-34)	Outcome: Broadened social participation in the freedom struggle. Marked a significant step towards independence. The movement faded by 1934.

Movement	Details
Civil Disobedience (1930-34)	Participants: Jawaharlal Nehru, Sarojini Naidu.
Quit India (1942)	Cause: Failure of the Cripps Mission and hardships of World War II disillusioned Indians.
Quit India (1942)	Actions: Gandhi issued the "Do or Die" call. Protests erupted across the country despite mass arrests of leaders.
Quit India (1942)	Outcome: Final phase of the freedom struggle; Weakened British resolve to rule; Paved the way for independence in 1947.
Quit India (1942)	Participants: Major INC leaders (Nehru, Patel, Azad).

Swarajists & No Changers

The Swarajists and No-Changers refer to two factions within the Indian National Congress that emerged after the Non-Cooperation Movement (1920-1922) was called off by Mahatma Gandhi following the Chauri Chaura incident. These groups reflected different strategies to continue the struggle for independence.

Swarajists (Pro-Changers)	No-Changers
Wanted to return to active politics, including council entry.	Opposed entry into electoral politics.
Aimed to obstruct the reformed legislature and arouse nationalist spirit by participating in elections.	Focused on continuing Gandhi's constructive programme to mobilize the masses.
Believed participation would discourage the government from packing the councils with undesirable elements.	Argued that participation would divert focus from constructive work and cause political corruption.
Leaders: C.R. Das, Motilal Nehru, Subhash Chandra Bose.	Leaders: C. Rajagopalachari, Vallabhbhai Patel, Rajendra Prasad, M.A. Ansari.

Swaraj Party

Key Points
A 'political experiment' aiming to broaden the national movement by including legislative bodies.
Swaraj meant questioning and challenging colonial rule within legislatures.
Main proponents: Motilal Nehru, C.R. Das.
Swaraj Party was formed in 1923, leading to the contesting of elections in 1923 and 1926.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Key Points
Emphasis on legislative resistance to the British government.

Swaraj Party's Performance & Accomplishments

Election Performance	Major Accomplishments
In 1923, the Swaraj Party secured 42 out of 141 seats in the Central Legislative Assembly, achieving a majority in the Central Provinces and becoming the largest party in the Central Assembly, Bombay, and Bengal.	Motilal Nehru became the Leader of the Opposition in the Central Assembly.

Decline of the Swaraj Party

Reasons for Decline
Internal divisions between responsive and non-responsive lines.
The death of C.R. Das led to factionalism.
Failure to support tenant rights led to loss of Muslim support.
Shift towards Civil Disobedience and younger leadership.

No-Changers' Constructive Programme

Key Components
Rural development and self-sufficiency: Focused on village reconstruction and empowerment through Ashrams.
Eradication of untouchability and caste discrimination.
Promotion of communal unity between Hindus and Muslims.
Emphasis on Khadi and self-reliant village industries.
Basic education for all, focusing on provincial languages.
Women's upliftment and health and hygiene.

Evaluation of Constructive Programme

Successes	Limitations
Provided strength during weak phases of Satyagraha.	Limited scope, benefiting mostly urban lower middle classes.

Successes	Limitations
Helped to mobilize the illiterate masses and promote socio-economic regeneration.	Social norms (untouchability, caste) were hard to overcome.
Promoted national unity and awareness among women.	Khadi faced economic challenges due to cost and feasibility.
Addressed key social issues (untouchability, women's rights).	No clear connection with Congress' mass action strategy.

Relevance in Contemporary Times

Relevance Today
Ongoing social issues like untouchability, communal disunity, and educational commercialization can benefit from Gandhi's approach.
Cultural and linguistic preservation remains vital in contemporary India.
Gandhi's focus on sustainable living can address modern environmental challenges.
Decentralization and empowering local communities are still relevant.
Moral values of compassion and service are essential in today's consumer-driven society.

Communalism

Communal Organisations

Communal Organisations	• Hindu Mahasabha (1915): Founded to promote Hindu unity and fight against perceived Muslim dominance. • RSS (1925): Aimed at promoting Hindu culture and values, often with a focus on counteracting Muslim influence. • All India Muslim League (1906): Initially formed to safeguard Muslim rights, it later became an advocate for partition.
Communal Movements	• Wahhabi Movement: A militant Islamic reform movement that emphasized purifying Islam and opposing British rule. • Shuddhi Movement: A Hindu reform movement aiming to reconvert Muslims and other non-Hindus to Hinduism.

Communalism During the Freedom Struggle

Aspect	Details
Emergence of Communalism	Appeared at the end of the 19th century; Became a threat to unity; Continues to persist.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Stages of Communalism	Communal Nationalism: Belief in shared secular interests due to shared religion.
Stages of Communalism	Liberal Communalism: Different religious communities have different but not incompatible secular interests
Stages of Communalism	Extreme Communalism: Belief that different religious interests are incompatible.
Nature of Communalism	Ideology focusing on one's religious/ethnic group over society.
Nature of Communalism	Found globally in forms like Fascism, racism, and sectarianism (Eg. in Lebanon, Northern Ireland).
Nature of Communalism	Rooted in modern colonial structures, socio-economic interests, and modern mass mobilization.
Social Roots	Originated in the middle classes, promoting communal interests for economic benefits.
Social Roots	Supported by colonial administration and conservative elements.
Social Roots	Religion became a vehicle for communalism due to a lack of education and awareness.
Growth Factors	Socio-economic Reasons.
Growth Factors	Educated Muslims lacked opportunities in trade/business and relied on government jobs.
Growth Factors	Economic backwardness and unemployment led to competition for limited jobs and reservations.
Growth Factors	British Divide-and-Rule Policy.
Growth Factors	Muslims were repressed post-1857 but later appeased to counter nationalism.
Growth Factors	Syed Ahmad Khan encouraged loyalty to the British and promoted separate Hindu-Muslim interests.
Growth Factors	Communal History Writing.
Growth Factors	Portrayed ancient India as Hindu and medieval India as Muslim.
Growth Factors	Overlooked India's composite culture and mutual influences.
Growth Factors	Reform Movements.
Growth Factors	Militant overtones in movements like Wahhabi (Muslims) and Shuddhi (Hindus) made religion vulnerable to communalism.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Growth Factors	Militant Nationalism.
Growth Factors	Hindu nationalist symbols (Eg. Ganapati/Shivaji festivals, cow protection) alienated Muslims.
Growth Factors	Movements like the Khilafat (1920-22) encouraged looking at political issues through a religious lens.
Majority Communalism	Hindu communalism developed as a reaction to Muslim communalism.
Majority Communalism	Early leaders like U.N. Mukherjee and organizations like the Hindu Mahasabha (1915) and the RSS (1925) promoted communal ideologies.
Impact of Communalism on the Freedom Movement	• Division in the Nationalist Movement: Communal ideologies often divided the nationalist struggle, leading to Hindu-Muslim rivalry that weakened the freedom movement. • Delay in Unity: The formation of separate political entities like the Muslim League, advocating for Muslim rights, diverted focus from the united struggle against British rule. • Partition of India (1947): The culmination of communal divisions, driven by organizations like the Muslim League, led to the partition of India, severely impacting the freedom movement and causing large-scale violence. • Polarization of Public Opinion: The rise of communalism led to the polarization of public opinion, which distracted from the goal of independence and created lasting divisions.
Consequences	Communalism hindered unity, exploited socio-economic divisions, and delayed political progress.

Press

Role of the Press in the Freedom Movement

Aspect	Role of Press in the Freedom Movement
Role of Press	Spread of Nationalist Ideas: Newspapers like Kesari, The Hindu, and Amrita Bazar Patrika disseminated ideas of self-rule and Swadeshi. Political Awareness: Educated the masses about colonial exploitation and reforms. Amrita Bazar Patrika exposed colonial exploitation. Eg. criticism of the Indigo Planters' atrocities. Unity Among Leaders and Masses: Provided a platform for nationalist leaders to communicate and rally support. Eg. Sudharak by Gopal Ganesh Agarkar. Resistance to British Policies: Critiqued British laws and atrocities, inspiring protests. Eg. Voice of India by Dadabhai Naoroji criticized British economic policies and promoted the drain of wealth theory. Mobilization: Played a crucial role in movements like Non-Cooperation, Civil Disobedience, and Quit India by spreading Gandhi's messages and Congress resolutions. Eg. Young India by Mahatma Gandhi. Challenging Censorship: Continued to publish revolutionary content despite restrictive laws like the Vernacular Press Act. Eg. Amrita Bazar Patrika switched to English to avoid the Vernacular Press Act restrictions, ensuring continued publication of revolutionary ideas.

Presence of Press during British Rule

Period	Act	Details
1780	Bengal Gazette	First newspaper in India by James Augustus Hickey; Seized in 1782 for criticizing the government.
1799	Censorship of the Press Act	Enacted by Lord Wellesley; Imposed pre-censorship anticipating a French invasion. Relaxed by Lord Hastings in 1818.
1823	Licensing Regulations	Enacted by John Adams; Required a license to start/use a press. Targeted Indian language newspapers, leading to the closure of Rammohan Roy's Mirat-ul-Akbar.
1835	Press Act (Metcalfe Act)	Repealed the 1823 Act by Metcalfe; Enabled free growth of newspapers. Metcalfe earned the title "Liberator of the Indian Press."
1857	Licensing Act	Enacted during the revolt; imposed licensing restrictions and government rights to stop publication.
1867	Registration Act	Regulatory Act required printers/publishers to include their details and submit a copy to the local government.
1878	Vernacular Press Act (VPA)	Enacted by Lord Lytton; Targeted the vernacular press, imposed bonds, security deposits, and penalties. Repealed by Lord Ripon in 1882.
1908	Newspaper (Incitement to Offences) Act	Allowed confiscation of press property publishing materials inciting violence or murder.
1910	Indian Press Act	Revived VPA features; Required submission of newspaper copies and security deposits.
1921	Press Acts Repealed	Based on recommendations by Tej Bahadur Sapru's committee, the 1908 and 1910 Acts were repealed.
1931	Indian Press (Emergency Powers) Act	Empowered provincial governments to suppress propaganda for the Civil Disobedience Movement. Expanded in 1932.
World Wars	Defence of India Rules	Imposed censorship and restrictions on criticism of the government. Congress-related news was banned during WWII.

Education

British Education Policy: Objectives & Issues

Aspect	Details
Objective of British Education Policy	Create a Subordinate Workforce: Trained Indians for lower administrative roles. Cultural Domination: Promoted Western sciences and literature to establish intellectual dominance. Economic Benefits: Focused on practical skills to aid colonial governance, like agriculture and engineering. Downward Filtration Theory: Educate the elite to indirectly benefit the masses. Spread of English: Ensure a uniform medium of instruction for better administrative control.
Issues with the Education System	Neglect of Mass Education: Policies ignored the needs of the masses, particularly primary and vernacular education. Lack of Female Education: Minimal efforts to improve women's literacy and access to education.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
	Limited Technical Education: Few institutions for technical and professional training, which constrained industrial growth. Elite Bias: Focused on creating a small class of Western-educated elites, alienating the majority. Financial Constraints: Inadequate funding and reliance on philanthropic efforts limited educational expansion. Hasty Expansion: Rapid growth in schools and colleges lowered educational standards.

British Policy on Education

Aspect	Key Developments
Early Company Rule	• The East India Company showed no interest in education for 60 years. • Efforts by individuals: - Calcutta Madrasah (1781) by Warren Hastings (Muslim law). - Sanskrit College (1791) by Jonathan Duncan (Hindu law). - Fort William College (1800) by Wellesley (training civil servants, closed in 1802).
Charter Act of 1813	• Allocated ₹1 lakh annually for education. • Delayed due to debates over the direction of expenditure. • Calcutta College (1817) was set up by Raja Rammohan Roy and others (English education). • The government established Sanskrit colleges in Calcutta, Delhi, and Agra.
Orientalist-Anglicist Debate	• Anglicists: Emphasized modern Western studies. • Orientalists: Supported traditional Indian learning alongside Western sciences. • Debate over medium of instruction: English vs. vernacular.
Macaulay's Minute (1835)	• Favoured Anglicist view: Focus on Western sciences and literature through the English medium. • Introduced Downward Filtration Theory: Educate upper classes to benefit the masses indirectly. • Neglected mass education, prioritizing creating an elite class aligned with British interests.
Thomson's Efforts (1843-1853)	• Promoted village education through vernacular languages. • Focused on practical subjects like mensuration and agricultural sciences to train personnel for Revenue and Public Works Departments.
Wood's Despatch (1854)	• First comprehensive education policy: 1. Stressed mass education, hierarchy from vernacular primary schools to universities. 2. Recommended English for higher studies and vernaculars for schools. 3. Focus on female, vocational education, and teacher training. 4. Introduced grants-in-aid for private institutions. • Universities at Calcutta, Bombay, Madras (1857).

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Key Developments
Hunter Commission (1882-83)	Reviewed progress since Wood's Despatch: 1. Focused on primary and secondary education. 2. Advocated control of primary education by district/municipal boards. 3. Suggested literary and vocational tracks for high school. 4. Highlighted inadequate female education.
Indian Universities Act (1904)	• Based on the Raleigh Commission (1902): 1. Emphasized research in universities. 2. Strengthened government control over university administration. 3. Increased affiliation conditions for private colleges. • Nationalists criticized it as restrictive and imperialistic.
Government Resolution (1913)	• Acknowledged illiteracy but refused compulsory education. • Encouraged free elementary education for poorer/backward sections. • Provincial governments urged to improve secondary schools.
Saddler Commission (1917-19)	• Recommendations applicable beyond Calcutta University: 1. Extended school course to 12 years. 2. Introduced intermediate stage (pre-university). 3. Encouraged female, applied scientific, and vocational education. 4. Advocated centralized, residential universities.
Education Under Dyarchy	• Education moved to provincial ministries (Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms). • Financial constraints limited growth, but philanthropic efforts helped expand education.
Hartog Committee (1929)	• Reported decline in education standards due to hasty expansion: 1. Advocated emphasis on primary education without rapid expansion. 2. Suggested vocational paths for average students after 8th grade. 3. Recommended restricted university admissions to improve quality.
Sergeant Plan (1944)	• Comprehensive education plan: 1. Universal and compulsory elementary education (6-11 years). 2. Abolition of intermediate course. 3. Focus on adult literacy, teacher training, and education for the handicapped. • Proposed achieving English education standards in 40 years.
Development of Vernacular Education	• Improved during the early 19th century under zamindars' patronage. • Notable contributions: • William Adam's Reports (1835-1838) highlighted flaws in the Bengal/Bihar system. • James Thomson's model schools (1843-53). • Wood's Despatch (1854) stressed vernacular education. • Hunter Commission (1882) advocated mass vernacular education. • Encouraged by Congress ministries in 1937.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Key Developments
Development of Technical Education	• Roorkee Engineering College (1847). • Medical College, Calcutta (1835). • Expansion under Lord Curzon: Agriculture College at Pusa and other professional courses.

Efforts by Indian Nationalists in the field of Education:

Indian Nationalists Effort	Details
Promotion of Nationalist Education	Bengal National College (1906): Established by Aurobindo Ghosh to promote nationalist ideals and modern education
Promotion of Nationalist Education	National Council of Education (1906): Set up to organize a national education system independent of British influence.
Promotion of Nationalist Education	Shantiniketan (1901) by Rabindranath Tagore, blending traditional and modern educational systems, emphasizing creativity, culture, and rural reconstruction.
Focus on Technical Education	Establishment of Bengal Institute of Technology (1906) and other technical colleges to promote indigenous industries and technical skills.
Focus on Technical Education	Roorkee Engineering College (1847): Early nationalist support for creating a technically skilled workforce.
Focus on Technical Education	Visvesvaraya's contributions: Promoted technical and engineering education in Mysore State, supporting industrial development.
Advocacy for Vernacular Education	Nationalists supported mother-tongue education, making learning accessible to the masses by promoting education in local languages.
Advocacy for Vernacular Education	Hunter Commission (1882) emphasized the importance of vernacular education.
Advocacy for Vernacular Education	Tilak's Kesari and Maratha Newspapers: Used vernacular languages to educate people about social and political issues.

Indian Nationalists Effort	Details
Curriculum Reform	Bengal National College: Incorporated Indian history and culture in the curriculum under Aurobindo Ghosh.
Curriculum Reform	Gandhiji's Nai Talim (Basic Education): Focused on self-sufficiency and integration of crafts into education.
Building Social and Political Awareness	Nationalists used education to create awareness about political rights and social reforms. Eg. Tilak's Deccan Education Society (1884)- Focused on promoting political awareness among youth through education.
Building Social and Political Awareness	Banaras Hindu University (BHU): Established by Pandit Madan Mohan Malaviya (1916) to promote education as a tool for self-reliance and nationalism.
Building Social and Political Awareness	Establishment of journals like "The Indian Social Reformer" by K. Natarajan and educational societies such as Arya Samaj to spread nationalist and social reform ideas.
Support for Indigenous Knowledge and Arts	Shantiniketan (1901): Promoted Indian music, dance, and arts alongside modern education under Rabindranath Tagore.
Support for Indigenous Knowledge and Arts	Kala Bhavana (1919): A school of arts within Shantiniketan, integrating Indian aesthetics and craft traditions.
Support for Indigenous Knowledge and Arts	Swadeshi Movement: Revival of Indian handloom and handicraft industries through education and skill training.
Establishment of Libraries and Cultural Centres	Calcutta's National Library: Set up as a repository of knowledge to promote reading and self-education.
Establishment of Libraries and Cultural Centres	Servants of India Society (1905): Founded by Gopal Krishna Gokhale, it established libraries to encourage education.
Establishment of Libraries and Cultural Centres	Public Libraries during the Swadeshi Movement: Supported by nationalists to distribute knowledge in rural and urban areas.

Impact on Freedom Movement

Aspect	Details	Impact on Freedom Movement
Emergence of an Educated Middle Class	British education policies inadvertently fostered a class of intellectuals who became leaders of the freedom movement.	Created leaders like Raja Rammohan Roy, Dadabhai Naoroji, and Bal Gangadhar Tilak who articulated nationalist aspirations and demands for political reforms.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details	Impact on Freedom Movement
Political Awareness	Exposure to Western ideas of liberty, equality, and self-rule through British education.	Inspired demands for independence and provided ideological frameworks for the freedom struggle, including concepts of democracy, socialism, and self-governance.
Spread of Nationalism	The introduction of English facilitated communication and unity among educated Indians.	Enabled nationalistic movements and mobilization, laying the foundation for pan-India efforts like the Swadeshi Movement and the Non-Cooperation Movement.
Development of Vernacular Press	British education promoted regional languages and literacy among Indians.	Vernacular newspapers like Kesari and Amrita Bazar Patrika became tools to spread nationalist ideas, criticize British policies, and mobilize public opinion.
Role of Universities	Establishment of institutions like Calcutta, Bombay, and Madras Universities.	Became hubs for political awareness, producing leaders like Jawaharlal Nehru, Subhas Chandra Bose, and B.R. Ambedkar who played significant roles in the freedom struggle.
Nationalist Critique	Policies like the Indian Universities Act (1904) were viewed as restrictive.	Generated resentment against British policies, fueling movements to establish indigenous education systems and inspiring protests against colonial repression.
Formation of Associations	Educated Indians formed political and social associations.	Organizations like the Indian National Congress (1885) contributed to mass mobilization and ideological unity.
Mass Awakening	Educated leaders used vernacular languages to connect with the masses.	Enabled movements like Swadeshi and Boycott to become mass movements, integrating rural and urban populations into the freedom struggle.
Increased Awareness of Rights	Education spread awareness about civil rights and resistance to oppression.	Sparked movements like Non-Cooperation and Civil Disobedience by emphasizing constitutional reforms and justice.
Gandhian Education	Rejection of British education by leaders like Gandhi, who promoted indigenous systems like the Wardha Scheme (1937).	Shifted focus to self-reliance and cultural pride, emphasizing education aligned with Indian traditions and values to counter the colonial narrative.
Social Reforms and Unity	Western education supported reform movements like the abolition of sati, widow remarriage, and caste equality.	Strengthened social unity, creating an inclusive foundation for collective participation in the freedom struggle.

Land Revenue

Aspect	Permanent Settlement (1793)	Ryotwari Settlement (1820)	Mahalwari System (1822)	Other Systems (Taluqdari, Malguzari)
Introduction	Introduced by Lord Cornwallis in Bengal and Bihar.	Introduced by Alexander Read and Thomas Munro in Madras & Bombay.	Conceptualized by Holt Mackenzie and introduced in the Gangetic Valley.	Varied by region, such as in Oudh (Talukdari) and Central Provinces (Malguzari).
Objectives	Impart stability to the revenue system. Fix revenue collection permanently based on past trends. Create hereditary land ownership for zamindars.	Recognize ryots (peasants) as landowners. Collect revenue directly from cultivators. Ensure periodic revision of tax.	Collective revenue settlement at the village (mahal) level. Adapt to local conditions.	Ensure efficient revenue collection through intermediaries (Taluqdars/Malguzars). Strengthen loyalty to the colonial administration. Simplify revenue administration. Ensure regular revenue flow while leveraging local elites.
Land Ownership	Zamindars became permanent owners of land.	Peasants (ryots) were recognized as the owners of land.	Revenue collected from the whole village or estate (mahal) rather than individual peasants.	Zamindars or taluqdars controlled land and revenue in Oudh. Malguzar controlled land under the Marathas.
Revenue System	Fixed revenue, payable by zamindars.	Revenue collected from each ryot individually is periodically revised.	Periodically revised revenue for the entire village or estate.	Malguzars were revenue farmers responsible for paying the land revenue.
Zamindar Role	Zamindars, as intermediaries, were required to pay a fixed amount to the state.	No role defined.	Direct settlement with village headmen or landlords (taluqdars).	Taluqdars and Malguzars acted as intermediaries.
Revenue Demands	Fixed, but high and arbitrary, leading to exploitation.	High and often unaffordable, leading to impoverishment of ryots.	High revenue demands are revised periodically.	Varying demands in the Talukdari system; Malguzars were responsible for revenue payment.

Aspect	Permanent Settlement (1793)	Ryotwari Settlement (1820)	Mahalwari System (1822)	Other Systems (Taluqdari, Malguzari)
Impact on Peasants	Oppressive, high rents, eviction of peasants if rent was unpaid.	Peasants were impoverished, often forced into debt traps.	Impoverished peasants, evictions, and the emergence of absentee landlords.	Taluqdars and Malguzars often exploited peasants.
Agricultural Impact	Led to stagnation, absentee landlordism, and commercialisation of agriculture.	Increased debt and distress; agriculture stagnated in some regions.	Stagnation due to high taxes and the erosion of local land rights.	Malguzars often managed land but failed to boost agricultural productivity.
Impact on Zamindars/Landlords	Created a class of absentee landlords.	Empowered individual peasants, but with high taxes.	Weakened traditional taluqdars and zamindars, undermining their power.	Taluqdars became powerful in Oudh; Malguzars managed land under the Marathas.
Famine & Economic Impact	Increased economic distress and famines.	Peasants often starved due to high taxes and crop failure.	Contributed to economic distress and famines, particularly in North India.	Taluqdars and Malguzars struggled with high demands during famines.
End Result	Loss of traditional zamindars, rise in absentee landlordism.	Peasants were increasingly impoverished and trapped in debt.	The system led to widespread impoverishment, contributing to the 1857 Revolt.	The Taluqdari and Malguzari systems led to complex land revenue relationships and exploitation.
Geographic Prevalence	Bengal, Bihar, Odisha, Madras, and Varanasi.	Southern India, later extended to Maharashtra, Berar, and Assam.	Gangetic Valley, North-West Provinces, Punjab, parts of Madhya Pradesh.	Taluqdari in Oudh, Malguzari in Central Provinces.

Administration

Phase	Details
Early Development	• Initial Role: Civil service started as a system to manage the East India Company's commercial affairs and later evolved into a machinery for administrative affairs.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Phase	Details
	• Civil Service Distinction: Differentiated from military/naval services of the Company.
Cornwallis' Role (1786-1793)	• Organised the civil services as governor-general. • Measures to check corruption: - Increased salaries. - Enforced rules against private trade and bribes. - Promotions based on seniority.
Wellesley's Role (1798-1805)	• Established Fort William College (1800) to train recruits. • In 1806, training moved to East India College at Haileybury (England).
Charter Act of 1853	• Ended the Company's patronage system; recruitment via open competition. • Indians were excluded from high posts due to: - Bias against Indians as "corrupt" and "incapable." - Preference for English administrators to serve British interests. - High competition for lucrative posts among Europeans.
Indian Civil Service Act (1861)	• Reserved certain offices for covenant civil servants. • Examination held in England, based on English and classical Greek/Latin learning. • Maximum age limit reduced: - 23 yrs (1859) → 22 yrs (1860) → 21 yrs (1866) → 19 yrs (1878). • Satyendra Nath Tagore (1863): First Indian to qualify for the ICS.
Statutory Civil Service (1878-79)	• Introduced by Lytton to fill one-sixth of covenant posts via Indian nominations. • The system failed and was abolished.
Congress Demands (Post-1885)	• Lowering the age limit for recruitment. • Simultaneous examinations in India and England.
Aitchison Committee (1886)	• Dropped terms 'covenanted' and 'uncovenanted.' • Classified services into: - Imperial Civil Service (exam in England). - Provincial Civil Service (exam in India). - Subordinate Civil Service (exam in India). • Raised the age limit to 23 years.
Montford Reforms (1919)	• Advocated Indianisation of services for responsible government. • Recommended: - Simultaneous exams in India and England. - One-third of recruitments in India, increasing by 1.5% annually.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Phase	Details
Lee Commission (1924)	Key recommendations: • Secretary of State to continue recruitment for key services (ICS, Irrigation, Forest). • Provincial governments recruit for transferred fields (Eg. education, medical). • 50:50 recruitment parity (Indians and Europeans) in ICS over 15 years. • Immediate establishment of a Public Service Commission (as per the Government of India Act, 1919).
Government of India Act (1935)	• Established the Federal Public Service Commission and the Provincial Public Service Commissions. • Control remained in British hands; civil servants acted as colonial agents.
Evaluation of Civil Services	Exclusion of Indians: • Exams held only in England in English, with classical subjects like Greek and Latin. • Age limit reduced to discourage Indian participation. • Senior, high-paying posts dominated by Europeans. • Indianisation (Post-1918): Gradual inclusion under nationalist pressure but with limited transfer of power. Result: Indian civil servants mostly served British imperial interests.

Post 1857 Reforms in Administration

Aspect	Developments	Details
Genesis of Changes	Learnings from 1857 and the rise of industrial colonialism	Consolidation of power, better understanding of local customs, industrial expansion, imperialist ideology, and economic exploitation shaped the changes.
Central Government	1858 Act for Better Government of India	Transferred governance from the East India Company to the British Crown. The Secretary of State (based in London) held power, assisted by a council of 15 members.
Central Government	Governor-General/Viceroy	Retained control in India; Assisted by an executive council. Central authority subordinated to the Secretary of State.
Central Government	Indian Councils Act, 1861	Added a jurist to the viceroy's council; Allowed addition of 6-12 legislative members, half being non-officials. The legislative council was advisory in nature.
Central Government	Legislative Powers	Council had limited powers – no budgetary control, executive action, or independent legislation. The Secretary of State could disallow legislation.
Provincial Government	1861 Legislative powers returned to provinces	Madras and Bombay regained powers taken in 1833; Legislative councils were created in other provinces.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Developments	Details
Provincial Government	Governance Structure	Presidencies had governors appointed by the Crown; Other provinces had lieutenant governors or chief commissioners.
Provincial Government	Financial Decentralisation	1870: Lord Mayo introduced fixed sums for certain services.
Provincial Government	Financial Decentralisation	1877: Lord Lytton transferred heads like land revenue, excise, law, and justice to provinces.
Provincial Government	Financial Decentralisation	1882: Revenue divided into general (central), provincial, and shared categories.
Provincial Government	Central Control	Provinces remained subordinate to the central government, which itself was under the Secretary of State.
Provisions under the 1909 Act	Introduced separate electorates for Muslims. Expanded legislative councils (Eg. Central Legislative Council increased to 60 members). Allowed Indians to be nominated to the Viceroy's Executive Council.	Eg. Gopal Krishna Gokhale was nominated to the Viceroy's Council. Separate Muslim electorates strengthened communal representation.
Provisions under the 1919 Act	Introduced dyarchy (division of subjects into transferred and reserved categories) in provinces. Established a bicameral legislature at the central level. Increased provincial autonomy and Indian participation.	Eg. Transferred subjects (education, agriculture) under Indian ministers; Reserved subjects (finance, police) under British officials.
Provisions under 1935 Act	Abolished dyarchy in provinces; Introduced provincial autonomy. Expanded franchise (10% of the population could now vote). Proposed an All-India Federation. Introduced separate electorates for minorities.	Eg. Provincial autonomy was implemented in provinces like Madras and Bombay; Elections held in 1937 saw Congress forming governments in several provinces.
Local Bodies	1864-1868 Formation of local bodies	Local bodies were formed, mostly nominated, and controlled by district magistrates.
Local Bodies	1870 Mayo's Resolution	Financial decentralisation initiated; Provinces authorised to use local taxes. Funds allocated for education, sanitation, roads, etc.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Developments	Details
Local Bodies	1882 Ripon's Resolution	Advocated the development of local bodies for political education. Non-official majority in councils and reduced official interference.
Local Bodies	Royal Commission, 1908	Recommended more powers for village panchayats, sub-district boards, and relaxation of taxation restrictions.
Local Bodies	1919 Dyarchy under the Government of India Act	Local self-government became a transferred subject under provincial control but lacked funds due to central control over finances.
Local Bodies	1935 Government of India Act	Provincial autonomy enhanced local governance, but financial constraints and taxation restrictions limited their powers.
Challenges	Local Representation	Limited franchise, minority of elected members, and official interference persisted.
Challenges	Financial Constraints	Lack of resources, restricted taxation powers, and dependence on central/provincial grants hindered local self-government.
Challenges	Bureaucratic Resistance	Bureaucracy viewed Indians as unfit for self-government, and imperial policies like those under Lord Curzon reinforced official control.
Post-Independence	Article 40 in the Constitution	Directed states to establish village panchayats as effective local bodies.
Post-Independence	73rd and 74th Amendments	Aimed to strengthen rural and urban local governance, addressing structural and functional limitations.

Police

Development	Details
Pre-Colonial India	• No formal police system; law and order managed by traditional means. • Mughal Era: - Faujdars maintained law and order. - Amils collected revenue and dealt with rebels. - Kotwal maintained law and order in cities.
Dual Rule in Bengal (1765-1772)	• Zamindars were responsible for maintaining law and order through thanedars. • Many zamindars neglected their duties, often colluding with dacoits.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Development	Details
Warren Hastings (1774–1775)	• Restored the faujdar system. • Faujdars and faujdar thanas (police stations) were established in major towns to control dacoity, violence, and disorder.
Cornwallis' Reforms (1791)	• Organised a regular police force. • Introduced thanas (circles) in districts headed by darogas (Indians) under the Superintendent of Police (SP). • Relieved zamindars of police duties.
Mayo's Measures (1808)	• Appointed an SP for each division. • Spies (goyendas) were used to maintain order, but they often exploited the local people.
Court of Directors' Order (1814)	• Abolished the appointment of darogas and their subordinates, except in Bengal.
Bentinck's Reforms (1828–1835)	• Abolished the SP's office. • Made the collector/magistrate the head of police in his jurisdiction. • Commissioners acted as SPs in each division. • Overburdened the collectors, leading to inefficiency.
Police Commission (1860)	Recommendations: • Establishment of a civil constabulary, maintaining the village watchman system. • Hierarchical structure. • Inspector-General (province head). • Deputy Inspector-General (range head). • Superintendent of Police (SP) (district head). Result: • Indian Police Act, 1861 enacted. • Guidelines for provincial police setup established. • Police ranks are uniformly introduced across India.
Role of Police During British Rule	• Curbed criminal activities like dacoity and thuggee. • Maintained law and order. • Used as a tool to suppress the national movement.
No All-India Police	• The British refrained from establishing an all-India police force; the focus remained on provincial setups.

Military Org

Aspect	Details
Military Strategy	Indian Branch: Used for expansion in Asia and Africa.
	British Branch: Used for the occupation of India.
European Monopoly	Strict monopoly over key military departments like artillery, tanks, and armed corps.
Weapons and Equipment	Inferior-quality rifles were provided to Indian soldiers.
Weapons and Equipment	Indians were not allowed in high-tech departments (Eg. tanks, artillery) during World War I and II. Also, until 1914, only able to attain the rank of Subedar.
Officer Ranks	Indians were not allowed in officer ranks. Higher ranks for Indians were limited to Subedar.
Officer Ranks	Indian Sandhurst Committee: Proposed a 50% Indianized officer cadre by 1952.
Martial Races Ideology	Discriminatory recruitment policy based on the theory of "martial races" (Sikhs, Gurkhas, Pathans) who helped suppress the 1857 Revolt.
Martial Races Ideology	Non-martial races (Eg. South Indians, Muslims) were excluded from recruitment.
Caste and Communal Divisions	Caste and communal regiments: Regiments were divided along caste, communal, tribal, and regional lines to weaken nationalist unity.
Control over Soldiers' Information	Soldiers were isolated from the rest of the population by preventing access to newspapers, journals, and nationalist publications.
Policy on Rebellions	British authorities wanted soldiers to remain alienated from each other to prevent collective rebellion.
Policy on Rebellions	Charles Wood to Lord Canning: Let the army men be so alienated from each other, that if one regiment rebels, the other might readily fire it down.

Army Composition	Army of Occupation: British army Vs. Army of Expansion: Indian forces (Eg. Burma).
White vs. Indian Soldiers	1/3 of the army consisted of Europeans (previously only 14%).
Indian-British Soldier Ratio	Bengal: (2:1)-(Indian to European).
Indian-British Soldier Ratio	Madras & Bombay: 2:5 (European to Indian).
Sandhurst Commission	The Commission proposed 50% Indian officers by 1952.

Army Composition	Army of Occupation: British army Vs. Army of Expansion: Indian forces (Eg. Burma).
Separation from National Events	Soldiers were kept isolated from nationalist movements through strict control over media and publications.

Economic Impact

British rule in India transformed its economy into a colonial one, primarily benefiting British interests.

Unlike earlier invaders, the British drained India's wealth and resources, imposing structural changes to serve their needs.

Aspect	Data
Decline in Global Economic Share	India's share of the world economy fell from 24.4% (1700) to 4.2% (1950).
Industrial Output Reduction	India's industrial output dropped from 25% (1750) to 2% (1900).
Wealth Extraction	Estimated $64.82 trillion extracted from India between 1765-1900.
Escalation of Poverty	Extreme poverty rose from 23% (1810) to over 50% (mid-20th century).
Population Decline Due to Famine and Policy	100 million Indians died due to famine and policies (1880-1920).
Stagnant GDP Growth	GDP growth stagnated at 0.55% annually (1850-1947), and per capita income remained flat.

Topic	Details
Economic System Before the British Conquest	Economic System Before the British Conquest
Self-Sufficient Village Communities	• Barter system. • Community ownership of agriculture: Cultivator-Intermediary-State relationship. • Right to cultivate over land with cultivators.
Urban Economy	• Handicrafts and artisan industries. • Key industries: Cotton, Silk, Carpets, Jewellery. • India controlled 1/3rd of world trade.
Impact of British Conquest	Impact of British Conquest

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Topic	Details
Disruption of the Traditional Economy	• Transition from barter to a money economy. • Market-based systems and contract-based employment replaced tradition/custom.
Ruin of Peasantry	• Low productivity: Cultivators had no incentive to invest, zamindars paid little interest, and the government spent little. • Farmers were forced to grow cash crops (indigo, cotton, opium) instead of food grains, leading to food scarcity. • 1850-1900: 2.8 crore deaths due to famine.
Zamindars' Exploitation	• Zamindars resorted to summary evictions, illegal dues, and forced labor (begar). • Ruin of Old Zamindars & Rise of New Landlord Class - Subinfeudation and absentee landlordism.
Deindustrialisation & Ruralisation	• One-way free trade post Charter Act 1813. • 80% tariffs on Indian textile exports. • Monopolization of coastal routes by Europeans. • Laws restricted Indian ships (Eg. 1813 ban on ships >350 tons).
Late Development of Modern Industry	• 1853: First cotton textile mill (Cowasjee Nanabhoy). • 1855: First jute mill, Rishra (George Acland & Babu Bysumber Sen). • Investment in Indian industries was limited due to international demand and internal constraints.

Evolution of British Colonialism -Rajani Palme Dutt

Phase	Period	Key Features	Examples
1. Period of Mercantilism	1757-1813	The British East India Company focused on economic exploitation, monopolizing trade, and draining wealth.	Battle of Plassey (1757), Permanent Settlement (1793), Great Bengal Famine (1770).
2. Period of Industrial Capitalism	1813-1857	British policies turned India into a raw material supplier and a market for British goods, leading to deindustrialization.	Charter Act of 1813 (ended trade monopoly), Destruction of Indian Handicrafts, Railway Expansion (1853).
3. Crown Rule & Economic Drain	1858-1914	After the 1857 Revolt, India came under direct British rule, and economic policies aimed at exploiting resources for Britain's Industrial Revolution.	Drain of Wealth (Naoroji's Theory), Agricultural commercialization, Growth of plantations (Tea, Indigo).
4. Period of Finance Capitalism	1914-1947	British capital investments in railways, banks, and industries strengthened their control, while Indian nationalism intensified.	Second World War Exploitation.

Different Sections within Congress

Aspect	Moderates (1885-1905)	Extremists (1905-1919)
Leadership	Dadabhai Naoroji, Gopal Krishna Gokhale, Pherozeshah Mehta.	Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal, Lala Lajpat Rai.
Approach	Followed constitutional methods, petitions, and dialogues with the British.	Advocated aggressive resistance, boycott, and mass mobilization.
Objective	Sought gradual reforms and self-government under British rule.	Demanded complete Swaraj (self-rule) and immediate independence.
Methods	Used prayers, petitions, speeches, and resolutions to seek reforms.	Promoted Swadeshi, boycott of British goods, and direct action.
View on British Rule	Considered British rule as exploitative but reformable.	Saw British rule as oppressive and destructive.
Major Events	• Indian Councils Act 1892 (constitutional reforms). • Naoroji's Drain Theory exposed British exploitation.	• The Partition of Bengal (1905) led to the Swadeshi Movement. • Formation of Home Rule League (1916).
Reaction to the Partition of Bengal (1905)	Opposed but relied on petitions and appeals.	Launched aggressive protests, the Swadeshi movement, and public agitation.
Role in Freedom Struggle	Laid the foundation for political awakening and economic critique.	Shifted the movement from constitutionalism to mass struggle.
British Response	Engaged with them through reforms and negotiations.	Used repression, arrests, and sedition laws against them.

Achievements and Limitations of Moderates (1885-1905)

Aspect	Achievements	Limitations
Political Awakening	Created national consciousness and exposed British exploitation.	Failed to mobilize the masses, focusing only on educated elites.
Economic Critique	Introduced Dadabhai Naoroji's Drain of Wealth Theory, highlighting British economic exploitation.	Lacked concrete measures to counter British economic policies.
Institutional Reforms	Pressured the British for constitutional reforms, leading to the Indian Councils Act (1892).	Achieved only token reforms with minimal representation for Indians.

Aspect	Achievements	Limitations
Legal & Press Freedom	Strengthened freedom of the press & speech, expanding political debates.	British curbed press freedom through stringent laws like the Vernacular Press Act (1878).
Petition-Based Approach	Established constitutional agitation as a method of political struggle.	Over-reliance on petitions and resolutions failed to bring major changes.
Unity Among Indians	Brought together leaders from different regions and communities.	Lacked unity with Extremists, leading to the Surat Split (1907).
Mild Opposition to British Policies	Criticized policies like high taxation and land revenue exploitation.	Relied on British goodwill, underestimating their imperialist nature.
Social & Educational Reforms	Supported Indianization of services and better education policies.	Could not secure major policy shifts, as the British controlled the administration.
Failure in the Partition of Bengal (1905)	Protested against Bengal's partition but through petitions & resolutions.	Could not prevent the partition, leading to the rise of Extremists and the Swadeshi Movement.

Achievements and Limitations of Extremists (1905-1919)

Aspect	Achievements	Limitations
Mass Mobilization	Involved peasants, workers, and students. Eg. Tilak's Ganpati & Shivaji festivals.	Limited rural participation; mostly urban-based.
Swadeshi & Boycott	Promoted indigenous industries. Eg. Bengal's National Council of Education (1906).	The movement declined after the 1908 repression.
Pressure on the British	Forced Morley-Minto Reforms (1909).	Reforms were limited; Separate electorates divided Hindus & Muslims.
Partition of Bengal (1905)	Led to its reversal in 1911.	The British used divide-and-rule elsewhere.
Revolutionary Activities	Inspired groups like Anushilan Samiti & Ghadar Party. Eg. Alipore Bomb Case (1908).	The British crushed movements with arrests & sedition laws.
Demand for Swaraj	First to demand complete self-rule. Eg. Tilak: "Swaraj is my birthright".	No clear strategy for achieving independence.
Challenging British Authority	Direct protests weakened British control. Eg. Lal-Bal-Pal's agitation in Punjab, Bengal, Maharashtra.	Severe British repression; Tilak jailed (1908).

Aspect	Achievements	Limitations
Foundation for Future Movements	Influenced Non-Cooperation & Civil Disobedience.	Movement declined after leaders were arrested/exiled.

Nationalist Response to 1st & 2nd World Wars

World War	Nationalist Response
First World War (1914-1918)	• Moderates: Supported Britain, hoping that their loyalty would be repaid with political concessions post-war. • Extremists: Also supported Britain, believing that Britain would reward their support and loyalty after the war. • Home Rule Movement (1916-1918): Led by Tilak & Annie Besant, demanded self-rule and mobilized masses. • Rise of Extremist Nationalism: Revolutionary groups like the Ghadar Party (USA-based) planned armed uprisings. Eg. Komagata Maru incident (1914). • Lucknow Pact (1916): Congress and Muslim League united for self-governance, strengthening nationalist demands.
Second World War (1939-1945)	• Congress's Initial Stand: Demanded clarity on India's future before supporting war efforts. The British refused, leading to the Congress ministries' resignation in 1939. • Gandhi: Expressed sympathy for democratic Britain and opposed the totalitarian regimes. However, he opposed Indian participation in the war until India gained independence. • Nehru: Argued that the war was a result of the inner contradictions of capitalism. Advocated for non-participation in the war until India itself was free from colonial rule. • Muslim League's Stand: Supported the British in exchange for the separate Pakistan demand. Eg. Lahore Resolution (1940) called for partition. • August Offer (1940) Rejected: The British promised dominion status after the war, but Congress dismissed it as vague and insufficient. • Individual Satyagraha (1940-41): Launched by Gandhi & Vinoba Bhave to demand free speech rights, later expanded by Nehru. • Cripps Mission (1942) Failed: The British offered post-war self-government, but Congress rejected it as it lacked immediate independence. • Quit India Movement (1942): Congress launched mass protests for complete independence; Leaders were arrested, and the movement was brutally suppressed. • Subhas Chandra Bose & INA (1943-45): Bose allied with the Axis Powers (Germany, Japan) and led the Indian National Army (INA) to fight British rule.

Difference in Nationalist Response to the First and Second World Wars

Aspect	First World War (1914-1918)	Second World War (1939-1945)
Initial Nationalist Stand	Congress supported the British, expecting post-war constitutional reforms.	Congress opposed unconditional support, demanding clarity on India's future.
Political Approach	Adopted a moderate approach, focusing on constitutional demands.	Took a mass struggle approach, leading to direct confrontations.

Aspect	First World War (1914-1918)	Second World War (1939-1945)
Major Movements	The Home Rule Movement (1916-1918) demanded self-governance.	The Quit India Movement (1942) called for immediate independence.
Congress-Muslim League Relations	Lucknow Pact (1916) united Congress and the Muslim League.	Muslim League aligned with the British, demanding Pakistan (Lahore Resolution, 1940).
British Response	The Montagu Declaration (1917) promised gradual self-rule but lacked clarity.	Cripps Mission (1942) failed, as it offered only post-war dominion status.
Mass Mobilization	Limited mass involvement, focused on educated elites.	Widespread mass participation, with protests, strikes, and armed resistance.
Post-War Political Impact	The British introduced the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms (1919), but self-rule was far off.	The British realized India was ungovernable, leading to the Cabinet Mission (1946) & Independence (1947).

Evolution of the Struggle for Independence in Princely States

Phase	Period	Key Developments	Examples
Early Resistance	1857-1920	Limited opposition as princely states remained loyal to the British.	Eg. Most rulers sided with the British during the 1857 Revolt.
Rise of Praja Mandals	1920-1935	Inspired by the Non-Cooperation Movement, people formed Praja Mandals (people's organizations) to demand reforms.	Eg. Mewar Praja Mandal (Rajasthan), Mysore Praja Paksha.
Strengthening of Movements	1935-1940	Demand for responsible government and the end of feudal rule intensified.	Eg. All India States People's Conference (AISPC) formed in 1927 under Vallabhbhai Patel.
Mass Movements in Princely States	1940-1947	Active participation in the Quit India Movement (1942); princely states saw uprisings against rulers who suppressed nationalist sentiments.	Eg. Hyderabad, Travancore, and Bhopal saw strong resistance.
Integration into Independent India	1947-1950	After independence, Sardar Patel led integration efforts, using diplomacy and military action.	Eg. Hyderabad annexed via Operation Polo (1948); Junagadh and Kashmir integrated after referendums/conflict.

Congress rules in the provinces

Topic	Details
Congress Rule in Provinces	Congress ministries were formed in Bombay, Madras, Central Provinces, Orissa, United Provinces, Bihar, and later in NWFP and Assam.
Civil Liberties	• Emergency power laws were repealed. • Ban on illegal organizations lifted (Eg. Hindustan Seva Dal). • Press restrictions were lifted, and newspapers were removed from the blacklist. • Confiscated arms and licenses were restored. • Police powers were curbed, and the CID stopped shadowing politicians. • Political prisoners and revolutionaries were released. Restoration of pensions of officials associated with CDM. • Confiscated CDM land in Bombay was restored. Also, restored the pensions of officials associated with CDM. • Industrial peace was promoted. Reduced strikes, though the approach was repressive. • Welfare for Harijans (Eg. temple entry, public facilities, scholarships, higher education). • Improved public health and sanitation. • Khadi production increased. • Prison reforms implemented. • Establishment of the National Planning Committee (1938).
Negatives	• Limited powers and inadequate resources. • Socialist Yusuf Mahrelly and SS Batliwala were arrested by the Madras government (6-month sentence). • KM Munshi used CID against Communists. • Complex land reforms with class adjustments involving zamindars. • Constraints of time, war clouds (1938). • Reactionary second chamber dominated by British sympathizers (landlords, moneylenders, capitalists).
Evaluation / Significance	• First Experience of Governance: Provided administrative training for future leaders. It demonstrated that state power could be used to further nationalist goals without being co-opted. • Pro-People Policies: Focus on education, health, labor rights, and rural welfare. Eg. Free primary education in Bombay & Madras. It confirmed that self-government was necessary for radical social transformation. • Agrarian Reforms: Reduced rent, prevented forced labor (begar), and provided debt relief. Eg. Bihar Tenancy Act (1938) protected tenant farmers. • Civil Liberties & Press Freedom: Lifted press restrictions and allowed trade unions. • Strengthened Nationalism: Used power to mobilize people against British rule. Eg. Congress resigned in 1939 to protest India's forced WWII participation. • Labor & Industrial Reforms: Improved working conditions, wages, and industrial growth.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Topic	Details
	• Exposed British Limitations on Self-Rule: Showed that Governors retained overriding powers. Eg. Section 93 of the Government of India Act, 1935 used to dismiss ministries. • Grievance Redressal: Congress Grievance committees to present mass petitions to the government. • Dispute Resolution & Justice: Set up Congress Police stations & panchayats to deliver justice to the people. • Social Harmony: The ministries were able to control communal riots, promoting social harmony and weakening the communal influence of the Muslim League, to some extent. • Self-confidence of self-rule: The ministries' commendable work weakened the myth that Indians were not fit to rule. • Glimpse of Free India: People could perceive the future if independence was won.
Challenges	• The capitalist-leaning policies angered the labor class. • The All India Muslim League criticized the Congress for not sharing power. • The Pirpur Committee report highlighted issues: interference in religious rites, suppression of Urdu, and denial of representation. • Failure in Agrarian Reforms: Landlords and zamindars opposed tenancy laws. • Weak Response to Communalism: Hindu-Muslim tensions increased, and Congress failed to counter the Muslim League's separate demands. • Industrial & Labor Conflicts: Congress struggled to balance workers' rights and industrial growth. • Bureaucratic Resistance: British officials delayed or blocked reforms.

Contribution of Leaders

PYQs

[2021] Trace the rise and growth of socio-religious reform movements with special reference to Young Bengal and Brahmo Samaj. (10)
[2017] The women's questions arose in modern India as a part of the 19th century social reform movement. What were the major issues and debates concerning women in that period? (15)

Socio-Religious reform movements

Factors Responsible for Socio-Religious Reform Movements in India

1. Impact of Western Education - The spread of rationalism, humanism, and scientific thinking challenged outdated traditions. Eg. Raja Ram Mohan Roy opposed Sati and caste discrimination.
2. Influence of British Rule - The British policies banned Sati (1829), introduced modern legal systems, and encouraged women's education.
3. Decline of Traditional Institutions - The rigid caste system, untouchability, and gender oppression created demand for reforms. Eg. Jyotiba Phule fought for Dalit and women's rights.
4. Rise of Indian Nationalism - Reformers linked social reform with political awakening, aiming for a progressive society. Eg. Swami Vivekananda's spiritual nationalism.
5. Christian Missionary Influence - Missionaries criticized Hindu practices, pushing Indian thinkers to reform their traditions. Eg. Raja Ram Mohan Roy countered Christianity through rational Hinduism.
6. Technological & Printing Press Revolution - Spread of books, newspapers, and pamphlets helped popularize reform ideas. Eg. Ishwar Chandra Vidyasagar's advocacy for widow remarriage.
7. Urbanization & Socio-Economic Changes - Growth of cities, industries, and middle-class professionals fostered progressive attitudes. Eg. Brahmo Samaj thrived in urban Bengal.
8. Influence of Reformist Leaders - Visionaries like Raja Ram Mohan Roy, Dayanand Saraswati, and Syed Ahmed Khan played a key role in awakening society.
9. Rediscovery of India's Glorious Past - Reformers emphasized Vedic and Upanishadic teachings to counter British claims of Indian inferiority. Eg. Dayanand Saraswati's Arya Samaj revived Vedic ideals.
10. Women's Rights & Education Awareness - Efforts to end child marriage, promote widow remarriage, and uplift women fueled reform movements. Eg. Pandita Ramabai worked for women's education.

Governors-General and Viceroys of India: Significant Events in their Rule

Lord Canning (1856-57 (Governor General) 1857-62 (Viceroy))
Administration	Transfer of control from the East India Company to the Crown, the Government of India Act, 1858.
Queen's Proclamation 1858	• Announced by Lord Canning at Allahabad. • Translated into Indian languages and read publicly. • Ended the Company's rule in India; Queen Victoria assumed the Government of India. • Endorsed the treaties made by the Company with Indian princes. • Promised respect for the rights and dignity of Indian people, protection of law, and freedom of religion. • Gave practical shape to the Act of 1858.
The Government of India Act, 1858	• Created the office of Secretary of State for India (First: Lord Stanley). • Transferred all powers from the EIC to the British Crown after the mutiny of 1857. • Indian territories governed in the name of the British Queen. • Abolished the Court of Directors and Board of Control. • The Secretary of State was a British MP and a member of the Prime Minister's cabinet. • Representative of the British government in India: Governor-General and Viceroy (same person). • The Governor-General is assisted by an Executive Council. • Ended the doctrine of lapse. • Indian Civil Services instituted, allowing for Indian recruitment. • Indian princes and chiefs had independent status if they accepted British suzerainty.
Indian Council Act, 1861	• Restored legislative powers to the provinces of Madras and Bombay. • Introduced the portfolio system (assigning members to specific departments like home, military, law, revenue, finance, public works). • Added 6-12 additional members to the Governor-General's Council, half non-official (British or Indian).

	• The Governor-General had the power to overrule the council and promulgate ordinances during emergencies. • The Secretary of State for India could dissolve any act passed by the Governor-General's Council.
Education	• Established the University of Bombay, Calcutta, and Madras in 1857 as per Wood's Dispatch.
Judiciary	• Indian High Courts Act 1861: Abolished the existing Supreme Court and created High Courts. • The Indian Penal Code 1860 replaced English Criminal Law. • The Civil Procedure Code 1859 and the Criminal Procedure Code 1861 regulated court procedures for civil and criminal matters.
Civil Services and Police	• Satyendra Nath Tagore became the first Indian to qualify for the Indian Civil Service. • Indian Police Act 1861: Recommended guidelines for the police setup in provinces (Inspector-General, Deputy Inspector-General, and SP as heads in various regions).

Lord Lytton (1876-80)

Administration	• Organised the Delhi Durbar in 1877 for Queen Victoria, assuming the title of "Kaiser-i-Hind". • The Royal Titles Act of 1876 was one of Prime Minister Disraeli's famous imperialistic measures. The Act led to the Queen using the imperial title in her signature in 1878, and it appeared on British coins in 1893. • The title Empress of India was officially translated as Kaiser-i-Hind, which was decorated by Queen Victoria at the 1877 Delhi Durbar.
Famine Commission (1878)	• Headed by General Richard Strachey after the Great Famine of 1876-1878. • The commission recommended state interference in food trade in the event of famine.

Lord Lytton (1876-80)
The Arms Act 1878	• Mandatory for Indians to acquire a license for arms. • On the face, it looked reasonable, but in practice, acquiring an arms license was a tedious process for Indians. • An unlicensed gun was punishable by a fine and imprisonment up to 3 years.
Civil Services	• Introduced Statutory Civil Service in 1879, consisting of 1/6 of covenanted posts to be filled by Indians of high families. • The maximum age for these Indians was reduced from 21 to 19 years.
Press	• The Vernacular Press Act 1878 put curbs on vernacular newspapers due to severe criticism of Lord Lytton's administration.
Education	• Foundation of the Mohammedan Anglo-Oriental College in 1877 at Aligarh.

Reputation	• Known as the most liberal Lord and Father of Local Self Government in India. • One who sympathized with Indians. • The first Viceroy to repeal all controversial Acts, including the Vernacular Press Act of 1882.
Administration	• First Factory Act (1881). • Children between the ages of 7-12 were to work for 9 hours/day. • Employment of children below 7 years was prohibited. • Midday meal interval and 4 holidays/month for workers. • Resolution for Local Self-Government (1882): Financial decentralization to improve administration. • Indian Famine Code (1883): Classified food scarcity situations and outlined steps the government had to take during famine. • The Age for the Civil Service exam was raised to 21 years from 19.
Judiciary	• The ILBERT Bill Controversy (1883): The bill aimed to authorize Indian judges to hear cases against Europeans, leading to the White Revolt. The bill was eventually withdrawn.

Lord Rippon (1880-84)
Education	• Hunter Commission (1882): Established to review the progress of education in India since the Wood's Dispatch of 1854.

Lord Curzon (1899-1905)

Partition of Bengal (1905)	• Partition of Bengal into two parts: Bengal and East Bengal (1905), which was a significant administrative move. It also sparked Indian Nationalism, especially among the Bengali community.
Cultural Heritage	• Established the Archaeological Survey of India to restore and preserve India's cultural heritage.
Departments Established	• Created the Department of Commerce and Industry and Agricultural Banks.
Cooperative Credit Societies Act (1904)	• Passed the Cooperative Credit Societies Act (1904) to encourage credit societies in rural areas.
Police Reforms	• Appointed the Police Commission (1902) under Sir Andrew Frazer to review the police administration. • Recommended the establishment of CID (Criminal Investigation Department).
Education Reforms	• Focused on Technical Education. • Established the Agriculture Research Institute at Pusa.
Raleigh Commission (1902)	• Appointed the Raleigh Commission (1902) to suggest improvements to the prospects of universities.
Indian Universities Act (1904)	• Passed the Indian Universities Act (1904) to regulate university education in India.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Lord Chelmsford (1916-1921)

Administration	Government of India Act 1919
Provincial Government Executive	• Dyarchy was introduced with two classes of administrators: Executive Councillors and Ministers. • The Governor was the executive head of the province. • Subjects divided into reserved (law, order, irrigation, finance, land revenue) and transferred (education, local government, health, excise, industry, public works). • Ministers in charge of transferred subjects are responsible to the people. • Executive Councillors not responsible to the legislature. • The Secretary of State and the Governor-General could intervene in reserved matters.
Provincial Government Legislature	• The size of the provincial legislative assemblies increased, with 70% of members elected. • Communal and class electorates introduced. • Some women could vote. • Governor's assent is required to pass bills; veto power is given to the Governor.
Central Government Executive	• Chief executive authority with the Governor-General. • Two lists for administration: central and provincial. • 3 Indian members in the Viceroy's Executive Council. • The Governor-General could issue ordinances and certify rejected bills.
Central Government Legislature	• The bicameral legislature was set up with the Legislative Assembly (lower house) and Council of State (upper house). • Legislative Assembly forerunner of the Lok Sabha; Council of State forerunner of the Rajya Sabha.
Key Legislative Provisions	• Public Service Commission established in India. • Statutory commission after 10 years (led to the Simon Commission in 1927). • The High Commissioner for India in London was created. • Rowlatt Act 1919: Imprisonment without trial, criticized as the "Black Act".

	• S.P. Sinha was appointed as Governor of Bihar, the first Indian Governor.
National Movement	• The Home Rule League Movement was started by Annie Besant and Tilak in 1916 for self-government. • Lucknow Pact 1916: Congress accepted the Muslim League's demand for separate electorates. • Jallianwala Bagh Massacre (1919): General Dyer fired on unarmed protesters, leading to thousands of deaths and loss of trust in British justice. • Satyagraha Movements began under Mahatma Gandhi (Eg. Champaran Satyagraha in Bihar, Kheda Satyagraha in Gujarat). • The Non-Cooperation Movement (1920) was launched by Gandhi as a peaceful protest for Swaraj.
Education	• Saddler's Commission (1917) to reform education policy. • Foundation of the Women's University at Pune in 1916. • Montford Reforms: Recommended more Indians in the Civil Services.

Lord Irwin (1926-1931)

National Movements	• Unexpected Hanging of Bhagat Singh, Rajguru, and Sukhdev: In 1931, these revolutionaries were hanged under the Lahore Conspiracy Case. Azad also died in a police encounter. • Round Table Conferences: In response to the inadequacy of the Simon Report, the British government summoned three Round Table Conferences in London to discuss India's future. • First Round Table Conference (1930): The Congress did not participate. National leaders like Tej Bahadur Sapru, Jayakar, Mohammad Ali Jinnah, and Dr. Ambedkar attended. • Proposals: British Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald proposed a Federal Government under British control. Jinnah demanded a Separate Electorate for Muslims, and Ambedkar for the backward classes. • Outcome: The conference ended without substantial results, proving unsuccessful.

Partition Of Bengal & Events Thereafter

The Partition of Bengal in 1905 is a pivotal moment in India's freedom struggle, symbolizing resilience, unity, and the determination for independence. Announced by Lord Curzon on July 20, 1905, and implemented on October 16, 1905, the decision was reversed six years later.

Causes Of The Bengal Partition

Cause	Details
Administrative Challenges	Bengal (covering present-day West Bengal, Bihar, Odisha, Bangladesh, and Assam) was vast and difficult to govern. The partition aimed to improve administration.
Nationalist Movement	Bengal had become a hub of nationalist activities and Congress-led demands for self-rule. The British viewed the growing unity between Hindus and Muslims as a threat.
Religious and Linguistic Divisions	The British aimed to create divisions among Bengalis by exploiting religious and linguistic differences to weaken the nationalist movement.

Anti-Partition movement under Moderates

Aspect	Details
Leadership	Moderates within the Indian National Congress (INC), including leaders like Surendranath Banerjee, K K Mitra, and Dadabhai Naoroji.
Methods used	- Peaceful protests, petitions, public meetings, propaganda through pamphlets. - Swadeshi (indigenous goods) and Boycott movements. - Public awareness campaigns through newspapers, pamphlets, and speeches.
Key Objectives	- Oppose the partition of Bengal on economic, cultural, and administrative grounds. - Foster Hindu-Muslim unity against the partition. - Promote self-reliance through Swadeshi and Boycott.
Approach	- Constitutional methods - Appeals to British authorities - Delegations to Britain to lobby against the partition.
Role of Newspapers	Newspapers like Hitabdi, Sanjibani, and The Bengalee (edited by Surendranath Banerjee) played a crucial role in spreading awareness and mobilizing public opinion.
Mass response	- Observed as a Day of mourning on 16th October. - Fasting, bathing in Ganga, barefoot mass processions singing Bande Mataram. - Tied rakhis to each other as a symbol of unity. - Raised funds of Rs 50,000 for the movement.
Limitations	- Reliance on peaceful methods and appeals had limited success. - Failure to achieve immediate results led to frustration among younger nationalists.
Transition to extremists	The inability of the Moderates to achieve results led to the rise of Extremists like Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal, and Lala Lajpat Rai, who adopted more radical methods.

Congress Position on Anti-Partition Movement

Aspect	Details
Leadership	Led by the Moderates, President G K Gokhale, Surendranath Banerjee, Gopal Krishna Gokhale, and Dadabhai Naoroji.
Resolutions	- Condemn the partition of Bengal & reactionary policies of Curzon. - Support the anti-partition & Swadeshi movement of Bengal.
Methods	The INC sent delegations to Britain to lobby against the partition and present their case to British officials and parliamentarians.
Focus	The INC emphasized Hindu-Muslim unity and portrayed the partition as a threat to the entire Bengali community, regardless of religion.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Shift in Leadership	Over time, the Extremists within the INC (Eg. Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal, Lala Lajpat Rai) took a more aggressive stance, advocating for mass mobilization and direct action.
Split in Congress	The INC split into Moderates and Extremists at the Surat Session (1907) due to differences in approach, but both factions opposed the partition.

Anti-Partition movement under Extremists

Aspects	Details
Leadership	Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Bipin Chandra Pal, Lala Lajpat Rai, Aurobindo Ghosh.
Ideology	Swaraj (Self-rule), Swadeshi, Boycott, and National Education.
Methods	- Mass mobilization and public meetings, processions. - Boycott of British goods, government schools, colleges, services, courts, etc. - Promotion of Swadeshi goods. - Establishment of national schools and colleges (Bengal National College). - Use of newspapers and journals for propaganda (Dawn by Satishchandra Mukherjee). - Corps of volunteers/samitis (Swadesh Bandhab Samiti by Ashwini Kumar Dutta). - Imaginative use of festivals & Melas like Ganesh & Shivaji festivals by Tilak in MH. - Swadeshi enterprises like Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company by V.O.C. Pillai.
Important events	- Public protests and rallies. - Burning of foreign goods. - Formation of Swadeshi enterprises. - Active participation in cultural and social events to foster nationalism.
Newspapers	- Bande Mataram (edited by Aurobindo Ghosh). - Kesari (edited by Bal Gangadhar Tilak). - New India (by Bipin Chandra Pal).
Role in movement	- Mobilized masses (Students, Women, Muslims, Labour, etc) against the partition. - Advocated for Self-Government. - Opposed the moderate approach of petitions and negotiations.
Impact	- Strengthened nationalist sentiment. - Unified Indians across regions. - Forced the British to reunite Bengal in 1911. - Laid the foundation for future revolutionary movements.

Impact Of The Bengal Partition

Aspect	Positive	Negative
Nationalism	- Strengthened nationalist sentiment and unity among Indians.	- Led to communal tensions b/w Hindus and Muslims due to British divide-and-rule policies.
Economic	- Promotion of Swadeshi goods boosted indigenous industries and self-reliance. Eg. Swadeshi Steam Navigation Company by V.O.C. Pillai.	- Boycott of British goods caused economic hardships for some traders and workers.
Political Awakening	- Mobilized masses and increased political awareness among common people.	- Extremist methods led to repression by the British, including arrests and censorship. Eg. The Rowlatt Act,1919.
Cultural Revival	- Revival of Indian culture, art, and education through national schools and events. Eg. Nationalist paintings by Abhindranath Tagore.	- Overemphasis on cultural identity sometimes alienated minority communities. Eg. Muslim League in 1906.
Social	- Empowered women to participate in the movement, breaking traditional barriers.	- Communal divide deepened, leading to long-term Hindu-Muslim tensions.
Revolutionary Spirit	- Inspired revolutionary activities and laid the foundation for future struggles. Eg. Khudiram Bose attempted to assassinate Kingsford.	- Some extremist actions led to violence, causing loss of life and property.
Unity	- Brought together people from different regions and communities for a common cause. Eg. Tied rakhis on Raksha Bandhan day.	- Divisions emerged between moderates and extremists within the Indian National Congress. Eg. Surat split,1907.
British Response	- Forced the British to reunite Bengal in 1911, showcasing the power of mass protest.	- The British government became more repressive, enacting stricter laws to curb dissent.

Interesting Facts:

1. Rabindranath Tagore composed Amar Sonar Bangla, which became Bangladesh's national anthem.
2. The British passed acts like the Seditious Meeting Act (1907), Criminal Law Amendment Act (1908), and Indian Press Act (1910) to suppress the movement.

Swadeshi Movement

Launched in response to the Partition of Bengal (1905), the Swadeshi Movement was a milestone in India's independence struggle, emphasizing self-sufficiency and nationalist unity.

Key Events Of The Swadeshi Movement

Event	Details
August 7, 1905	The movement officially began with a meeting at Calcutta's Town Hall.
Public Meetings	Public meetings, petitions, and newspapers mobilized support.

Event	Details
	Students became prominent participants.
Boycott Movement	Encouraged the use of indigenous products and the burning of British goods.
Leadership	Prominent leaders included Bal Gangadhar Tilak, Mahatma Gandhi, and Rabindranath Tagore.
Government Response	British repression included lathi charges, press censorship, and banning patriotic activities.
Surat Split (1907)	Internal division among leaders led to the split between Moderates and Extremists.
Khadi and Gramodyog	Wealthy Indians supported Khadi production and village industries to reduce reliance on foreign goods.

Impact Of The Swadeshi Movement

Impact	Details
Mass Participation	Marked a significant departure from earlier movements by involving women, students, and peasants.
National Education	Led to the establishment of national schools and colleges, such as Bengal National College, emphasizing education relevant to Indian conditions.
Economic Impact	Boosted Indian industries like textile mills, soap and match factories, tanneries, banks, and insurance companies, laying the foundation for Indian industrialization.
Cultural Significance	Revived Indian culture through patriotic songs, folk music, and festivals like Rakhi Bandhan and Ganapati, fostering a sense of national pride.
Leadership	Brought forth prominent leaders like Mahatma Gandhi, Bal Gangadhar Tilak, and Rabindranath Tagore, who shaped Indian nationalism.
Government Response	British authorities used repressive measures like lathi charges, press censorship, and the arrest of leaders, contributing to the movement's decline.
Foundation for Future Movements	Laid the groundwork for later movements like the Non-Cooperation Movement (1920) and Quit India Movement (1942), which eventually led to independence in 1947.
Impact on the Indian National Congress	Transformed the Congress by shifting its focus from moderation to extremism and emphasizing the demand for self-rule.
Impact on Indian Society	Encouraged social reform and greater participation in the independence struggle, fostering unity and a collective national identity.

Reasons For The Limited Success Of The Swadeshi Movement

Reason	Details
Government Repression	The British government suppressed the movement through lathi charges, bans on patriotic songs like Vande Mataram, and press censorship.
Limited Mass Appeal	The movement primarily resonated with the upper-middle class and urban population, failing to mobilize peasants and rural communities.
Inability to Practice Non-Cooperation	Although non-cooperation and passive resistance were advocated, they were poorly implemented due to a lack of coordination and severe repression.
Inability to Sustain Momentum	The movement struggled to maintain its initial enthusiasm and momentum, leading to declining public interest over time.
Internal Conflicts and Divisions	Leadership disputes, such as the ideological rift between Bal Gangadhar Tilak and Mahatma Gandhi, weakened the movement's unity.
Lack of Formal Party Structure	Absence of a formal organizational structure hindered effective coordination and sustained execution of movement strategies.
Limited Support from Muslims	Insufficient participation from the Muslim community, due to fears of alienation, limited the movement's inclusiveness and reach.
Surat Split (1907)	The ideological split within the Congress at Surat divided moderates and extremists, significantly weakening the movement.

Event	Surat Split (1907).
Significance	Division within the Indian National Congress between the moderates (Naram Dal) and extremists (Garam Dal), a pivotal event in the Indian independence movement.
Causes of the Split	Causes of the Split
Disagreement Over Resolutions	Disagreement over four key resolutions: Swadeshi, Boycott, National Education, and Self-Government. Extremists wanted these extended beyond Bengal, while moderates preferred a cautious approach.
Failure of the Moderates	Moderates' failure to achieve tangible progress frustrated the extremists, leading to a demand for more radical methods to challenge British rule.
Impatience of Extremists	Extremist leaders, including Bal Gangadhar Tilak, believed that aggressive tactics were essential for attaining Swaraj (self-rule).
Bengal Split Agitation Issue	Extremists wanted a nationwide movement against British rule, while moderates sought to limit actions to Bengal alone.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
International Influences	Successes of Japan (defeating Russia) and Ethiopia (defeating Italy) inspired extremists to adopt a more assertive stance and challenged European invincibility.
Leadership Dispute	Conflict over leadership: Moderates opposed the extremists' choice of Bal Gangadhar Tilak or Lala Lajpat Rai as Congress president and instead backed Rash Behari Ghose. The session was shifted from Nagpur to Surat, worsening tensions.
Impact of the Surat Split	Impact of the Surat Split
Weakening of the Congress	The split weakened the Congress, dividing the nationalist movement and undermining its ability to present a united front.
Impetus for Reforms	The division provided an opportunity for the British to introduce the Minto-Morley Reforms in 1909, which aimed to placate sections of Indian society by offering limited constitutional reforms.
Benefit to the British Government	The split allowed the British to exploit the divide between moderates and extremists, stalling the nationalist movement and maintaining control over India.
Rise of Revolutionary Movements	The absence of strong extremist leaders led disillusioned youth to adopt revolutionary terrorism as a form of resistance against colonial rule.
Reunion in Lucknow (1916)	The moderates and extremists reunited at the Lucknow Session of Congress in 1916, recognizing the necessity of unity to achieve common goals.
Overall Impact	While the split initially weakened the nationalist movement, it set the stage for future reforms and strategies, ultimately strengthening the fight for independence.

International Influence On Nationalist Movements

Country	Nationalist Movement	Key Points
Ireland	Irish Land War (1870 to 1882) and Home Rule Movement (1870s to 1910s).	Land reforms favoring tenants. Advocacy for self-government for Ireland within the United Kingdom.
Japan	Meiji Restoration (1868, continued into the 1870s).	Modernization, industrialization, and westernization. Abolition of the feudal system.
Egypt	Orabi Revolt (1879 to 1882).	Anti-European and anti-Ottoman revolt led by Ahmed Orabi. British intervention resulted in a British protectorate.
Turkey	Young Turk Revolution (1908).	Restoration of the Ottoman constitution. Beginning of modernization and reduction of European influence.

Country	Nationalist Movement	Key Points
Persia	Persian Constitutional Revolution (1905 to 1911).	Demands for a constitution and parliament. Aimed at reducing foreign influence and modernizing Persia.
China	Hundred Days' Reform (1898) and Boxer Rebellion (1899 to 1901).	Short-lived reform movement aiming to modernize China. Anti-foreign uprising to reduce foreign influence.

Morley Minto Reforms Or Indian Councils Act Of 1909

The Morley-Minto Reforms, also known as the Indian Councils Act of 1909, were a series of reforms enacted by the British Parliament in 1909. The reforms were a response to the growing nationalist movement in India and the demands for greater participation in governance.

They were also influenced by the Shimla Deputation, a group of Muslim elites who met with Lord Minto and demanded separate electorates for Muslims.

Positive Features	Negative Features
Increased Representation: The reforms increased the number of Indian members in the Central Legislative Council and provincial legislative councils, providing more opportunities for Indians to participate in governance.	Communal Divide: The reforms introduced separate electorates for Muslims, which fostered communalism and hindered India's historical progress toward unity.
Separate Electorates: The reforms introduced separate electorates for Muslims, ensuring their representation in legislative councils and addressing their concerns about underrepresentation.	Limited Progress: The reforms did not provide real power to the legislative councils, as members were still chosen indirectly and the councils did not have any actual powers, such as budget debate.
Indirect Elections: The reforms introduced indirect elections, where local bodies elected an electoral college, which in turn elected members of provincial legislatures, who then elected members of the central legislature.	Limited Association of Indians: The reforms limited the association of Indians with the executive councils of the Viceroy and Governors, with only one Indian member appointed to the Viceroy's Executive Council.
Deliberative Functions: The reforms enlarged the deliberative functions of the legislative councils at both the central and provincial levels, allowing members to ask supplementary questions, move resolutions on the budget, and so on.	Limited Franchise: The reforms introduced a restricted franchise, excluding women from voting rights and limiting the franchise in other ways.
Association with Executive Councils: The reforms provided for the association of Indians with the executive councils of the Viceroy and Governors, with Satyendra Prasad Sinha becoming the first Indian to join the Viceroy's Executive Council.	No Self-Governance: The reforms did not provide for self-governance or parliamentary accountability, which was a major disappointment for nationalists.

Aspect	Details
Event	Morley-Minto Reforms (1909).
Significance	The reforms had significant consequences for India, both positive and negative, impacting the nationalist movement and contributing to communal tensions.
Impact
Divided Nationalist Forces	The reforms created divisions within the nationalist movement, reinforcing existing splits between the Moderates and Extremists, thus hindering the emergence of a unified nationalist front.
Stifling Nationalist Unity	Separate electorates and indirect elections deepened regional, class, and community divisions, preventing the formation of a cohesive movement against British rule.
Communal Tensions	Separate electorates for Hindus and Muslims institutionalized religious divisions, creating an "us vs. them" mentality between communities and contributing to greater communal strife in the future.
Overall Impact	While the reforms allowed some Indian participation in governance, they fostered communal divisions, weakened nationalist unity, and delayed India's path to independence.

Growth of Communalism

Aspect	Details
Definition of Communalism	The belief that the interests of a particular religious group are distinct and often incompatible with those of other communities.
Factors Leading to the Rise of Communalism	Factors Leading to the Rise of Communalism
British Divide and Rule Policy	The British exploited religious and social differences to maintain control over India, weakening the collective power of Indian nationalism by dividing communities against each other.
Communalism in History Writing	British historical narratives portrayed ancient India as predominantly Hindu and medieval India as primarily Muslim, deepening religious divisions.
Influence of Leaders and Organizations	Organizations like the All-India Muslim League and Hindu Mahasabha promoted religious identities, heightening religious consciousness and further dividing Indian society.
Impact of Religious Reform Movements	Movements like Wahhabi and Shuddhi aimed at promoting Islamic and Hindu identity, contributing to the rise of religious consciousness and division.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Side Effects of Militant Nationalism	Cultural symbols, like Ganpati and Shivaji festivals, became associated with Hindu nationalism, fostering a "majority vs. minority" mentality and further polarizing communities.
Impacts of Communalism in India	Impacts of Communalism in India
Division of Nationalist Movements	Communalism fragmented the unity of the Indian freedom struggle, replacing shared political objectives with religious identities, weakening the collective effort against British colonial rule.
Role in Partition	Communal tensions fueled by divisive politics led to the partition of India in 1947, resulting in the creation of Pakistan as a separate Muslim state.
Distracted Focus	Communal conflicts diverted attention and resources from the primary goal of independence, prolonging the struggle against colonial oppression.
Political Exploitation	The British exploited communal differences to implement a "divide and rule" policy, weakening Indian resistance.
Violence and Riots	Communalism led to violent riots, such as Direct Action Day (16 August 1946), resulting in significant loss of life and property, disrupting the social fabric and undermining the momentum of the freedom struggle.

World War 1 And Its Impacts

Parameter	Details of World War 1 (1914-1918) Impact on India
Global Conflict	Allied Powers (UK, France, Russia, Italy, Japan, USA from 1917) vs Central Powers (Germany, Austria-Hungary, Ottoman Empire).
Economic Impacts	Increased taxes and rising prices due to high military expenditures. Temporary economic growth due to demand for agricultural and industrial goods, but also inflation.
Labour Impact	Recruitment for war efforts caused labour shortages in agricultural sectors.
Loss of Lives	Significant loss of lives from India due to participation in the war.
Nationalist Sentiment	The war heightened nationalist feelings and disillusionment with British rule.
Political Disillusionment	Promises of greater self-governance were not fully honored, leading to widespread dissatisfaction.
Rowlatt Act	The Rowlatt Act (1919) was passed, leading to protests across India.
Jallianwala Bagh Massacre	The Jallianwala Bagh Massacre (1919) significantly intensified the struggle for Indian independence.

Aspect	Details
	• Court martials of armed forces personnel.
Significance	• Marked a shift towards revolutionary methods in the independence struggle. • Took a secular approach, uniting Indians of various religions. • Inspired future revolutionary movements and raised international awareness of India's struggle. • Exposed the determination of Indian immigrants to resist British discrimination.
Criticism	• Lacked sustained and organized leadership. • Plans often leaked due to inadequate secrecy and coordination.

Jallianwala Bagh

Event	Details
Jallianwala Bagh Massacre (April 13, 1919)	Incident: General Dyer ordered troops to fire on an unarmed gathering of men, women, and children in Amritsar, Punjab. Casualties: Over 1,000 people killed or wounded (official British count understated casualties). Context: Protest against the Rowlatt Act and government repression.
Impact	• Marked a turning point in India's struggle for independence. • Shifted many moderate nationalists to adopt more radical approaches.
Reactions from Prominent Leaders	• Mahatma Gandhi: Declared that cooperation with the "satanic regime" of the British was impossible. • Rabindranath Tagore: Renounced his Knighthood in protest. • Gandhi: Returned his Kaiser-i-Hind medal, awarded for his service during the Boer War.
Symbolism in the Freedom Struggle	• Inspired Bhagat Singh and others in the Naujawan Bharat Sabha to work towards overthrowing British rule. • Unified Indians across regions, religions, and classes in their outrage.
Consequences for British Rule	• Sparked widespread condemnation, including from British leaders like Winston Churchill. • Dyer faced criticism but remained unrepentant; his actions were praised by some conservatives in Britain.

Post World War I

Event	Details
Lucknow Pact (1916)	• Agreement between Congress and the Muslim League to work together for Indian self-rule. • Proposed separate electorates and safeguards for minorities.

Event	Details
Rowlatt Act Agitation (1919)	• The Rowlatt Act (1919) empowered the British government to arrest and imprison Indians without trial. • Gandhi called for protests, leading to nationwide strikes and demonstrations.
Hindu-Muslim Unity	• The agitation brought together Hindus, Muslims, and other sections of society. • Radical nationalist Muslims like Muhammad Ali, Abul Kalam Azad, Hakim Ajmal Khan, and Hasan Imam became more influential than conservative leaders from Aligarh.

1. The Jallianwala Bagh Massacre was a turning point that solidified Indian unity and deepened anti-colonial sentiment.
2. The Rowlatt Act exposed the exploitative and authoritarian nature of British rule, galvanizing a pan-Indian protest movement.
3. Post-WWI developments saw greater Hindu-Muslim unity, but also rising radicalism among Indian nationalist groups.

Khilafat And Non-Cooperation Movement

Aspect	Details
Common Approach	Both the Khilafat Movement and the Non-Cooperation Movement shared the approach of non-violence and non-cooperation in their fight against British rule during 1919-22.
Causes of the Movements	Causes of the Movements
Government Hostilities	The imposition of the Rowlatt Act, martial law in Punjab, and the Jallianwala Bagh massacre exposed the brutality of British rule, igniting widespread discontent.
Discontented Indians	The Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms, introducing dyarchy, failed to meet demands for greater self-governance, leading to dissatisfaction.
Post-War Economic Hardships	The rise in prices, high taxes, and economic difficulties following World War I worsened anti-British sentiments.
Khilafat Movement (1919-1924)	Khilafat Movement (1919-1924)
Ideology Behind	The movement was rooted in the belief that the Caliph (Sultan of Turkey) was the religious leader of Muslims worldwide. British actions against the Ottoman Empire and the Sultan deeply upset Indian Muslims, who viewed the Caliphate as a symbol of unity for the Muslim world.
Causes	The British actions towards Turkey, including support for the dismemberment of the Ottoman Empire, provoked strong resentment among Muslims, leading to the Khilafat Movement in defense of the Caliph's authority.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Prominent Leaders Involved	Key figures in the Khilafat Movement included Maulana Abul Kalam Azad, M.A. Ansari, and the Ali brothers (Shaukat Ali and Mohammad Ali), who mobilized Muslim support for the movement.
Merger with the Non-Cooperation Movement	The Khilafat Movement merged with Gandhi's Non-Cooperation Movement in 1920, creating a united Hindu-Muslim front against British colonial rule. Gandhi's non-violence and non-cooperation resonated with the Khilafat leaders, leading to this alliance.

Impacts	Limitations
Strengthening of Congress-Muslim League Alliance: Fostered collaboration between Congress and the Muslim League.	Religious Basis: Limited appeal to non-Muslims due to its religious foundations.
Mobilized Indian Muslim Population: Encouraged political activism among a large section of Indian Muslims.	Failure of Goals: The objective of preserving the Ottoman Caliphate was not achieved.
Promotion of Non-Cooperation: Integrated into Gandhi's broader Non-Cooperation Movement.	British Repression: Faced heavy suppression, including arrests and crackdowns by the British.
Rise of Leaders: Prominent leaders like Maulana Abul Kalam Azad and Muhammad Ali Jinnah emerged.	Decline Post-1922: The movement lost momentum after the abolition of the Caliphate in 1924 by Mustafa Kemal Atatürk.
Cultural Revival: Sparked a revival of Islamic identity and heritage.	Sectarian Tensions: Increased tensions between Hindus and Muslims in certain areas, impacting unity.

Aspect	Details
Key Features of the Movement	Key Features of the Movement
Boycott of British Institutions	Indians were encouraged to boycott British-run educational institutions, courts, and government offices.
Non-violent Resistance	Gandhi emphasized non-violence, seeking to unite people against British rule without resorting to violence.
Mass Participation	The movement saw widespread participation from all sections of Indian society, including peasants, workers, students, teachers, and women.
Significance of the Movement	Significance of the Movement

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Mass Mobilization	The movement spread nationalism across India, reaching even remote areas, making it a true mass movement.
Hindu-Muslim Unity	The merger of the Khilafat Movement with the Non-Cooperation Movement fostered greater unity between Hindus and Muslims.
Endurance and Sacrifice	The movement showcased the Indian population's willingness to endure hardships and make sacrifices for independence.
End of the Movement	Gandhi called off the movement in 1922 after the Chauri Chaura incident, where violence broke out. He suspended the movement to preserve its non-violent character. The movement still had a lasting impact.

Post NCM Course Of Action And Debate About The Strategy

Parameters	Swarajists	No-Changers
Founders	C.R. Das, Motilal Nehru, and Ajmal Khan.	Rajendra Prasad and Vallabh Bhai Patel.
Objective	Use legislative councils to expose government weaknesses.	Focused on constructive work and preparing for the next phase of civil disobedience.
Method	Protest within the council rather than boycotting. Giving hate speeches to expose British exploitation.	Obstruct house proceedings. Focus on non-violent, constructive activities.
Ideological Position	Worked within Congress under Gandhiji's presidency, but from within the council.	Worked within Congress under Gandhiji's presidency.
Achievements	Outvoted the government on several issues, including the defeat of the Public Safety Bill in 1928.	Promoted the charkha, khadi, and set up national schools and colleges. Ensured Hindu-Muslim unity.
Similarities	Both groups were determined to end colonial rule and sought independence. Both recognized the bitter division of Congress from the Surat Split (1907) and worked as different wings under Gandhiji.	Both groups were determined to end colonial rule and sought independence. Both recognized the bitter division of Congress from the Surat Split (1907) and worked as different wings under Gandhiji.

The Emergence Of New Forces - Socialistic Ideas, Youth & Trade Unionism

Emerging Force	Details
Soviet Revolution	Inspired young nationalists to criticize Gandhian ideas and seek more radical solutions to India's problems.

Emerging Force	Details
Communist Party of India (CPI)	Founded in 1920 in Tashkent, marking the formal entry of socialism into Indian politics.
Repression of Communist Leaders	Key figures were imprisoned, as seen in the Kanpur Bolshevik Conspiracy Case (1924) and the Meerut Conspiracy Case (1929), which targeted communist activists.
Activism of Indian Youth	Youth activism grew, with the formation of student leagues and conferences. Jawaharlal Nehru played a significant role in engaging students in the nationalist struggle.
Peasant Agitations	Peasants began agitating for tenancy law revisions, lower rents, eviction protection, and debt relief. Key uprisings took place in regions like the United Provinces, Andhra, Rajasthan, Bombay, and Madras.
Bardoli Satyagraha	Led by Vallabhbhai Patel in Gujarat (1928), a significant peasant movement highlighted growing dissatisfaction.
Growth of Trade Unions	The All-India Trade Union Congress (AITUC) was founded in 1920. Major strikes occurred in industrial centers like Kharagpur, Tata Iron and Steel Works, and Bombay Textile Mills.
May Day Observance	The first May Day was observed in Madras in 1923, signaling growing worker awareness of their rights.
Caste Movements	Caste-based movements emerged, with notable ones like the Justice Party, Self-respect Movement, and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar's movements for the Mahars (Dalits).
Revolutionary Activities	Discontent with Gandhian non-violence led some to armed struggle. Groups like the Hindustan Republican Association became active in regions like Punjab, UP, and Bihar. Surya Sen led revolutionary activities in Bengal.
Organized Armed Struggle	Revolutionaries focused on propaganda, recruitment, and arms, understanding that armed struggle required systematic organization, especially in North India.

Revolutionary Activities:

1. Several groups dissatisfied with Gandhian non-violence resorted to armed struggle. The Hindustan Republican Association became active in regions like Punjab, UP, and Bihar.
2. Surya Sen led revolutionary activities in Bengal.
3. In North India, revolutionaries realized that armed struggle required not only direct action but also propaganda, recruitment, and arms, which they sought to organize.

The activism of youth, the rise of trade unionism, peasant agitations, and the influence of socialist ideas during the 1920s and 1930s played a crucial role in India's nationalist struggle. These forces contributed to shaping the direction of the independence movement, marking a significant departure from Gandhian non-violence and propelling India toward a more radical phase in its quest for freedom.

Revolutionary Activities:

The revolutionary activities were a defining aspect of the country's quest for freedom from British colonial rule, driven by a desire for liberty and armed resistance, forming a distinct nationalist force.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Ideology of Revolutionaries: Strike terror in the hearts of rulers, Freedom through revolution, Heroic actions, supreme sacrifice, assassinate unpopular British officials, Expel British with force.

Reasons	Impacts
Economic exploitation of Indians by the British Government and the Partition of Bengal amplified the spirit of nationalism among the countrymen.	Secret societies of revolutionaries came up all over the country. Eg. The Anushilan Samiti created revolutionary centers all over India.
The fallout of the Swadeshi and Boycott Movement was the immediate reason.	It had an impact on the Congress' strategy to involve the youth in the short-term program of rural reconstruction.
Leadership's failure to tap the revolutionary energies of the youth.	Their sacrifices aroused the emotions of the Indians, which helped build national consciousness.
Government repression left no peaceful avenues open for the protest.	It could not mobilize the masses. They believed in individual heroism.
Inspired by the individual heroic action along the lines of Irish nationalists or Russian nihilists.

Though the revolutionary movement failed, it made a valuable contribution to the growth of nationalism in India. Bhagat Singh, Chandrashekhar Azad, Rajguru, etc., became household names of the Indian people and aroused patriotism among the masses.

Revolutionary's Role in the Indian Freedom Struggle	Details
Popularity of Printed Materials	The use of printing for pamphlets and hygiene manuals became popular, aiding in the dissemination of information and education.
Spreading Revolutionary Ideas	Revolutionaries popularized radical ideologies like socialism, Marxism, and secularism, inspiring future movements. Eg. Bhagat Singh's attraction to anarchism and communism.
Establishment of Revolutionary Organizations	Secret societies and organizations like Anushilan Samiti, Mitra Mela, Jugantar Party, Abhinav Bharat, Hindustan Republican Association, and Hindustan Socialist Republican Association (HSRA) were formed.
Military and Professional Training	Revolutionary groups incorporated training in military and professional skills, including weapons, to prepare individuals for the freedom struggle.
Influential Newspapers	Newspapers like Bengalee, Bande Mataram, and Amrita Bazar Patrika were established to voice revolutionary ideas and news.

Revolutionary's Role in the Indian Freedom Struggle	Details
Subsequent Movements	Revolutionary movements had a lasting impact, influencing subsequent phases of the freedom struggle. Examples include the Kakori Conspiracy Case and Lahore Conspiracy Case.

Revolutionary Movement

Aspect	Details
Founding of the Ghadar Party	The Ghadar Party was founded on July 15, 1913, in the United States by Lala Har Dayal and other expatriate Indians, initially called the Pacific Coast Hindustan Association.
Aims of the Ghadar Party	The party aimed to overthrow British rule by assassinating British officials, publishing anti-imperialist literature, collaborating with Indian soldiers, acquiring arms, and inciting revolts.
The Ghadar Mutiny	During World War I, members of the Ghadar Party attempted to incite an armed revolution in Punjab. The mutiny was suppressed, leading to the execution of 42 mutineers in the Lahore Conspiracy Case.
Support for the Party	The party received support from Germany and the Ottoman Empire. It published a weekly newspaper called The Ghadar, advocating rebellion against British rule. The Komagata Maru incident of 1914 also contributed to support.
Causes of Failure	The movement failed due to arrests of leaders, lack of local support, and misjudging the loyalty of the native population, particularly Sikhs who were integrated into the British Army.
Ideological Significance	Despite failure, the Ghadar Party's ideology promoting militant nationalism and secularism significantly influenced India's independence movement.

Simon Commission

Aspect	Details
Establishment of the Simon Commission	The Simon Commission was established by the British government to review the Government of India Act of 1919 and propose further reforms.
Objectives of the Simon Commission	The Commission aimed to review the Government of India Act (1919), foster communal divisions, and destabilize India's social unity.
Impact on Political Mobilization	The Commission mobilized a new generation of young people into political action, with radical forces calling for total independence and socioeconomic reforms.
Challenge to Political Parties	The Commission's challenge for political parties to create a mutually agreed constitution led to greater unity among Indian political groups.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Impact on Governance	The Commission delayed the transfer of governance powers to Indians, encouraged regional movements, and weakened national unity.
Influence on Future Reforms	The Simon Commission's report contributed to the promise of dominion status for India and influenced the Government of India Act of 1935.
Provincial Elections of 1937	The first provincial elections held in 1937 saw Congress-led governments in most provinces, marking the growing political influence of the Indian National Congress.

Group	Key Response
Congress	Resolution to boycott the commission at every stage and form during the Madras session (December 1927).
	Declaration of complete independence as Congress's goal.
Other Groups	Hindu Mahasabha, liberals, and Jinnah-led Muslim League faction supported Congress's boycott call.
	Muslim League held two sessions: one opposing and one supporting the commission.
	Punjab Unionists and the Justice Party chose not to boycott.
Public Response	Nationwide hartal on the commission's arrival in Bombay (February 3, 1928).
	Black flag protests, hartals, and 'Simon Go Back' chants.
Protest in Lahore	Lala Lajpat Rai led a protest in Lahore, was injured by a lathi charge, and later died.
Dr. B.R Ambedkar	Submitted a report on the education of oppressed classes.

Criticism of the Simon Commission:

1. The entirely British composition of the Commission was seen as a slight to Indian nationalism, leading to a boycott by the Indian National Congress.
2. The British government justified the Commission's composition by stating that it had to report to the British Parliament.
3. This argument was contested due to the existence of Indian members in the British Parliament.
4. The British government claimed that the lack of unanimous Indian opinion on constitutional development made it impossible to appoint an Indian member to the Commission.

Nehru Report (1928)

Aspect	Details
Leader of the Nehru Report	Pt. Motilal Nehru.
Context	Prepared in response to Lord Birkenhead's request for Indian leaders to draft a constitution for India.
Dominion Status	Advocated for India to be granted Dominion Status within the British Commonwealth, with a parliamentary system of government.
Fundamental Rights	Proposed the protection of fundamental rights, including freedom of speech, religion, and equality before the law.
Provincial Autonomy	Suggested a federal structure with substantial autonomy for provinces to govern their internal affairs.
Representation and Franchise	Recommended universal adult suffrage without discrimination based on gender, religion, or property ownership.
Minority Safeguards	Included provisions to protect the rights of religious and linguistic minorities and preserve their cultural and educational interests.

Group	Response
Muslim League's Response	Led by Mohammad Ali Jinnah, the Muslim League largely rejected the Nehru Report. In 1929, Jinnah presented the Fourteen Points as core demands for the Muslim community. One major concern was the report's dismissal of separate electorates and weightage for Muslims, granted in the 1916 Lucknow Pact. The League demanded that residuary powers be delegated to the provinces. Criticized the Nehru Report for policies that jeopardized the political future of Muslims.
India's Response	The Nehru Report was widely accepted by Indian political parties. It marked a significant step in presenting a united Indian demand for self-rule and constitutional reforms. The report emerged as a crucial document representing the Indian demand for a comprehensive and inclusive constitutional framework.

Salt March

Aspect	Details
Dates	March 12 • April 6, 1930
Causes	Long-term: Oppressive salt tax, symbolizing exploitation under British rule. Immediate: Gandhi's call for Civil Disobedience; ignored 11-point demand (Jan 1930). Needed a strong event to inspire mass participation.
Route	Sabarmati Ashram to Dandi (Navsari), 240 miles (~390 km).

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Chronology	Beginning March 12 → 24 days, Gandhi broke the salt law at Dandi on April 6, 1930, at 8:30 AM.
Participation	Peasants, workers, students, women, leaders like Sarojini Naidu and Abbas Tyabji.
Significance of Salt	• Universally essential commodity. • Taxed to exploit the rural poor. • Symbolic link between swaraj and common grievances. • Like khadi, allowed mass participation through self-help and symbolic defiance.
Impact	Short-term: Breaking the salt law inspired defiance against unjust British laws. Long-term: Turning point demonstrating the effectiveness of nonviolent resistance.
British Response	Nehru was arrested (April 1930). Gandhi was arrested (May 4, 1930). Mass protests and repression followed (Eg. Bombay, Calcutta, Sholapur).
Spread	Salt law defiance extended nationwide, supported by strikes, boycotts, and other forms of Civil Disobedience.
Regional Movements	• Tamil Nadu: C. Rajagopalachari led a march from Trichinopoly to Vedaranniyam. • Malabar: K. Kelappan organized salt marches. • Peshawar: Led by Khan Abdul Gaffar Khan; Khudai Khidmatgars played a significant role. • Sholapur: Fierce protests; martial law imposed. • Andhra, Orissa, Gujarat: Salt law defiance and no-tax movements.
Government Response	Ordinances banning Civil Disobedience; arrests of leaders; Violent repression including lathi charges, shootings, and martial law.
Gandhi-Irwin Pact (1931)	• Government Concessions: 1. Release of political prisoners (non-violent offenders). 2. Right to make salt in coastal areas for personal use. 3. Leniency towards resigned government servants. • Congress Concessions: 1. Suspend Civil Disobedience. 2. Participate in the Second Round Table Conference.
Significance	Inspired future non-violent movements worldwide (Eg. Martin Luther King Jr., James Bevel).

Civil Disobedience Movement

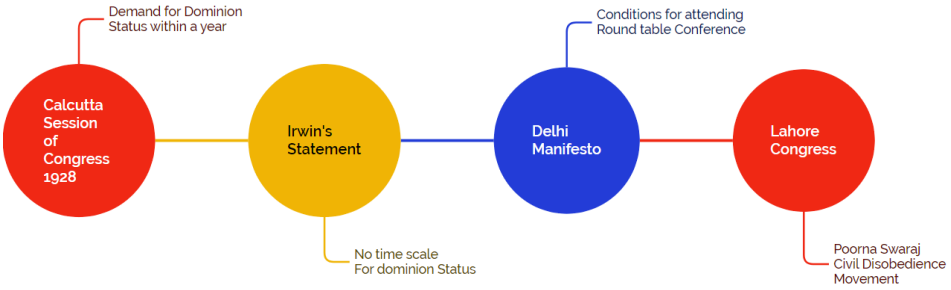

1. On April 6, 1930, Mahatma Gandhi initiated the Civil Disobedience Movement by collecting salt at the end of the Dandi March from Sabarmati Ashram to Dandi, breaking the government's salt law.
2. His leadership galvanized widespread grassroots involvement in the freedom movement.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

3. The movement gained momentum nationwide as people rebelled against the salt tax. During the initial stage of the movement, salt-making emerged across the nation, symbolizing public resistance against the government.

Objective: The movement aimed to challenge British salt laws and unfair taxation policies, while also demanding complete independence for India.

Negotiations and Truce: After several months, negotiations took place between the British and Indian leaders, leading to the Gandhi-Irwin Pact in 1931, which temporarily halted the movement.

Comparison Of Khilafat, NCM And CDM

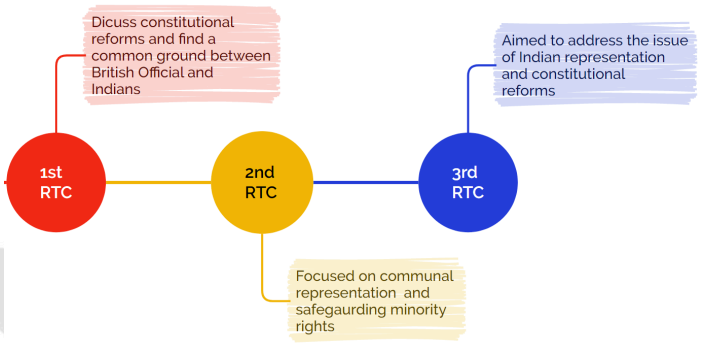

Parameters	Khilafat Movement	Non-Cooperation Movement (NCM)	Civil Disobedience Movement (CDM)
Causes for Emergence	Dissatisfaction with the Treaty of Sèvres, which dismembered the Ottoman Empire.	Reaction to the Rowlatt Act, Jallianwala Bagh Massacre, and dissatisfaction with the Montagu-Chelmsford Reforms.	Failure of the Simon Commission and Round Table Conferences, imposition of the salt tax, and economic hardships.

Movement Included Which Type of Boycotts?	Boycott of British goods and institutions as part of the wider non-cooperation movement.	Comprehensive boycott of British goods, institutions, services, and educational institutions, and return of British honors.	Boycott of salt tax, foreign goods, refusal to pay taxes, and violation of forest laws.
Significance	Aimed at fostering Hindu-Muslim unity by addressing a Muslim cause.	Marked a significant escalation in India's independence struggle; Introduced the concept of mass participation.	Demonstrated the power of non-violent civil disobedience; Brought the Indian independence issue to international attention and led to the Gandhi-Irwin Pact.
Impact	Fostered short-lived Hindu-Muslim unity; Increased political awareness among Muslims.	Energized the national movement, laid the groundwork for future movements, but Hindu-Muslim unity began to wane towards the end.	Led to the Government of India Act 1935; Increased communal divisions but paved the way for the Quit India Movement.
British Suppression /Decline	Suppressed by the British; Declined after the abolition of the Caliphate.	Severely repressed by the British; Gandhi withdrew the movement after the Chauri Chaura incident.	Intense government repression ended with Gandhi's withdrawal of the movement and subsequent negotiations in the Second Round Table Conference.

Round Table Conferences

Nevertheless, the conferences played a role in shaping the political discourse and highlighting the diverse interests and challenges in India's struggle for self-rule.

Factors	1st RTC (1930-1931)	2nd RTC (1931)	3rd RTC (1932)
Key Participants	Ramsay MacDonald (British PM), B.R. Ambedkar, Tej Bahadur Sapru, Aga Khan III, Srinivasa Sastri, Sarojini Naidu, various Princes, and Representatives from Indian States.	Mahatma Gandhi, B.R. Ambedkar, Madan Mohan Malaviya, Sarojini Naidu, Sir Mohammad Iqbal, Aga Khan III, Ramsay MacDonald (British PM).	B.R. Ambedkar, Tej Bahadur Sapru, Sir Mohammad Iqbal, various Representatives from Indian States.
Main Discussions	Structure of government in British India. Representation of provinces. Role of native princes in governance. Minority representation and rights.	Representation in the central legislature. Minority rights and representation. Federal structure. Gandhi-Irwin Pact and its implications.	Separate electorate for Depressed Classes (Scheduled Castes). Minority community representation. Drafting of a new constitution for India.
Key Outcomes	Agreement on federal structure with autonomy for provinces. Consensus on communal representation.	Disagreements between Congress and other parties led to no significant outcomes. British government lost faith in Congress as the sole representative of Indian interests.	Communal Award declared. Poona Pact between B.R. Ambedkar and Mahatma Gandhi revised the Communal Award, increasing representation for Depressed Classes.

Communal Award And Poona Pact, 1932

Communal Awards:

Aspect	Details
Provincial Legislature Seats	Seats were set to be doubled.
Separate Electorates for Minorities	Separate electorates for various minorities were maintained.
Muslim Representation	Muslims received additional representation in areas where they were a minority.
Women's Representation	In all provinces except NWFP, 3% of seats were reserved for women.
Depressed Classes Recognition	Depressed classes, Dalits, and untouchables were officially recognized as minorities.
Specific Allocations	Allocations were made for labor, landlords, traders, and industrialists.
Communal Groups with Separate Electorates	Muslims, Europeans, Sikhs, Indian Christians, Anglo-Indians, Depressed Classes, and Marathas received separate electorates.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Depressed Classes Electorates	Depressed classes were allocated seats through elections from constituencies where only they could vote, but they could also vote in general elections.
Special Electorates	Special electorates were established for sectors like labor, commerce, industry, mining, plantations, and landowners.
Sikh Representation in Punjab	In Punjab, Sikhs, who comprised 13.2% of the population, were allocated 32 out of 175 seats.

Communal Award	Poona Pact
Muslim leaders welcomed it as it ensured separate representation for Muslims.	The Poona Pact was an agreement between Mahatma Gandhi and Dr. B.R. Ambedkar in September 1932.
Many Hindu leaders criticized it for perpetuating caste divisions.	The agreement aimed to address the issue of separate electorates for the depressed classes as proposed by the Communal Award.
The award was seen as a threat to Hindu unity and the political aspirations of the depressed classes.	Proposed reservation of seats for the depressed classes within the general electorate instead of separate electorates.
Mahatma Gandhi strongly opposed the Communal Award and undertook a fast unto death in protest.	Gandhi and Ambedkar reached a compromise to ensure the political representation of the depressed classes while preserving Hindu unity.

Government Of India Act 1935

The Government of India Act 1935 was a significant piece of legislation enacted by the British Parliament to address the growing demands for greater Indian participation in the governance of the country.

Major provisions:

1. Federal Structure: Establishment of a federal structure for India, with power divided between the central government and the provinces. This federation never fructified since princely states did not join it.
2. Provincial Autonomy: It granted a significant degree of autonomy to the provinces, empowering them with legislative and executive authority over a range of subjects.
3. Separate Electorates: It retained the provision of separate electorates for religious minorities, ensuring representation for Muslims, Sikhs, Christians, and Anglo-Indians.
4. Franchise: The Act introduced limited electoral reforms, expanding the electorate by extending voting rights to a larger segment of the population.
5. Central Government: It established a bicameral legislature at the centre, consisting of the Federal Assembly and the Council of States.
6. Reserved Subjects: It assigned reserved subjects, exclusively to the central government's jurisdiction, including defence, foreign affairs, and the administration of tribal areas.
7. Provincial Governors: It introduced the concept of provincial governors, who held significant powers and acted as representatives of the British Crown.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

8. All India Federation: It proposed the formation of an All-India Federation, which would include both the British Indian provinces and the princely states.

Significance	Criticism
Federal Structure: Introduced a federal structure with provinces and princely states.	Complex Federal Structure: The proposed federal structure was complex and difficult to implement.
Provincial Autonomy: Granted provincial autonomy, allowing provinces more control over local affairs.	Limited Autonomy: Despite provincial autonomy, the Act still allowed the British Governor-General to retain significant powers.
Bicameral Legislature: Established bicameral legislatures in six provinces.	Separate Electorates: Continued the policy of separate electorates, which deepened communal divisions.
Expanded Franchise: Expanded the franchise, increasing the number of Indians eligible to vote.	No Full Sovereignty: Did not grant full sovereignty or independence to India.
Diarchy Abolished: Abolished diarchy in provinces, giving full control to elected Indian ministers.	Centralization of Power: Maintained significant central control over key areas like defense, foreign affairs, and finances.
Introduction of All-India Federation: Proposed an All-India Federation comprising British India and princely states (though never fully implemented).	Inequitable Representation: The representation in the central legislature was not equitable, favoring certain groups over others.
Civil Services Reforms: Introduced reforms in the Indian Civil Services, providing more opportunities for Indians.	Viceroy's Authority: The Viceroy retained overriding powers, including emergency powers, undermining democratic principles.

Participation In Elections Of Provincial Assemblies (1937)

1. Provincial elections were held in British India in the winter of 1936-37, as mandated by the Government of India Act 1935. The elections took place in eleven provinces: Madras, Central Provinces, Bihar, Orissa, United Provinces, Bombay Presidency, Assam, NWFP, Bengal, Punjab, and Sindh.
2. From 1936-1939, the Indian National Congress shifted from confrontation to constitutional politics. This was a period of trial for constitutional methods, as the mass movement of the second phase of the Civil Disobedience Movement (from 1932 onwards) had not garnered as much response as the earlier phase.
3. As the mass movement was on a decline, voices within Congress began advocating for a return to constitutional methods. Following a significant debate, Congress decided to participate in the 1937 elections and successfully formed governments in seven provinces.
4. Before the 1937 elections, the Congress had been participating in Assembly and local body elections since 1934. These elections helped the Congress test its popular base, gain experience in election organization, planning, and management, and test its allies for the required electoral funds.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

5. The Congress session at Lucknow in April 1936, presided over by Jawaharlal Nehru, resolved to contest elections on a manifesto basis and affirmed that the people of every part of India should have the same political, civil, and democratic liberties and the right to self-determination.
6. For the 1937 elections, every member of the Congress made a concerted effort to ensure the success of the party's candidates. The election results were generally favorable for the Congress, with the party faring well in all regions except Bengal, Punjab, and Sindh. The Congress emerged as the single largest party in Bengal, NWFP, Assam, and Bombay. However, the Congress did not do well in elections to the upper houses, as voting was limited to the upper strata of society.

Movement During World War II

1. During World War I and World War II, India's national movement experienced significant developments and played a crucial role in the country's struggle for independence from British colonial rule.
2. On 1 September 1939, the Second World War broke out. The British Government, without consulting the people of India, involved the country in the war.
3. The Congress vehemently opposed it, and as a mark of protest, the Congress ministries in the provinces resigned on 12 December 1939.
4. During the course of the Second World War, in order to secure the cooperation of the Indians, the British Government made an announcement on 8 August 1940, which came to be known as the 'August Offer'.
   a. The August Offer envisaged that after the War, a representative body of Indians would be set up to frame the new Constitution.
   b. Gandhi was not satisfied with this offer and decided to launch Individual Satyagraha.

Parameters	World War I	World War II
Objective	To secure political concessions from the British in exchange for their support in the war effort.	Shifted towards demanding complete independence from British rule.
Role of Leaders	The moderates, led by leaders like Bal Gangadhar Tilak and Gopal Krishna Gokhale, supported the British war effort and sought constitutional reforms and self-government.	Leaders such as Subhash Chandra Bose, disillusioned with nonviolent means, sought international support and formed the INA to fight alongside the Axis powers against the British.
Popular Movements	The Home Rule Movement, initiated by Annie Besant and Bal Gangadhar Tilak, demanded self-rule for India and gained significant support across the country.	The Quit India Movement, led by Mahatma Gandhi in 1942, called for the immediate withdrawal of the British from India and witnessed mass civil disobedience and protests.
Impact	The Indian nationalist movement gained momentum during this period, and the demand for self-rule became more prominent. The efforts of Indian leaders and the sacrifices made by Indian soldiers during the war created a sense of unity and nationalism.	The war created economic hardships and political instability in India, leading to a surge in popular discontent and anti-colonial sentiments. The end of World War II and the weakening of the British Empire internationally brought India closer to independence.

Overall, both periods marked significant milestones in India's struggle for freedom, laying the foundation for the country's eventual independence.

Event	Details
August Offer (1940)	A proposal made by the British to gain Indian support in WWII, offering an expanded Executive Council and post-war constitutional reforms, but rejected by Indian leaders due to a lack of full independence.
Individual Satyagraha (1940)	Non-violent protest led by Gandhi against India's involvement in WWII. Focused on individual acts of civil disobedience with leaders like Vinoba Bhave and Jawaharlal Nehru, keeping the freedom struggle alive.
Growth of Communalism	Increased polarization between Hindus and Muslims. The Lahore Resolution (1940) demanded a separate Muslim state (Pakistan), culminating in communal violence during Direct Action Day (1946).
Peasant Movements	Economic hardships led to movements like the Tebhaga Movement (1946) in Bengal and the Telangana Rebellion (1946-1951). These mobilized the masses and weakened British control over rural India.
People's Struggle	Princely states campaigned for integration into India. The All India States People's Conference (AISPC) mobilized people for democratic rights and unification, notably in Hyderabad, Junagadh, and Travancore.
Cripps Mission (1942)	British delegation offering Dominion Status in exchange for support in WWII. It failed due to disagreements over separate electorates for Muslims and the Muslim League's demand for a separate homeland.
Quit India Movement (1942)	Launched by Congress under Gandhi's leadership, demanding immediate British withdrawal. Despite repression, it marked a key turning point in India's independence struggle.
Wavell Plan (1945)	British proposal for a majority Indian executive council, rejected by Congress and the Muslim League due to failure to address key issues like separate electorates and full independence.
INA and Subhash Chandra Bose	The Indian National Army (INA) was revived by Bose to fight for India's independence. Despite military failure, it unified Hindus, Muslims, and Sikhs, influencing nationalist sentiments.
Subhash Chandra Bose's Contribution	Bose's dynamic leadership, formation of the Forward Bloc, advocacy for socialism, international connections, and controversial escapes shaped the freedom struggle. His legacy remains as a symbol of courage and dedication.

The Naval Mutiny

It is often called the last war of independence. Fought just before India gained independence, it was a significant struggle against British rule. In February 1946, sailors in the Royal Indian Navy (RIN) revolted for various reasons. The mutiny was mostly in Mumbai and Maharashtra and was a crucial blow to the British Empire in India.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

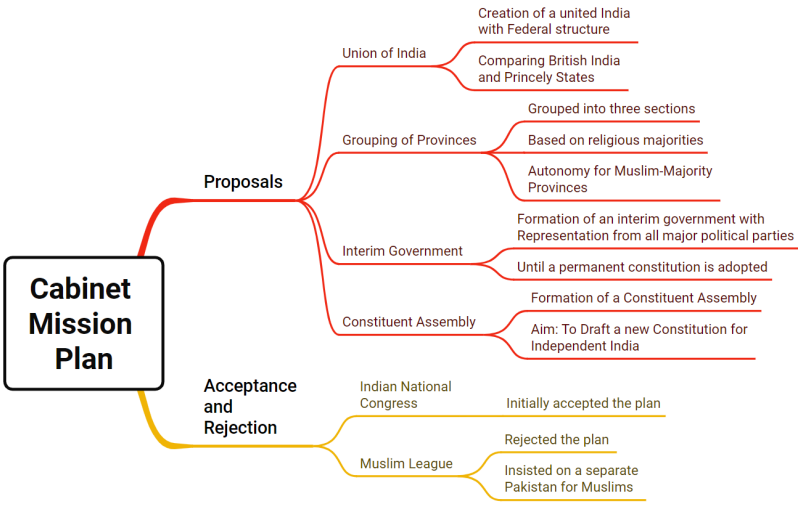

Impact On The Indian Freedom Movement

1. Demonstrated Unity and Resolve against colonial rule: It involved about 20,000 sailors and spread across various naval establishments, indicating widespread discontent with British rule.
2. Widespread Public Support: For example, in Mumbai, a general strike was called, demonstrating the solidarity between the naval personnel and the general populace. This mass support further pressured the British authorities.
3. Political Significance: Though major political leaders initially did not support the mutiny, fearing it might disrupt the imminent independence, the event underscored the urgency of India's independence. The mutiny played a crucial role in compelling the British to expedite the transfer of power.
4. Symbolic End to British Authority: The Indian sailors hoisted flags of the Congress, Muslim League, and Communist Party. This act of defiance was a significant psychological boost for the Indian independence movement. The 1946 Naval Mutiny was a pivotal event that highlighted the collective frustration of Indian servicemen and civilians under British rule. It showcased the strong nationalist sentiments prevalent in the country and contributed to the momentum that eventually led to India's independence in 1947.

Cabinet Mission Plan

The Cabinet Mission was a delegation sent by the British government to India in 1946 to propose a plan for India's independence and constitutional arrangements.

Objective: The mission aimed to find a solution to the growing political tensions between the Indian National Congress and the Muslim League, representing Hindu and Muslim interests.

Comparison Between August Offer, Cripps Mission And Cabinet Mission

Aspects	August Offer	Cripps Mission	Cabinet Mission
Date	August 1940	March 1942	March 1946
Purpose	Address Indian political demands during WWII.	Secure Indian cooperation for the war effort.	Devise a constitutional framework for India.
Main Objective	Expansion of the Viceroy's Executive Council.	Post-war dominion status promised.	Creation of the constituent assembly.
Reaction	Rejected by Congress for being inadequate.	Rejected by Congress for lack of an independence guarantee.	Accepted by Congress and the Muslim League, but later led to partition due to disagreements.
Provision	Promise of post-war dominion status, creation of a constituent assembly.	Dominion status with complete external and internal autonomy.	Provision for provinces to form groups.

Nationalist Upsurge Post World War II

Event	Details
Nationalist Upsurge Post World War II	After WWII, India saw a rise in popular initiatives like anti-imperialist movements, including the Tebhaga Movement, the Warlis Revolt, the Punjab Kisan Morchas, and the Telangana Movement. Despite the repression during the Quit India Movement (1942) and wartime hardships, the Indian populace remained resilient.
Election Campaign (1946)	The provincial elections saw Congress win over 90% of general seats, while the Muslim League won Muslim constituencies. The campaign was a mobilization effort against British rule rather than a mere election contest. Repression during the Quit India Movement and INA trials was a significant issue during the campaign.
Independence with Partition	India gained independence through the Mountbatten Plan, with the Independence Act of 1947 granting self-governance by August 15, 1947. India was partitioned into India and Pakistan, with princely states having to choose to join either country or remain independent. Over 560 states opted for India.
Mountbatten Plan	The 3rd June Plan (Mountbatten Plan) was agreed upon by Congress and Muslim League leaders to partition India. It led to the Independence Act of 1947, granting India and Pakistan independence from British rule.
Indian Independence Act (1947)	Passed on July 18, 1947, the Act granted independence to India and Pakistan on August 15, 1947. The Act ended British suzerainty, and Governors-Generals became heads of state until the new dominions established their constitutions.

Overall Impact Of Britishers On Indian Society

Aspect	Details
Announcement by the British Prime Minister	On February 20, 1947, it was announced that British India would attain self-governance by June 1948.
Mountbatten Plan	The Mountbatten Plan was agreed upon by Indian National Congress and Muslim League leaders and implemented on June 3, 1947.
Independence Act	The Independence Act, embodying the Mountbatten Plan, declared India and Pakistan independent from August 15, 1947.
Boundary Commission	The Boundary Commission delineated new borders, and British suzerainty over princely states ended.
Princely States	Princely states had to choose to join India, Pakistan, or stay independent; over 560 opted for India.
Governor-General's Role	Until the new dominions established their constitutions, Governor-Generals acted as heads of state with the ability to assent to laws through Constituent Assemblies.
Royal Assent	The Royal Assent to the Independence Act was granted on July 18, 1947, bringing it into effect.
Significance of the Act	The passage of the Indian Independence Act in 1947 marked a turning point in India's constitutional journey. It heralded the dawn of a new era of liberty in India, even though it was met with discontent among many citizens. Despite its shortcomings, it culminated in the cessation of British dominance in India.

Round Table Conference

Aspect	First Round Table Conference	Second Round Table Conference	Third Round Table Conference
Date & Venue	November 1930 - January 1931, London	September 7 - December 1, 1931, London	November 17 - December 24, 1932, London
Key Context	• Based on the Simon Commission's inadequate recommendations. • Congress boycotted due to ongoing Civil Disobedience.	• Held after the Gandhi-Irwin Pact. • Gandhi represented Congress, the sole major Indian political group present.	• Congress boycotted after Gandhi's arrest and repression of the Civil Disobedience Movement.
Chaired By	Ramsay MacDonald	Ramsay MacDonald	Ramsay MacDonald

Aspect	First Round Table Conference	Second Round Table Conference	Third Round Table Conference
British Representation	• King George V opened the session. • MacDonald chaired.	Similar representation, but more conservative leadership under MacDonald and Samuel Hoare.	Same as earlier, with more limited participation from India.
Indian Participation	• Princely States: Baroda, Bhopal, Patiala, Jammu & Kashmir, and others. • Muslim League: Aga Khan III, Jinnah. • Depressed Classes: B.R. Ambedkar, R. Srinivasan. • Hindu Mahasabha: B.S. Moonje. • Women, Parsis, Christians, Anglo-Indians, Universities, Industry, Labour, and Landlords were also represented.	• INC: Gandhi (sole representative). • Muslims: Aga Khan III, Jinnah, Iqbal. • Depressed Classes: Ambedkar, Srinivasan. • Labour: NM Joshi, VV Giri. • Women: Sarojini Naidu, Begum Jahanara Shahnawaz. • Representation widened to include Sikhs, Burmans, Sindhis, and others.	• Similar composition but without Congress or major Indian political leaders. • Continued representation of minorities, princely states, and depressed classes.
Key Developments	• Discussions on federation, safeguards for defence, and finance. • No agreement due to Congress's absence.	• Gandhi declared Congress represented all Indians and opposed separate electorates for minorities. • Deadlock on minority issues, leading to MacDonald announcing the Communal Award.	• Continued focus on federal structure and minority rights. • Recommendations finalized for constitutional reforms.
Significant Outcomes	• Agreed on the need for a federal structure and safeguards, but no actionable outcome.	• MacDonald announced: 1. Two Muslim-majority provinces: NWFP and Sindh. 2. Formation of Expert Committees on finance, franchise, and states. 3. Unilateral Communal Award for minorities.	• Published recommendations in a White Paper (March 1933). • Basis for the Government of India Act, 1935.
Congress Role	Absent.	Participated, represented solely by Gandhi.	Absent.
Overall Assessment	Limited impact due to lack of Congress participation.	Significant debates but no resolution on Indian freedom or constitutional progress due to deadlock on minority issues.	Recommendations became the groundwork for the 1935 Act, but were largely ineffective in resolving Indian demands for self-governance.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Across All Conferences

1. Congress Involvement: Only attended the second conference, making the others less impactful.
2. Minority Representation: Major cause of disagreement; Muslims, Depressed Classes, Christians, Sikhs, and Anglo-Indians demanded separate electorates.
3. Outcome: Led to the Government of India Act, 1935, which incorporated the federal structure but failed to address Indian aspirations for complete independence.

Provincial Elections

Theme	Details
Context and Aftermath of CDM Withdrawal	Withdrawal of the Civil Disobedience Movement marked a critical point in India's struggle for independence.
Context and Aftermath of CDM Withdrawal	Debate on the future course of action for the national movement, including participation in 1937 provincial elections under the Government of India Act, 1935.
Perspectives on Future Course	Constructive work on Gandhian lines: Leaders like Rajendra Prasad and Sardar Patel favored constructive work and nation-building until a decision was made on the next course of action.
	Constitutional struggle through elections: Constitutionalists like M.A. Ansari, Asaf Ali, Bhulabhai Desai, S. Satyamurthy, and B.C. Roy supported participating in elections.
	Rejection of both and continuation of CDM: Jawaharlal Nehru and Subhash Chandra Bose wanted to continue the Civil Disobedience Movement.
Gandhi's Position	Gandhi was not initially supportive of participating in the elections but later allowed different factions to pursue their own methods.
	Gandhi's perspective: The acceptance of office should be for the service of the people, not political gain.
Parliamentary Board	Established by AICC in May 1934 to conduct elections on behalf of Congress.
Debate on the 1937 Elections	Participation in elections implied support for the 1935 Act, which Congress had opposed.
	Congress, after debate, decided to contest elections based on a detailed political and economic program.
Opposition to Acceptance of Office	Leaders like Subhash Bose, Nehru, and Congress socialists/communists opposed office acceptance as it would contradict Congress's rejection of the 1935 Act.
Proponents of Acceptance of Office	Leftist leaders supported acceptance to create deadlocks in the legislature and further their agenda.
Lucknow Session of Congress, 1936	Presided over by Jawaharlal Nehru.

Theme	Details
	Decision to fight elections but defer decision on office acceptance.
	Adoption of socialist goals for solving agrarian problems.
	Resolution rejecting the Government of India Act, 1935.
Congress and the 1937 Election	First major elections under the Government of India Act, 1935, expanding the electorate.
Congress Election Manifesto, 1937	General Aim: To combat the Government of India Act, not cooperate with it.
	Political: Civil liberties, release of political prisoners, undoing wrongs to peasants.
	Economic: Better living standards, regular working hours, labor rights, machinery for dispute resolution.
	Social: Removal of untouchability, equal status of women, encouragement of khadi and village industries.
1937 Election Results	Elections are held in 11 provinces (Madras, Central Provinces, Bihar, Orissa, United Provinces, Bombay, Assam, NWFP, Bengal, Punjab, Sindh).
	Congress won 716 out of 1161 contested seats, with majorities in 6 provinces.
	Largest party in Bengal, NWFP, Assam, Bombay, but not the majority in all provinces.
	Poor performance in Punjab and Sindh.
Office Acceptance Decision	A special meeting of AICC in March 1937 to discuss office acceptance.
	Conditional acceptance was passed by Rajendra Prasad (implicit approval from Gandhi).
	Condition: Governors should not interfere with the ministry's functioning.
	Acceptance of office to bring relief to workers and peasants.
Reactions to Office Acceptance	Congress Socialist Party members (Jayaprakash Narayan, Sahajanand Saraswati, N.G. Ranga) considered it a retreat from non-cooperation.
	Indian capitalists, particularly G.D. Birla, favored the decision.
Faizpur Session of Congress, 1937	First session held in a village, led by Jawaharlal Nehru.

Theme	Details
	Official demand for a Constituent Assembly.
	Focus on agrarian programs: 50% reduction in rent, taxation on agricultural income, abolition of feudal levies, cooperative farming, and recognition of peasant unions.
Congress Rule in Provinces (Post 1937 Election)	The Congress formed governments in 7 provinces: Central Provinces, Orissa, United Provinces, Bihar, Bombay, Madras. Later in NWFP and Assam.
	The Congress rule lasted 28 months in most provinces.
List of Congress Prime Ministers	Bombay: B.G. Kher.
	United Provinces: Govind Ballabh Pant.
	Madras: C. Rajagopalachari.
	Orissa: Hare Krishna Mehtab.
	Central Provinces: Dr. Khare.
	Bihar: Sri Krishna Sinha.
	NWFP: Dr. Khan Saheb.
Programmes and Performance of Congress Ministries	Political Prisoners and Civil Liberties: Ban lifted on newspapers, political prisoners freed, Civil Disobedience Movement pension reinstated.
	Peasants: Tenancy laws adopted in Congress-ruled provinces, protection from moneylenders, land reforms in Bombay.
	Labor: Program for labor rights, including paid holidays, employment insurance, and minimum wages.
	Constructive Program: Prohibition campaigns, khadi promotion, medical officers in hospitals, investment in public works.
	Wardha Scheme: National Education Plan emphasizing free education, mother tongue instruction, and vocational training.
Major Achievements	Reduction in ministerial salaries, fundamental rights declaration, welfare schemes for tribals, jail reforms, repeal of Moplah Outrages Act, commercial surveys.
Drawbacks in Congress Rule	Use of CID against leftists in Bombay, arrests of socialist leaders.

Theme	Details
	Despite opposition to tenancy reforms from right-wing leaders, zamindars remained influential in many areas.
	Treated labor protests as law-and-order issues, angered leftists.
	Dilemma on supporting the Praja Mandal movement for greater democracy.
	Alleged minority discrimination by Congress, particularly by the Muslim League.
	Refusal to form coalitions with the Muslim League in provinces like Bengal and Assam, contributing to Pakistan's creation.
Resignation of Congress Ministers	In November 1939, Viceroy Linlithgow included India in WWII without consulting Congress, leading to the resignation of Congress ministries.
	The Muslim League celebrated it as "Deliverance Day."
	Resulted in the Satyagraha movement (1940) and the Quit India movement (1942).

Individual Satyagraha

Aspect	Details
Background	• The British government demanded that Congress reach an agreement with Muslim leaders before any constitutional advances. • Ordinances restricted freedom of speech, press, and the right to organize associations. • Congress rejected the August Offer (1940) due to its limited provisions.
Causes	• Long-term Causes: 1. Failure of the Round Table Conferences (RTC). 2. Lithingow's 1939 statement failed to satisfy Congress' demands. • Immediate Causes: 1. Rejection of the August Offer by Congress. 2. British opposition to forming a provisional national government. 3. Government-imposed restrictions on freedom of speech, press, and assembly.
Aims	1. Show Nationalist Strength: Demonstrate that nationalist patience was not due to weakness. 2. Oppose British Rule: Express disinterest in the war and highlight the lack of distinction between Nazism and British autocracy. 3. Peaceful Protest: Provide a chance for peaceful acceptance of demands.
Actions and Development	• Individual satyagraha was launched by selected individuals in each locality. • Satyagrahis declared anti-war slogans and marched towards Delhi if not arrested. • Started on October 17, 1940, by Gandhi.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
Key Figures	• Vinoba Bhave: First satyagrahi, began a protest at Paunar, near Wardha. • Jawaharlal Nehru: Second satyagrahi, arrested on November 14, 1940. • Brahma Dutt: Third satyagrahi.
Chronology of Events	• Sept 3, 1939: Britain declares war on Germany. • Oct 17, 1940: Gandhi launches Individual Satyagraha. • Nov 14, 1940: Nehru was arrested at Cheoki train station under the Defense of India Rules. • Jan 1941: Movement declines as the British release prisoners. • July 1941: Movement suspended.
British Response	• 25,000 people were convicted by May 1941. • Anti-war propaganda outlawed. • Satyagrahis were arrested quickly to prevent protests from spreading.
Impact	• Short-term: The anti-war declaration served as the demand for satyagrahis. • Long-term: Inspired and politically mobilized the masses, preparing the ground for future mass movements.
Significance	• Showed that nationalist patience was not due to weakness. • Highlighted Indian opposition to the war effort. • Built momentum for future movements like the Quit India Movement (1942).

Chapter 10

British Constitutional Developments

From 1773 -1858

Act	Key Features	Significance
Regulating Act (1773)	• First regulation of East India Company (EIC) affairs. • Introduced the Doctrine of Checks & Balances. • The Governor of Bengal became the Governor-General of Bengal (Warren Hastings). • 4-member Executive Council to assist the Governor General. • Supreme Court (SC) at Fort William (Sir Elijah Impey as CJI).	• Initiated centralized governance. • Legislative power shifted from Bombay and Madras to Bengal. • Accountability introduced through the Court of Directors, answerable to the British Government. • SC's interference in EIC matters was resolved later by the Settlement Act (1781).
Settlement Act (1781)	• Limited SC's authority over executive officers. • Introduced the Doctrine of Separation of Powers.	• Reduced friction between SC and EIC officers. • Provided clarity on roles and jurisdiction.
Pitt's India Act (1784)	• Introduced Double Government: – Court of Directors for commercial matters. – Board of Control for political, military, and administrative matters. • Declared EIC territories as British Possessions. • Significantly reduced EIC power.	• Marked a shift toward British colonization. • Centralized control by the British Government increased. • Strengthened governance by separating commercial and administrative domains.
Charter Act (1833)	• Abolished provincial legislative councils. • Legislative powers were centralized under the Governor General of Bengal, who became the Governor General of India (William Bentinck). • Proposed open exams for higher civil services. • Abolished slavery in India (1843).	• Complete centralization of governance in India. • Marked India's formal position as a colony under British imperial control. • Introduced civil service reforms to enhance administrative efficiency.
Charter Act (1853)	• Introduced open competitive exams for higher civil services. • Separated legislative and executive functions through a specialized Legislative Council.	• Paved the way for stronger British administrative control. • Bureaucratic reforms reduced EIC's monopoly over civil services.

Act	Key Features	Significance
	• Last Charter Act: EIC became a trading company. • The Legislative Council acted as a Mini Parliament.	• Legislative Council enhanced law-making and governance capabilities.
EIC Bureaucracy Issue	• EIC-sponsored officers dominated higher civil services until 1853. • Open competitive exams faced resistance from EIC. • Proposed reforms delayed due to bureaucratic inertia.	• Highlighted inefficiencies in bureaucracy. • Marked the beginning of merit-based recruitment, ensuring better governance and administration.
First War of Independence (1857)	• Triggered by the Doctrine of Lapse, religious sentiments, and British mismanagement. • Termed Sepoy Mutiny by British historians.	• Exposed EIC's failure to govern effectively. • Resulted in British reforms and marked the end of the EIC's role in India. • Set the stage for direct Crown rule through the Act of 1858.
Act for Better Government (1858)	• The Crown assumed direct control of India. • Secretary of State with a council of 15 established. • The Governor General became Viceroy. • Abolished dual control under Pitt's India Act.	• Marked the end of Company rule. • Centralized Indian administration under the Crown. • Enhanced Viceroy's prestige and consolidated British control.

Act	Key Features	Significance
Government of India Act, 1858	• Titled "Act for the Good Government of India". • Replaced Governor-General with Viceroy (Lord Canning, 1st Viceroy). • Established Secretary of State for India (Cabinet Minister in British Parliament). • Abolished Double Government. • Introduced a chain of responsibility. • Queen Victoria was proclaimed Empress of India (Nov 1, 1858).	• Marked the beginning of direct British Crown rule in India. • Streamlined British governance without focusing on Indian welfare. • Formation of the India Council strengthened British control over Indian affairs. • Abolished dual control and consolidated power in British hands.
Indian Councils Act, 1861	• Introduced decentralization by Lord Canning. • Allowed 3-Indians as non-official members in legislative councils (Raja of Banaras, Maharaja of Patiala, Dinkar Rao).	• Marked the beginning of Indian representation in governance, although limited. • Decentralization laid the foundation for later provincial autonomy.

Act	Key Features	Significance
	• Gave legal sanction to the Portfolio System (1859) for departmentalization. • First step toward Indian representation in governance. • Legislative powers given to Bombay and Madras.	• Introduced Portfolio System, creating the framework for Cabinet Government in India.
Indian Councils Act, 1892	• Introduced indirect elections via nominations by trade unions, industrial houses, universities, and the Viceroy. • Members were given the right to discuss the budget and ask questions. • Strengthened Legislative Councils by increasing Indian participation. • Allowed Indians to indirectly influence governance.	• Strengthened Indian participation in governance, though indirectly. • Enabled Indians to exert some influence over governance, budgetary discussions, and public issues. • Marked a shift towards more involvement of Indians in the decision-making process.
Indian Councils Act, 1909	• Introduced direct elections for the first time (though limited). • Increased the size of the Central Legislative Council (16 → 60 members). • Separate electorates for Muslims (Morley-Minto Reforms). • Legislative Councils could now pass motions. • Appeased the Muslim League (founded in 1906), initiating the divide and rule policy. • Expanded Provincial Legislative Councils.	• Marked the beginning of direct elections, although very limited. • Increased Indian representation, but only for the elite. • Introduced separate electorates for Muslims, which led to the rise of communal politics. • Laid the groundwork for the communal divide and "divide and rule" policy.

Gandhi's Understanding of Colonialism	Concept	Path to Sovereignty
Colony	• Provinces were actual colonies (no legal/political control; British head of state). • Princely States (PS) had suzerainty agreements: they had internal control but relied on the British for defense and external affairs.	• India needed to evolve from Colony → Federation → Dominion → Sovereign.
Federation	• Needed to unite Provinces and Princely States under one political unit (Union). • Advocated Provincial Autonomy with Bicameralism (RS) and Division of Powers (Union, State, Concurrent Lists).	• Federation would lead to Dominion Status (legal and political control retained by India, but British head of state).

Gandhi's Understanding of Colonialism	Concept	Path to Sovereignty
Dominion → Sovereignty	• Dominion was the middle step to independence, ensuring India controlled its internal and external affairs.	• Dominion Status would pave the way for complete Sovereignty (legal, political, and head of state control in Indian hands).

Act	Key Features	Significance
Government of India Act, 1919	• Introduced Dyarchy (Two Lists): – Reserved List (Viceroy's control). – Transferred List (Provincial subjects). • Created a Legislative Council (advisory body only). • Reservation in the Executive Council (3 Indians out of 6). • Separate electorates for Sikhs, Anglo-Indians, etc. • Divided powers between the Centre and Provinces but kept real control with the British (Viceroy). • Central Public Service Commission established. • Provincial budget separated from the central budget.	• Led to dissatisfaction and Gandhi's Non-Cooperation Movement (1920-22). • Introduced gradual development of responsible government, but control remained with the British. • First step towards Indian autonomy but failed to meet Indian aspirations. • Established some provincial autonomy but with considerable limitations.
Simon Commission (1927)	• Appointed to review GOI Act 1919 reforms. • No Indian member. • Headed by Simon Baldwin. • Recommendations discussed in Round Table Conferences and Gandhi-Irwin Pact. • Introduced the White Paper on Constitutional Reforms. • Widespread protests against the lack of Indian representation ("Simon Go Back"). • Laid groundwork for GOI Act, 1935.	• Marked widespread protests and rejection due to a lack of Indian representation. • Helped in the formulation of the Government of India Act, 1935. • Shifted the demand for complete self-rule to a more focused constitutional approach.
Government of India Act, 1935	• Proposed All India Federation (Provinces + Princely States). • Division of Power: Federal, Provincial, Concurrent Lists. • Abolished Dyarchy; Introduced Provincial Autonomy. • Residual powers vested in the Viceroy. • Central Public Service Commission formalized.	• Laid the foundation for India's current federal structure. • Failed to create a full Federation as Princely States refused to join. • Introduced key concepts like provincial autonomy and separation of powers.

Act	Key Features	Significance
	• Failed to create a Federation due to Princely States' refusal to join. • Burma separated from India. • Limited franchise; Introduced Bicameralism in Provinces.	• Paved the way for later developments in India's constitutional framework.
August Offer (1940)	• Proposed by Lord Linlithgow. • Promised Dominion Status after WWII without requiring Federation. • Indians reluctantly supported Britain in WWII. • Aimed to gain Indian cooperation during WWII. • Churchill's government formalized it in 1942 through the Cripps Mission, but it failed due to Jinnah's demand for Pakistan and the INC's rejection.	• Marked an attempt by Britain to placate Indian leaders during WWII. • Failed to gain widespread Indian support and further highlighted the demand for full independence. • Set the stage for stronger demands for autonomy and self-rule.
Quit India Movement (1942)	• Led by Mahatma Gandhi after the failure of the August Offer and Cripps Mission. • Slogan: "Do or Die." • Marked a shift towards complete independence. • Intensified India's struggle for freedom.	• Signified a major push for complete independence from British rule. • Marked a pivotal point in the Indian freedom struggle, leading to the eventual end of British rule.
Cabinet Mission (1946)	• Sent by Clement Attlee to discuss India's future. • Proposed elections for a Constituent Assembly (389 seats). • Result: 208 (INC), 73 (Muslim League), 15 (Others). • The Muslim League boycotted; The Princely States remained hesitant. • The Constituent Assembly formed but lacked complete representation. • Paved the way for drafting India's Constitution.	• Established the foundation for India's independence by creating a framework for constitutional drafting. • Played a key role in preparing the groundwork for the Partition and formation of the Constituent Assembly.
Constituent Assembly (1946-50)	• 1st Session (Dec 9, 1946): - Sachidanand Sinha = Temporary President. - Dr. Rajendra Prasad = President. - Dr. B.R. Ambedkar = Chairman of the Drafting Committee (formed Aug 29, 1947). • Original Constitution: 395 Articles, 8 Schedules. • Adopted Aims & Objectives Resolution on Dec 13, 1946 (later became Preamble). • Constitution adopted on Jan 26, 1950, declaring India a Sovereign State.	• Formed the core of India's path to independence. • Led to the drafting and adoption of India's Constitution on January 26, 1950. • Marked India's transition from a British colony to a republic.
Indian Independence Act, 1947	• Passed on July 8, 1947. • Divided British India into India and Pakistan.	• Officially marked the end of British colonial rule in India.

Act	Key Features	Significance
	• End of British rule in India. • Governor-General (Lord Mountbatten) to oversee transition. • Marked India's complete independence. • India adopted its Constitution on Jan 26, 1950, becoming a Republic.	• Led to the creation of two independent nations – India and Pakistan. • Marked the dawn of India's independence and the formation of a republic.

August Offer

Aspect	Details
Background	• Hitler's success and the fall of Belgium, Holland, and France put England in a conciliatory mood. • The Congress leadership, led by Gandhi and Nehru, opposed taking advantage of Britain's position during WWII.
British Proposal (August 1940)	1. Dominion Status: Offered as the objective for India. 2. Expansion of the Viceroy's Executive Council: To have a majority of Indians from major political parties. 3. Constituent Assembly: To be set up after the war, where mainly Indians would decide the constitution, subject to obligations related to defense, minority rights, treaties, and all-India services. 4. Minority Consent: No future constitution would be adopted without the consent of minorities.
Congress Response	• Rejected the offer. • Nehru stated, "Dominion status concept is dead as a doornail." • Gandhi stated the offer widened the gulf between nationalists and British rulers.
Muslim League Response	• Welcomed the veto assurance given to the League. • Reiterated its position that partition was the only solution to the deadlock.
Significance & Evaluation	• Recognized for the first time the inherent right of Indians to frame their constitution. • Congress's demand for a constituent assembly was conceded. • Dominion status was explicitly offered but rejected by Congress. • In July 1941, the Viceroy's Executive Council was enlarged to give Indians a majority (8 out of 12), but key areas like defense, finance, and home remained under British control. • A National Defence Council with advisory functions was also set up.

Cripps Mission

Aspect	Details
Background	Britain faced reverses in Southeast Asia and a real Japanese threat to invade India.
	Pressure from Allies (USA, USSR, China) for Indian cooperation.
	Indian nationalists were willing to support the war if substantial power was transferred and complete independence given after the war.
Main Proposals	An Indian Union with dominion status; free to decide its relationship with the Commonwealth and participate in the United Nations.
	A constituent assembly to be convened after the war to frame a new constitution, partly elected and partly nominated by the princes.
	Any province not willing to join the Union could have a separate constitution and form a separate Union; New constitution would be subject to the British government and treaty.
	Defence of India and the Governor-General's powers to remain under British control until a new constitution is formed.
Departures from the Past & Implications	The making of the constitution was to be entirely in Indian hands, differing from past proposals.
	A concrete plan for the constituent assembly was provided.
	The option for provinces to have separate constitutions served as a blueprint for partition.
	Free India could withdraw from the Commonwealth.
	A larger Indian share in administration during the interim period.
Why the Cripps Mission Failed ?	1. Congress Opposition: - Rejected dominion status, wanted complete independence. - Objected to the representation of princely states by nominees, not elected representatives. - Against the right of provinces to secede, which went against national unity. - No immediate transfer of power and retention of the Governor-General's supremacy.
	2. Muslim League Opposition: - Rejected a single Indian Union. - Disliked the machinery for creating the constituent assembly and the procedure for provinces' accession. - Felt the proposals denied Muslims their right to self-determination and creation of Pakistan.

Aspect	Details
	3. Other Groups: - Hindus and Sikhs feared partition would affect them. - Liberals, Hindu Mahasabha, and Depressed Classes all opposed the proposal for provinces' right to secede. - The unclear procedure for secession and the threat to Punjab and Bengal's unity added to confusion.
	4. British Opposition: - British officials, including Churchill and Linlithgow, thwarted Cripps' efforts. - Cripps' rigid "take it or leave it" approach and failure to clarify key points led to the breakdown of talks. - Gandhi and Nehru criticized the plan for maintaining the autocratic structure of power under the Viceroy.
Significance & Evaluation	The mission highlighted the British intention to maintain control over India during and after the war.
	Set the stage for growing dissatisfaction with British rule.
	Marked a failed attempt to bridge the gap between the British and Indian leaders and fueled the demand for a final push for independence.

Quit India Movement

Aspect	Details
Slogans	• "Bharat Chhodo" by Yusuf Mehar Ali. • "Quit India" and "Do or Die" by Gandhi.
Causes	Long-Term: Failure of Cripps Mission: Congress objected to dominion status, rights of provinces to secede, lack of immediate transfer of power, and retention of the Governor-General's supremacy. Immediate: Japanese onslaught from SE Asia, British abandonment of SE Asian territories, belief that British exit would deter Japanese invasion. Other: The British war setbacks, high prices of essential commodities.
Resolution	• Immediate end to British rule in India. • Commitment to free India to defend against fascism and imperialism. • Provisional government after British withdrawal. • Civil disobedience against British rule.
Gandhi's Instructions	• Government servants: Do not resign but declare allegiance to Congress. • Soldiers: Do not leave the Army but avoid firing on compatriots. • Students: Leave studies if you are confident.

WARNING: This COPY is ENCRYPTED and FOR PERSONAL USE ONLY. Any unauthorised use will attract legal action.

Aspect	Details
	• Peasants: Pay rent to anti-government zamindars; withhold from pro-government zamindars. • Princes: Support the masses, accept the sovereignty of the people. • Princely state citizens: Support anti-government rulers.
Spread of Movement	• Hoisting of national flags on public buildings, strikes, protests. • Cutting telegraph lines, blowing up bridges, disrupting transport. • Underground radio by Usha Mehta. • Local organizations are active in Bombay, Poona, Satara, Gujarat, Karnataka, Kerala, Andhra, UP, Bihar, and Delhi.
Parallel Governments	• Ballia (Under Chittu Pandey). • Tamluk Jatiya Sarkar (Cyclone relief, paddy redistribution). • Satara Prati Sarkar (Y.B. Chavan, Nana Patil; organized libraries, Nyayadan Mandals, prohibition campaigns).
Participation	High: Youth, women, peasants, some zamindars, students, workers, lower-level officials. Limited: Princely states, bureaucracy. Non-Supporters: Muslim League, CPI, Hindu Mahasabha.
Impact	• New leaders: Aruna Asaf Ali, Ram Manohar Lohia, Jayaprakash Narayan. • Government property damaged, communications disrupted. • INC banned, leaders jailed. • Popular morale and anti-British sentiment heightened. • Demonstrated Indian determination for independence.
Chronology	• July 1942: Wardha CWC meeting; Quit India resolution proposed (Nehru) and seconded (Patel). • August 8, 1942: Resolution ratified at Gowalia Tank, Bombay. • August 9, 1942: Major Congress leaders arrested; movement began.
Significance	• Demonstrated that India couldn't be governed without Indian consent. • Marked the demand for complete independence. • Common people displayed unparalleled heroism and militancy despite severe repression.
British Response	• Arrested 100,000 people, lathi charges, police firings (10,000 died). • Press muzzled, INC declared unlawful, martial law avoided. • Gandhi was released in 1944 on health grounds.
Key Personalities	Aruna Asaf Ali, Ram Manohar Lohia, Jayaprakash Narayan, Usha Mehta, Sucheta Kripalani, Biju Patnaik, Y.B. Chavan, Nana Patil.

Mountbatten Plan

Aspect	Details
Mountbatten's Role	Mountbatten was more firm and quick in decision-making due to informal powers and the British government's decision to quit early. His task was to explore options for unity and division until October 1947. He supported both sides, but partition became inevitable.
Mountbatten Plan (June 3, 1947)	The freedom-with-partition formula was widely accepted before Mountbatten's arrival. V.P. Menon suggested granting dominion status immediately, with the right of secession.
Main Points of the Mountbatten Plan	1. Punjab and Bengal Legislative Assemblies to meet in two groups (Hindus and Muslims) to vote for partition. If a simple majority voted for partition, provinces would be divided. 2. Two dominions and two constituent assemblies to be created. 3. Sindh to decide its own fate. 4. Referendums in NWFP and Sylhet district (Bengal) to decide the fate of these areas. 5. Congress's demands on a unified India were met (no independence for princely states, Bengal, or Hyderabad).
Congress' Acceptance of Dominion Status	Congress accepted dominion status despite opposition due to: 1. Ensuring a quick and peaceful transfer of power. 2. Congress needed authority to manage an explosive situation. 3. Continuity in bureaucracy and the army.
Rationale for an Early Date (August 15, 1947)	Britain sought Congress's agreement to dominion status while escaping responsibility for the communal situation. The plan was implemented quickly.
Results of the Plan	1. Bengal and Punjab's legislative assemblies voted for partition, dividing provinces between India and Pakistan. 2. Referendums in NWFP and Sylhet resulted in Pakistan and East Bengal's integration. 3. Boundary commissions were set up for demarcation.
Indian Independence Act (July 5, 1947)	The Act created two dominions: India and Pakistan, with effect from August 15, 1947. Each dominion had its own governor-general and a new constituent assembly. The governments would operate according to the Government of India Act, 1935, until new constitutions were adopted.
Problems of Early Withdrawal	1. Lack of transitional structures for handling partition issues. 2. Mountbatten's hope of being Governor-General for both dominions was thwarted by Jinnah. 3. Delay in announcing the Boundary Commission Award, which was made public after August 15, to shift responsibility for disturbances to the new governments.
